Mr Malapert's Nuksau..... 3 dist.

Nuksau won the second heat, but a cross was claimed and established.

The course this years was as hard as a brick bat, so much so that before the Races commenced there were only two Horses Planet and (Mercury, an inferior Horse of Mr. D'Vaux) left to compete with Mr. Andrew's strong stable, and those two were screwed before the end of the Meeting, thus Mr. Andrew walked off with every thing, save the 6th Cup which fell to the Sporting owner of Planet.

PROPOSED CODE OF RULES FOR THE MADRAS TURF.

1. Newmarket rules as far as applicable to this country to be adopted.

2. The rules concerning Horse-Racing in general, the rules and orders of the Jockey Club, and the adjudged cases all of which are contained in Weatherby's Racing Calendar, apply to all races run on, and engagements made for the Madras course with the exception of certain Rules hereinafter specified, some of which in lieu of Rules not adopted to the state of the Turf in India, and others purely local, and no other Book than Weatherby's Racing Calendar is to be considered as authority for the above Rules and decisions of the Jockey Club at Newmarket.

3. The Newmarket rules for Horses taking age from 1st January is not adopted, and horses are to continue to take their ages from 1st May.

4. The fifth of the Rules concerning Horse Racing in general is not adopted, and the following Rules are substituted.

6. Horses that cannot produce a satisfactory certificate of their age, are to be aged by the Stewards, or by such person or persons as they may appoint.

6. Any objection to a Horse being improperly aged, is to be made and decided before the Race is run, and such decision is to be final as regards that particular Race, notwithstanding anything that may be subsequently adduced to the contrary.

7. From this date the Byculla Standard is to be considered as the Established Weight for age, unless expressed to the contrary in the terms of any race, viz.

Three years	7	4
Four "	7	12
Five "	8	5
Six "	8	12
Aged "	9	0

8. Horses to be measured by the Stewards of the Meeting or such persons as they may appoint, and the measurement to hold good for that Meeting.

9. Where a quarter of an inch is allowed for measuring in shoes or plates, such are to be bona fide shoes or plates and no pieces of tin or other substances cut in the shape of the shoes will be allowed. A horse must stand to be measured with his legs as nearly perpendicular as possible. The skin on his withers is not to be pressed down, and his mane is not to be held lower than what brings the poll on a level with the withers.

10. All confederacies must be declared to the Secretary, in writing on or before the day preceding the Meeting, and confederates are jointly and severally responsible for all losses and demands connected with Racing, incurred jointly or separately by them during the Meeting, if a confederacy is subsequently dissolved, the Confederates must notify this to the Secretary by a letter signed by both or all of them. In like manner, if a confederacy is informed before a meeting, it must be immediately notified to the Secretary to entitle the confederates to the benefits of it before the meeting.

11. In all Races, the terms of which are, that they are to close or name on a certain day; it is understood that Subscriptions or nominations are to be received by the Secretary not despatched on or before that day, and this applies also to forfeits that are to be declared on or before a certain day.

12. When a Horse's name is changed from one he has once run under before, both names must be specified the first time he is entered under the new one; a breach of this rule will subject a horse so entered to be distanced.

13. In all Races for Public Money, Mares and Geldings are allowed 3 lbs. when nothing to the contrary is specified.

14. In private Matches or Sweepstakes, no allowance is made to Mares and Geldings, unless so specified in the terms.

15. Maidens on the 1st October of each year preceding the Meeting, to run as such during the Madras Meeting except as may be otherwise provided. No Horse aged by the Stewards, and who has started under their authority and certificate, shall be permitted to be brought forward to be aged at a future meeting, but such Horse shall start on the Madras course agreeable to the age formerly assigned to him.

Saddling, Weighing, Starting and Heats.

16. As the word off, go, or away, is given by the Steward, or person appointed by the Stewards to start the Horses, it must be considered a fair start, and no other will be allowed, and no caution is required beyond the calling the horses up to the post.

17. The Steward will fix the order in which all Races are to be run the day before they take place.

18. In Races of Heats, no more than half an hour from the time the last Jockey is weighed, will be allowed between each Heat.

19. When a Race is proposed to be run between the Heats, the order to saddle for it will be given ten minutes after the last Jockey is weighed; but should such Race seem likely to occupy more time than the half hour, any owner of a Horse engaged in the preceding Heat, is at liberty to object to the same.

20. The Jockeys are entitled to weigh in the order in which they came in and if a Horse leaves the weighing enclosure before his Jockey is weighed, nothing which may be upon him when he leaves the enclosure shall be allowed for in the weight.

21. After the order for Saddling has been given, five minutes are allowed to bring the Horses out, and they must take their places without delay; the Steward or person appointed to start them leaving out any Horse that may not have come up.

22. The order in which the Horses are to start, if to be previously determined by lot, except in the case of a race for heats, when, after the first heat the Horses will take their places in the order in which they are placed in the preceding heat.

Changes and Deviations.

24. In case of unfavorable weather, the Stewards have the power to postpone the Races, and in such cases all bets on Races for public money must stand.

25. No other deviation from original terms of Races for public money will be allowed, even though the parties concerned agree to it.

Foul Rulings.

26. If any change takes place in private Sweepstakes or Matches with the exception of the change of the day with in the week, as specified in the 26th Rule for horse racing in general, all bets made before the alteration shall be void.

27. The 54th Rule of the Jockey Club is modified, as it was in all probability intended to apply to a straight course, and the Stewards will consider that only to be cross or jostle which shall in any way impede the progress of a Competitor; but no Jockey will be justified "in crossing the path of the Horse behind him" unless he be at least "two full lengths" a head, or "preventing a Horse coming up" on either side by a to the one or the other so as to shut such a Horse out after he has fairly established his position on either side.

If in running for any race, a horse shall cross another, such horse, and every horse the same owner or in which he shall have a share, running in the same race shall be disqualified from winning the race, and if such cross or jostle shall be proved to have happened through the foul ruling of the jockey, he shall be disqualified from again riding at Madras, or shall be punished by fine or suspension for a time as the Stewards shall think fit.

Subscriptions and Course Repairs.

28. No horse will be allowed to start on the Madras course whose owner has not subscribed "five gold-mohurs" for the current season to the general funds of the races. In confederacies each confederate must pay that sum.

29. Every horse trained on the Madras course, to pay 8 rupees, and all winners of plate, purse, match, or sweepstakes, to pay one gold-mohur; a week's training will subject a horse to the first of these charges.

Disputes.

30. All disputes will be settled by the stewards, and their decision shall be final, but either party shall be entitled to refer his case to a Meeting of the Stewards, specially convened for that purpose by notice to every

Steward present in Madras; such notice to be accompanied by a written statement of his case; should he desire it, or if the dispute of such a nature that it must be decided on the spot, so as to admit of the race going on, then he shall be entitled to as full a Meeting of the Stewards as can be convened at the time.

3.. Any jockey who shall be proved to the satisfaction of the Stewards to have broken his agreement with his Master, shall be disqualified for again riding in a race or training on the Madras course, for such period as the Stewards may determine, and such disqualification shall not be removed without the consent of the Master, notified in writing to the Secretary. In order to facilitate the investigation of complaints against jockeys for breach of agreement, the general adoption of written agreements is strongly recommended to the notice of owners of horses—Madras Athenæum, Nov 10.—Hurkaru, November 24, 1840.

SECUNDERABAD RACES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE MADRAS SPECTATOR.

My dear Mr. Editor—I hope you will find room for the Secunderabad Races, got up in a hurry, and consequently not on a very extensive scale. It thus happened, that those who had not good horses on the spot, were unable to procure them from a distance, which of course had the effect of checking sport.

15th October, 1840.

1st Race—For all Arab Horses, Heats one Mile, carrying 10 stone, entrance Rupees 50, with 300 Rupees to be added from the Fund, winners of 1 Race to carry 7 lbs extra, of 2 Races 10 lbs and of more 12 lbs.

Lord Jocelyn's ch h S. X.
The Confederate's g. a. h. Crazy.
Mr Graham's b. a. h. Phæton.

Time 1st Heat..... 2 2
2d do..... 2 1

1st Heat—The Phæton was too heavy for Crazy and S. X. and he drew after 1st Heat, betwixt Crazy and S. X. Both Horses started and went at their last pace and cheek by jowl. Crazy tried the perpendicular at distance, but His Lordship's Horse had his best by foremost and came in a length and a half, to the astonishment of the beholders and the surprise of the confederates.

2d Heat—At starting S. X. plunged fearfully, but was ridden manfully by his jockey, an officer of this station—both Horses off at once, and finked together all the way round, Crazy again came to the whip, but my Lord's horse was to the front and overthrew the confederacy.

2d Race—A Purse of 250 Rupees for all Gallowses 13 3 and under. Heats one Mile to carry 8 stone 10 lbs, entrance Rupees 35.

Mr Morris, Bolter ——— drawn.
The Confederate's g. a. h. Mischief.
McO'Grady's b. a. g. Lightfoot.

Mischief won this race in a canter, time not taken.

We learn that Mischief was entered and brought in a lottery, under another name at the last races here, and that before starting he was privately named Mischief at last races—Query—Is he distanced?

3d Race—The Walter Stakes of 40 Rs each, with 200 Rs from the Fund for all horses, weights 11 stone.

once round the course. Winners of one race 1st day to carry 7 lbs extra, English horses to carry 1 stone, mares and geldings allowed 3 lbs.

The Confederate's g. a. g. Daddy.
Mr Graham's b. s. h. Redoubt.

Daddy won this race easy—time not taken.

We regret to observe that the betting on this race gave rise to a great deal of discussion. Thus A offer to take 5 to 1 that Redoubt is distanced—B gives the 5 to 1—after the race A claims the bet (Daddy did not near distance Redoubt) as Redoubt formerly ran under another name, and produces a book of rules to the astonishment of 9 10ths of the meeting. A bets on a certainty, B is ignorant of the last rule—is it a bubble bet? Just justification ex æquo—we fear this affair is likely to put a stop to future sport, a sport cultivated and advanced by a Sovereign (Queen Elizabeth) for the purpose of improving the horses of our island—the matchless animals we boast have thus in a measure their origin.

2d Day, 17th October 1840.

A Purse of Rupees 200 or all horses, weight fur in chew, 14 hands to carry 9 stone. Heats ½ mile.

Mr Graham's b. a. h. Phæton, drawn.
Mr Roke's loan b. a. h. China Aster, 9 to 7 lbs.
The Confederate's g. a. h. Mischief 8 to 7 lbs.

Lord Jocelyn's g. a. b. Did he do it 2 drawn after the 2d Heat.

This race was a beauty. Off at score and whip-snap, Did he do it, could not do it, China Aster stuck close and seemed on Mischief bent, but Mischief ran a length and a half.

2d Heat seemed like the 1st until about 3 lengths from the post, China Aster's jockey near ½ a length behind with exquisite precision and a well timed cut, showed the loan's horse clean in, we have seldom witnessed a prettier piece of horsemanship. Did he do it no where.

3d Heat—China Aster showed himself to be staunch and did the Mischief, winning about 2½ lengths.

2d Race—A Purse of 150 for all Ponies 13 hands and under, entrance 10 Rs. catch weights. Heats ½ mile.

Mr Graham's ch. a. h. Bukhtear.
Mr Roke's g. p. Comet.
Mr Kevin's ch. h. Unknown.
Mr Roke's g. a. p. Blackey, drawn.

The Unknown won the 1st and 2d Heats well, and is a first rate Pony, he content that he has now an appropriate name that Bukhtear should be changed to Cum-bukht. Comet is a good pony (they are all good ponies) but he will never shew his fiery tail to one unknown.

While we apologise for being personal, we still cannot out notice the rider of the Unknown, Master Ryve's 5 stone—he is one of the neatest hands on horseback we have seen, and for a youth shewed more judgement than we could have anticipated from riber years, for had he not used his whip just in the nick of time, Bukhtear would have been fortunate in a race, as he is in a name.

3d Race—A Handicap Purse for all horses that have run during the meeting. Entrance Rupees 30—Heats ½ mile.

Mr. Graham's b. a. h. Dodman.
The Confederate's g. a. h. Duddy.

Daddy won the 1st Heat so easily, that Mr. Graham's jockey did not up and be doing. Again thus ends the races for public money. We had a few matches which the Confederates won, we were honoured with a few ladies, but though few they were a host to themselves, long life to them, and may their influence induce those who were absent to follow their social example.

Your's truly,

ENTIRE NOUS.

Secunderabad, Oct. 18, 1840—Hurkara, November 6, 1840

SUPREME COURT.

FOURTH TERM.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1840.

(Before Sir E. Ryan, Sir J. P. Grant, and

ROGERS v. REYNOLDS.

Mr. Clarke showed cause against a rule for judgment as in case of a non-suit, and said he was perfectly ready to go to trial if the other side would allow them to use an attested copy of a letter, the original of which was in England. He did not see what objection they could have to this, as his Attorney has been called on to admit this very letter by the other side. If they refused, he must apply to the Court for time to get the letter from England.

The Advocate General was not disposed to accede to the proposition. The plaintiffs Messrs. Hamilton had thought proper to arrest an officer on the eve of his embarkation for foreign service, (the China Expedition) a party who really was not indebted to them, but who had put his name on a Bill for the accommodation of a brother officer, as they well knew. He had pleaded that time had been given to the original party and that therefore he was discharged. He (the Advocate-General) could not consent to receive a copy of the letter in question. They ought to have known they had the necessary evidence before proceeding to an arrest. They must have been aware that they had not the original letter, for the copy of it in their books, which it appeared they had, would otherwise have been quite unnecessary. His client was with his regiment in China, and he (the Advocate-General) as he had no means of communicating with him could not consent to any delay.

Ryan, C. J.—This rule must be made absolute. The defendant has pleaded that he is discharged, time having been given to the drawers. It has been said that there were two instruments, which makes the evidence set forth in the plaintiff's affidavit after all, of a doubtful nature, as to which the letter spoken of may really apply. Issue was joined by the plaintiff and he ought to have been prepared with his evidence after arresting an officer proceeding on active service. The defendant gave bail and that bail is entitled to be discharged: plaintiffs proceeding summarily and should have been prepared: they must now commence their action denovo whenever they can find jurisdiction against the party.

Rule made absolute.—Englishman, November 3.—[Hurkara, November 4, 1840,

JOYKISSEN BYSACK VERSUS RADAKISSEN AND OTIFERS.

A point of practice was decided in this case, upon a motion by one of the defendants to enlarge the time for publication. In July last an order was made that publication should pass peremptorily, and without further order on the 7th of October, then next ensuing. On the 29th of September, another order was obtained for a month's further time to examine witnesses. The present motion still further to enlarge publication now came on after the lapse of the month. The question was whether it was not too late. The Examiner had certified that publication had passed, but upon the application of the other party, he gave another certificate correcting the former one.

The Advocate General and Mr. Clarke contended that the second certificate was correct. The order of July was opened by the subsequent order of September, and publication could not afterwards pass without a specific motion to that effect. If the Court had intended otherwise, the peremptory clause would have been introduced into the order obtained in September.

Mr. Prinsep for other defendants neither opposed nor consented to the application, but claimed costs for his client.

Mr. Morton for the complainant opposed the motion and contended that it was too late and that publication had already passed under the order of July. The subsequent enlargement of the time for the examination of witnesses, only suspended the operation of the order during the time so granted, and when the time had elapsed, publication passed at once by virtue of the peremptory clause.

The Court held that publication had not passed: and they enlarged the time until the first day of next term upon payment of the costs of the application.

Order accordingly.

IN THE GOODS OF WILLIAMS.

Mr. Clarke applied for probate of the will of the deceased; he stated that the deceased in his last illness had been erroneously believed to be insane, and had been sent to Mr. Beardsmore's Lunatic Asylum. He had the certificates, however, of medical men, shewing that deceased was perfectly sane, and that he had been labouring under severe diarrhoea, which was the cause of his death.

Mr. Smith, of Mackie and Co.'s, was examined to prove, that he went to Mr. Beardmore's and conveyed the deceased from thence to Dr. Raleigh's. The medical certificates shewed that the supposition of his insanity was erroneous.

The Court granted probate.

The Insolvent Court sits to-morrow, and the causes on the common law board for to-morrow, stand over until Tuesday.—Hurkaru, November 6, 1840.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 9.

CHUNDROOCHAM SEIN V. CHARLES MACKENZIE.

Mr. Morton moved for a rule to shew cause, why the Sub-treasurer of the East India Company should not pay over to the Sheriff the sum of Rs. 2550, being the arrears of salary due to the defendant, extended in the hands of the Sub-treasurer by the Sheriff, under a writ of factus in the above cause. The only difficulty in this case was, that the defendant had died after the issuing of the writ but before the seizure. It was apprehended, however, that the seizure was good nevertheless as the death of the defendant after judgment and execution in no wise abated the cause, and the writ might be executed upon goods in the hands of the personal representative.

The Court enquired, whether administration had been applied for by any party.

Mr. Morton said, that it did not appear by the grounds, but he believed, that in point of fact no administration had yet been applied for. If there was a personal representative, the order nisi might be served on him also.

The Advocate General, as amicus curiæ, observed that the plaintiff himself, as judgment creditor, might take out administration in default of other applicants. It might be dangerous otherwise to decide the question to whom the property belonged. Government had no interest in the matter one way or another, and were ready to pay to any one making out a good title.

Ryan, C. J. Upon this application, the question of who is entitled to the property would not be decided at all. It is only, that the money be paid into the hands of the Sheriff. We will grant a rule nisi.

Rule nisi granted.

HURROMONEY DABER V. JAMES YOUNG.

This was a demurrer to a plaint.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Morton appeared for the demurrer. No one appeared for the plaintiff.

Demurrer allowed.—Hurkaru, November 10, 1840.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 11, 1840.

JOHN STORM V. GREENAETH MULLICK.

The Advocate General and Mr. Clarke appeared for the plaintiff.

The action was undefended, and the plaintiff had a verdict.

BUDDINATH GHOSAL V. J. A. DEVERILL.

This was an action of trespass for the meane profits of 600 biggahs of land in the Pergunnah of Mouhar Sahie in the Zillah of Burdwan, alleged by the plaintiff to appertain to his factory of Seetahatee. The damages were laid at 18,000 rupees, the alleged value of the indigo plant cut and carried away.

Mr. Clarke and Mr. Nott appeared for the plaintiff.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Morton for defendant.

The trial of this cause occupied the Court all day, and was not concluded when the Court rose.

Adjourned.

This cause will be proceeded with to-morrow, and the Court will then take contested motions, but no causes.

The above cause stands No. 8 on the list. The common law board will be proceeded with on Friday.—Hurkaru, November 12, 1840.

THURSDAY, NOV. 12.

BUDDINATH GHOSAL V. J. A. DEVERILL.

The trial of this cause was resumed this morning.

The plaintiff's witnesses proved, that the 600 biggahs of land in question, were in the possession of the plaintiff up to the year 1837, when the alleged trespass was committed. The native witnesses swore that about 24,000 bundles of Indigo plant were cut, and that the produce was about 90 maunds. Several European gentlemen, however, who were called as witnesses, stated that 8 or 10 bundles per biggah were to be considered an average produce. Mr. Robert Thomas was called to prove, that the Indigo of the Seetahatee factory in the year, 1837, fetched 183 rupees per maund all round.

The Advocate General, in addressing the Court for the defence, said, that he should, first, give evidence upon the question of title, and endeavour to prove that the alleged trespass was no trespass at all;—and secondly, upon the question of damages (if any) that the amount Rs. 18,000 the alleged value of 90 maunds claimed by the plaintiff was most absurdly over-rated. Upon the question of the title, the judgment in ejectment no doubt prevented the defendant from absolutely denying all title in the plaintiff, but he was still at liberty to shew that he held under the plaintiff. The case was simply this. In 1834, the plaintiff granted a pottah of these 600 biggahs to one Kishnoosunder Ghose, who cultivated them for two years, and upon his death, his widow assigned the pottah to the defendant along with the factory of Shreeharaspore, for the sum of Sa. Rs. 8,000. This pottah was afterwards lost, but not until it had been proved in the Court of the Magistrate of Beerbhoom. The subscribing witnesses were both unfortunately dead, but the defendant would be able to give full and satisfactory secondary evidence. As to the quantum of damages, the Court were not to take the net profits of the manufactured Indigo,—supposing that a verdict was found for the plaintiff. If a party was accused of cutting and carrying away wheat, would the Court go into the inquiry how many loaves of bread it would yield; or in trover for a bar of steel, would the value be estimated by the quantity of needles or watchsprings into which it might be manufactured. The value of the indigo per bundle, and the number of bundles produced, would furnish the proper criterion. Besides, in the present case, it would be proved, that the defendant sowed the seed, and wrecked the plant, and the expenses of cultivation therefore ought at all events to be deducted.

The defendant's case was then gone into, but in attempting to prove the potliah, the witnesses broke down, there being no satisfactory proof of the loss. The valued to whom the potliah was entrusted, was called, and said, that it had been stolen along with other papers, but it appeared, that he had only heard this from his son, who was at Moonshedabad.

Ryan, C. J. — Unless the loss is clearly proved, you cannot go into secondary evidence at all. Besides the defendant has at best, a very uphill case, for although according to the recent decision of Doe v. Hoadart, 2 Crom. Mees. and Rossie, a judgment in ejectment, is not conclusive of title in an action for mesne profits, unless pleaded in estoppel, it is very strong evidence.

The defendant's counsel then abandoned the first part of their case and confined their evidence to the reduction of damages.

Mr. T. P. Morell, called as a witness, stated, that he knew the land in question and considered that 7 or 8 bundles per bighah was a fair average produce. The year 1837, was a bad year for indigo produce in the Kishenagar and Beethoon districts. The pure of the plant in bundles might be 7 or 8 bundles per bighah. The quantity of manufactured indigo depended of course, on a great variety of circumstances. These times were high lands for that. Thirty mounds of indigo per one thousand bighahs, would probably be a fair estimate.

Some native witnesses were called to prove that Mr. Deyrall sowed the land in 1837, without opposition. Mr. D. also sowed the land in the following year, but Buddenanth Ghosaul having recovered in ejectment in the meanwhile, reaped the crop.

Mr. Clarke was heard in reply.

Sir F. Ryan, C. J. — The only question is the quantum of damages. I am inclined to think, that the plaintiff might be entitled to recover, in an action for cutting and carrying away indigo plants, not the mere value of the plant, but the value of the manufactured indigo. But here the defendant sowed the seed, and although an unauthorized sowing of the seed on another man's property, does not justify the trespass in cutting the plant, it certainly goes to mitigation of damages, where at least the party was allowed to sow without molestation. We do not think, therefore, that the plaintiff can be entitled to the value of the manufactured indigo, without deduction. Upon Mr. Morell's estimate, we find the value Rs. 660, taking the value of the manufactured indigo less the expenses; and Rs. 600, taking the value of the plant at 8 bundles for the rupee, and 8 bundles produced by each bighah. The verdict will be for the former sum.

Damages Rs. 660.

The common law board will be proceeded with to-morrow. — Hurkaru, New, 13, 1840.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 15.

ANDERSON T. BURKE.

This was an action for board and lodging, and other items of expenditure. The defendant pleaded a tender of Rs. 255.

Mr. Clark and Mr. Sandes appeared for the plaintiff.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Morton for the defence.

The Court intimated their opinion upon the plaintiff's own evidence, that the sum pleaded as having been contemplated, fully covered the whole claim.

The only question then remaining was, whether the tender was established. The sum in question was taken by a native writer of the defendant's attorney, with a letter from his master, in which the sum was described as 'the full amount of the claim,' and a 'receipt for the same' was asked for. The plaintiff first took the money and then returned it.

Mr. Clark contended, that this was not a legal tender, and cited a recent case from 8 Carlington and Payne's Reports. The expressions in the letter had the effect of making the tender conditional upon giving a receipt in full for the claim, and it was clear that a conditional offer was not a legal tender.

The Advocate-General said, the receipt was not made a condition precedent. The case of Cole v. Blazie, 12 Prace 174, showed that the demand of a receipt did not vitiate the tender, unless an objection was made at the time on that account.

The Court held the tender not sufficient, because if the plaintiff had taken the money upon such offer, he might have precluded himself from suing for more. The mere asking for a receipt was nothing, unless objected to, but the defendant had no right to require a receipt in full. The action, however, was one which ought not to have been brought into this Court, and their Lordship's would only give a verdict for the amount tendered and paid into Court, and no costs.

Verdict accordingly.

GILFORDH DOBS V. RAMCHUNDER BUTTERJEFF.

This was an action of trespass for pulling down a hut and doing other injury.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Morton, appeared for the plaintiff.

The defendant's appeared in person, and cross-examined the witnesses themselves.

The Court found a verdict for the plaintiff, with damages fifty rupees.

Verdict accordingly.

BUDDINAUTH SAHA V. THOMAS BRACKEN.

This and the two next causes are tied up by a rule nisi.

SUBRAMANIAM SHAW v. MUDDEMOLHUN COWAR AND ANOTHER.

Mr. Morton opened the pleadings.

Mr. Clarke stated the case for the plaintiffs. The action was brought to recover the value of about 1200 maunds of Moonlighter rice, sold to the Cookee of the defendant's in Cuttack, 1845. The contract was made through a Duloh, but the rice was weighed in the presence of the defendant, Mudidemolhun, and delivered to his friend. Part payment was afterwards made by Mudidemolhun; but the defendants now refused to pay the balance due and it was believed that they intended to set up as a defence that they were not the principals in the Cookee to which the rice was sold. The question, however, was, to whom was credit given.

The Duloh and other witnesses proved the circumstances opened. The witnesses, however, stated, that the Cookee was called the Cookee of Kintnodan Cowar and Tregonokant Paul. The defendants were the persons who really carried it on, and the parties whose names were used, were not known personally and never appeared. In short the Cookee was carried on by the defendants benamies: at all events the contract in this case was with them, and the credit was given to them. But it further appeared that the Cookee, in the name of the plaintiff, was also benamie, for his father Beemchunder Shaw, the plaintiff himself being stated by one witness to be a minor and living far from Calcutta.

The Advocate-General for the defence, submitted that he was entitled to a verdict. The action had been brought against the wrong parties. At all events, the plaintiff was in a dilemma; for if it was improper to bring the action against the nominal proprietors, it must be equally improper to bring it by the nominal proprietor.

Mr. Clarke said, the question was with whom the contract was made, and to whom the credit was given. The case was different altogether as regarded plaintiffs and defendants. The person with whom, or in whose name, though having no beneficial interest, may be, such as a mere agent; while the persons to whom credit is given, though purchasing in the name of another, may be sued.

The Court said, that their impression was, that the plaintiff could not recover, — not that wrong persons were made defendants, but that a wrong person was made plaintiff. The Court must deal with benamie contracts uniformly. There would be a verdict for the defendants, with liberty, however, to the plaintiff to move, if his Counsel upon looking into the question should deem it advisable.

Verdict accordingly.

The above case stands No. 16 on the list. The common law board will be proceeded with on Tuesday—Harkaru, November 14, 1840.

MONDAY, NOV. 16.

BUDDINATH SABA v. THOMAS BRACKEN,

Mr. Prinsep and Mr. Morton showed cause against the rule just obtained by the defendant to file additional pleas. There was no precedent for such an application when the record had been made up, and the cause stood for trial in the cause paper. It might have been different if the application had been merely to amend a plea; but the Court were here asked to let the defendant in to add new pleas, and to raise a new issue altogether. But further, there were affidavits of merits on the part of the defendant, and there was such affidavit on the part of the plaintiff. If the statements in the plaintiff's affidavit were true, the defendant had no case at all, and it would be unjust to allow him to file the required pleas. For all that appeared to the contrary, he might be incurring utterly useless delay and expense, and the whole might be a mere oppressive proceeding. In applications to set aside judgments snapped up by default, or, indeed, after demurrer argued, the Courts invariably required an affidavit of merits.

The Advocate-General in support of the rule, urged that the necessity for the application clearly arose from accidental error, and that the consequences of not allowing the amendment, might be to prevent the merits from being tried at all. He cited an authority to show that amendment of a plea had been allowed after it was joined; and there was no reason why, under special circumstances, the Court could not equally allow new pleas to be added. As to merits, he cited a case in which the Court allowed even a sham plea to be amended without an affidavit of merits. This was after demurrer filed, and set down in the paper, but before argument. Besides, an affidavit of merits might be put in even now.

The Court looked into the authorities to see whether there was any instance in which new issues had been allowed to be raised after the record had been made up; but they could find none, and they were, therefore, clearly of opinion, that the rule must be discharged. The only cases that could be cited, were either cases in which the record was not made up, or, if made up, in which the application was only to amend recorded pleadings, and not to raise new issues. If the latter were allowed, it would introduce the utmost confusion into the records of the Court.

Rule discharged.

Two demureurs entered for to-day, stand over.

The common law board will be proceeded with to-morrow.—Harkaru, November 17, 1840.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 17.

SHOYRUCHUNDER SHAW v. THOMAS BRACKEN, ESQ.,
SHERIFF, &c.

In this cause, and in the causes of Buddinath Shah against the Sheriff, and the same plaintiffs and others against the Sheriff, the parties came to a compromise, and it was agreed that a verdict for nominal damages should be entered for the plaintiffs in each, the goods seized to be restored.

Mr. Prinsep and Mr. Morton for the plaintiff, to the respective verdicts.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Clarke for the defence in each.—

Verdicts accordingly.

SITTAYND SABA v. MUDDEMOLHUN COWAR AND OTHERS.

Mr. Clarke (with whom was Mr. Morton) for the plaintiff, stated, that this was an action to recover value of sundry bags of moonahy. Rice sold to the defendants. In an action tried last Friday between another plaintiff and the same defendants, the action had been defeated by the unexpected discovery, that the plaintiff was only the nominal proprietor of the cootee carried on in his name, and the court held (though they gave leave to move) that the substantial proprietor ought to be the plaintiff. The same objection would not arise in the present case, and it was presumed that the defendants would resort to the defence at which they first aimed in the former case, to wit, that the rice was sold to a cootee carried on in other names. This, however, was clearly no defence at all, if the credit was given to the defendants, and they were substantially the buyers.

The witnesses called for the plaintiff, proved the sale and delivery of the rice in question. The orders to the broker had been given by the defendant, Alukdemohun and the rice weighed in his presence. Payments too were made by him from time to time. The cootee which he managed was carried on under the name of "Kisindon Cuvar and Treganochura Paul;" but no such persons ever appeared at the cootee, the defendants alone being seen there. The two persons whose names were used in the firm, were believed to be minors and related to the defendants.

The Advocate General appeared for the defendant and upon this evidence admitted, that there must be a verdict for the plaintiff.

The Court accordingly gave a verdict for the plaintiff for Rs. 886, the amount claimed.

MATAN DEEN V. RUNJEET SING AND OTHERS.

This was an action of trespass and assault. The defendants had appeared as defended in person, and the cause was set down as defended in person.

The Advocate-General (with whom was Mr. Clarke appeared for the plaintiff, and observed in limine, that it appeared that the cause was set down as defended in person. There was no attorney upon record, and yet he now learned that the defendants were defended by attorney and counsel!

Mr Morton said that he appeared as Counsel for paupers. Since the plea filed the defendants had he admitted to defend in forma pauperum, and of course the pauper attorney and counsel appeared.

The Advocate-General said that he was instructed that no order had been obtained.

The order, however, was produced, and handed in.

The Advocate-General. We have had no notice of it until this moment. The plaintiff at least should have had notice, for he ought to have an opportunity of opposing, or at all events of exercising his discretion whether he will proceed against paupers. Besides it was to be observed that it was extremely unusual if not unprecedented, to allow parties the benefit of the pauper establishment in actions of trespass, or to allow it to defendants in any case.

Ryan, C. J.—It certainly is unusual; but the court may in its discretion allow the benefit of the pauper establishment in such cases. The plaintiff ought to have had notice, however, in some shape before the very day of trial. All we can do at present, is to let the cause stand over, for such application as the plaintiff may be advised to make. It may be taken in the sitting, as of the term, Blands over.

Hutcheon, November 18, 1846.

Monday, Nov. 18.

ANDERSON V. DUTT.

This was a rule calling upon the plaintiff to shew cause why he should not discontinue the action upon payment by defendant of Rs. 200, or why defendant should not bear liberty to pay 200 rupees into Court, and if the plaintiff proceeded further in the action and recovered no larger sum, why the defendant should not be discharged from future accruing costs.

Some discussion took place between the Counsel, but no terms could be agreed upon.

Mr Lenth then proceeded to shew cause. This application at all events must be discharged; there is no precedent, whatever for such a motion, and the Court have no power to grant it. The Court cannot compel a plaintiff to accept a compromise and discontinue his action; nor is this a proper action; or a proper stage, in which to pay money into Court.

Mr. Morton was about to argue on the same side and to shew that the application was irregular, and must be discharged with costs, whatever opinion might be entertained as to the sufficiency of the compensation offered. But

The Court said it was unnecessary, as they were satisfied the rule must be discharged unless some precedent could be shewn to them. But they intimated their strong opinion that it would be highly advisable for the plaintiff to accept the terms.

The Advocate-General thought he could satisfy the Court, that they had power to make the rule absolute. At all events under the circumstances it ought not to be discharged with costs.

Sir E. RYAN. You would have to pay costs, even if the rule were made absolute by consent. But this we will say, that unless other facts appear at the trial, we shall give less damages than you offer, and it may be a question with us whether the plaintiff may not be made to pay you costs of the trial, so that you may after all gain by the motion.

The Advocate-General, however argued in support of the rule.

The Court discharged the rule, as irregular, but said that the costs of the application should abide the event of the trial.

Rule discharged.

* May we be allowed respectfully to observe that this is intended forcing a compromise upon a plaintiff if irregular application is made, surely the Court ought not to encourage the case or entertain the question of merits at all, but dismiss it at once with costs in the usual manner. The opposite party often shows cause against a palpably irregular application on the mere ground of the irregularity, and therefore (as here) puts in no affidavit of merits.

We learn that the plaintiff conceiving that the merits have been so entirely prejudged upon the argument of this admittedly irregular motion, declines to bring his cause on and has instructed his Attorney to strike it out of the board!

GOVERNMENT LAW & CHANCERY DEPARTMENT.

ANDERSON & DUTT.

The Advocate-General showed cause against the rule absolutely for the plaintiff requiring the Sub-treasurer to pay the Sheriff the arrears of salary due to the defendant extended under a writ of fieri facias. The affidavit of the Sub-treasurer stated that the salary was not considered due and payable until the salary bill was audited. There was in fact, no specific sum in his hands. Arrears of salary had been extended, no doubt in former cases; but it was only when the amount was admitted to be due. There was another question behind, namely, whether the arrears was good after the death of the party, and without bringing any personal representative before the Court.

Mr. Leith mentioned, this morning, that the plaintiff had elected to accept the terms of compromise offered on the part of the defendant, and so strongly recommended by the Court yesterday.

HIDE AND OTHERS & CULLEN.

This was the case, in which the mandamus, issued by the Court of Chancery in England, directed certain witnesses to be examined by the Supreme Court, and their depositions to be recorded and returned.

Mrs. Pennington was, this morning, examined upon several interrogatories, by the Advocate-General.

OREE KITTIO DOSS V. T. BRACKEN, ESQ.

Mr. Clarke opened the pleadings.

Mr. Morton contra. Our affidavits expressly charge that arrears of salary were due, (more than sufficient to cover this demand when the seizure was made. This is not positively denied at all; for the affidavit of the Sub-treasurer merely shews, that the Government do not consider the salary as due until the bill has been audited. But the private arrangements between Government and their servants, are not to affect the rights and claims of third parties. The money was, at least, constructively in the hands of the Sub-treasurer as the agent of Government. There must be some recognised representative of Government, and a seizure in his hands is quasi a seizure in the hands of the East India Company. We can scarcely serve the writ of nuces claim upon the Governor General! The Sub-treasurer is the undoubted agent for this purpose. Upon the second point,

Mr. Pinsep, for the plaintiff, stated that the action was brought against the Sheriff to try the right to certain dwelling-houses seized by him. The houses were seized at the suit of Freeman My Misserrany Doss, another Samsu Sudda and another. It would be proved that the house was the house of the plaintiff, and that the defendants in the cause in which the writ was issued, and the property seized, had no interest whatever therein, although one was the mother and the other the grandmother of the plaintiff, and both certainly resided in the house. The defendant had pleaded the general issue, and also a plea, denying the house to be the property of the plaintiff.

Sir E. Ryan. The Court are not satisfied upon the first. It is only an ascertained debt, that can be seized under the Charter; and until the salary bill is audited, no debt is due. The Court held before that, if the debt is disputed, they cannot try the fact in this shape, whether it is due or not. The rule must be discharged with Rule discharged.

CHI HOLM V. FOLSY, EXECUTRIX.

This was a special demurrer to a plea of pleas adin, abstract preter, in an action upon a bond debt. Beside the special plea of the general issue in the whole plea. The objection was, that the special plea was not pleaded in bar of the further maintenance of the action.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Leith for the demurrer, cited the case of Upward v. Knight, 5 Bingham, New Ca, and 7 Scott, as expressly in point.

Mr. Pinsep contra, urged that the meaning of the plea rule must be, that if the whole pleadings did not go in bar of the entire action, they must then be pleaded in bar of the further maintenance. Here there was a plea in bar of the whole action, though the special plea was only as to part. The mission of the actorem non in such a case was at least mere form. The principle and reason of the rule were entirely in favor of the plea.

The Court held the plea insufficient on the ground of the decision cited. The rule dispensing with the allegation of actorem non, only applied to pleas in bar of the whole action. Pleas to part of the action were subject to the old rule requiring the allegation in all cases. The defendant might amend on payment of costs.

Demurrer allowed.

The Sittings' Board will be taken to-morrow.

[Harkara, November 19, 1849.]

Witnesses for the plaintiff were called. The house was described in the plaint merely as situated in Danatala Gully. It appeared that there were two houses there, and that one was occupied by the plaintiff and his family, and the other by tenants who paid rent to him. The seizure was made by merely affixing a seal to the outer doors. There was no entry into the house, and no further proceedings were proved to have been taken subsequently to the seizure. Some evidence was loosely given of a Bengallee witness having been paid upon one of the doors, but it did not appear very distinctly which.

Mr. Pinsep apprehended that it was sufficient if he proved a trespass as to the house occupied by plaintiff, though there might be no trespass as to the tenanted house to which this plaintiff might bring an action.

The Advocate-General (with him Mr. Morton). That is not so clear. The decision of the Court applies to either house, and as the plaintiff has not now assigned we may apply our justification to either also.

Sir Edward Ryan. — There is another objection. It has been held that mere sealing the outer door is no trespass.

The Advocate-General was aware of the cases, and had intended to cite them. One was Sonomoney Doss v. Higginson Sheriff in March 1835, and another about the same time, Cardno v. Kinto. The latter was a replevin action.

Mr. Pinsep said those were mere nil prius decisions, and he hoped the Court would at least give him leave to move. It was important that the question should be formally argued and decided.

Sir E. Ryan.—The decision in the case in 1835, was a verdict that the commanders of vessels are not liable for the extra time unnecessarily occupied by the Steamer herself, whatever may be the strict letter of the bye-law. The pleadings in this case have, by consequence, been narrowed to a very simple issue—the question of improper and unreasonable delay; and it had been mutually agreed that no technical objections shall be taken, but that the question shall be brought fairly before the Court upon its merits.

Mr. Prinsep.—The present case does not involve property of sufficient importance to incur the expense, unless your Lordships give leave to move to enter a verdict. Were it otherwise, I should certainly be disposed to move and argue the question. As the Court refuses leave, it is useless to go further in proof of title.

Nonsuit.

The case of Carr, Tagore and Co. v. Alexander and Co. will be taken first to-morrow.

So many causes have been postponed and transposed in the Sittings' Board, that the whole order is thrown into some confusion. It will be advisable for the witnesses in all the cases (not specially fixed) to be ready to-morrow.—Hurkaru, November 20, 1840.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 20.

FOURTH TERM OF 1840.

CARR, TAGORE AND CO. v. ALEXANDER, TURNER AND CO.

Mr. Morton opened the pleadings.

The Advocate-General for the plaintiffs, said he should abandon the second count of his declaration (merely the account stated) and that the issue then would be on the other side, and his learned friend would begin.

Mr. Clarke (with whom was Mr. Leith) then stated the case for the defendants. This is an action brought by the plaintiffs, as Secretaries of the Steam Tug Association to recover the sum of Rs. 1,800, being the hire of a Steamer employed in towing the ship Larkins to Sea in September last. The Steamer was employed four days, and the sum claimed was at the rate of Rs. 400 for each day and Rs. 200 for the return day, according to the printed rules and regulations annexed to the agreement. On the part of the defendants, it is alleged that there was very unnecessary delay on the part of the Steamer, the Andrew Henderson, in leaving Cooly Bazar on the morning of the 29th of September,—that about two hours were lost in taking the Larkins in tow, and that in consequence of the loss of these two hours, a difference of a whole day arose in the return time of the vessel. In consequence of the two hours being lost, the Larkins was unable to proceed further than Fuhah the first day, and Colpo the second, whereas they might otherwise have reached Colpo the first day, and Keedger the second, and got out to sea on the third. The defendants, as consignees of the Larkins, accordingly declined to pay more than the sum of rupees, 1,400 being the amount for three days and the return day. This sum has been tendered and paid into Court. The residue, which is the sum in dispute, is trifling in itself, but a principle is involved important both to the Tug Association and the mercantile community. If the delay is clearly proved, it is hoped the Court will show by their Evidence was then gone into very fully.

The Advocate-General addressed the Court for the plaintiffs. After some witnesses had been examined for the plaintiffs, Mr. Clarke was called upon to reply.

Sir E. Ryan, C. J. There must a verdict for the plaintiffs. The only issue raised upon the pleadings, is whether there was unreasonable delay; we have nothing to do with the question whether that delay (if proved) led to all the results stated. If we had to consider the latter question we should have thought it extremely doubtful upon the defendants' own evidence, whether the single half-hour (for it is that at the utmost) alleged to have been lost, really could have caused the loss of an entire day. However, the only question here is, was there such delay and negligence as to preclude the plaintiffs from recovering their full claim. We think, certainly none. Even upon the defendants' evidence, it was an extremely weak case, for the whole rested upon whether the Steamer was bound to cast off her buoy and go out in the middle of the stream, when she saw the Larkins coming down the river, and before the vessel came to anchor. Upon the "evidence," there is contrary evidence. The plaintiffs' witnesses say that it is sometimes done, and sometimes not done, and that it is not customary in the "fishes;" and even the witnesses of the defendants do not shew that the Steamer is absolutely bound to do this. But further, it does not at all appear that under the circumstances (strong tides, with ebb tide) any advantage would be gained, or time saved by adopting one mode in preference to the other. It is impossible to say that there was any improper delay whatever, and the defendants, therefore, have failed in establishing their plea.

Verdicts for the plaintiffs.

The common law hour will be resumed on Monday.—Hurkaru, November 21, 1840.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1840.

CARR, TAGORE AND CO. v. ALEXANDER, TURNER AND CO.

The following is a detail of the evidence given in the above cause which was briefly reported in the Hurkaru of Saturday.

Charles Huffleagle, examined by Mr. Leith, I was on board of the Larkins on the 29th September, about 6 o'clock. The vessel was then at her moorings at Chandpaul Ghaut. I was not on board more than half an hour. The people appeared to be getting ready to weigh anchor. I then proceeded on board the steamer Andrew Henderson. The steamer was then lying at the buoy off the Fort. I did not keep my eye on the Larkins. The next time I saw her, was soon after she left her moorings. I was standing on the quarter deck, but I do not know who was with me then. The Captain (Richardson) had been standing there. I cannot say whether the officers were on board. She brought up nearly opposite the station. The tides were very strong. The Larkins anchored about a quarter of a mile ahead. I went on board the Larkins in a row boat. It was a Company's row boat. The boat took the hawser on board. I cannot say how long. Not a very long time after I saw the Larkins coming down. The steamer went immediately ahead of the Larkins; it did not appear very long. The boat was towing a stern. I was not in good health, and was going down in the Larkins for the benefit of my health. That day we reached Fullah, about sun down. The next day we reached Culpee, or the neighbourhood of Culpee. The third day we got down to Kedgee; and on the fourth day to Pilot station, near the floating light. The steamer there left the Larkins.

Cross-examined by Mr. Turton. The steamer went immediately ahead after I left in the row boat. I do not know how much time elapsed. I do not know when the steamer had her steam up that morning. I believe the steamer was getting her anchor up when they perceived the Larkins coming down. The Captain was on board, when I came on board the steamer. I think this gentleman (Mr. Roderick MacDonald) was on board when I came. There was nothing that I am aware of, to prevent the steamer from taking the Larkins in tow as soon as the latter was ready. I did not notice any thing improper or objectionable. I observed no delay or inattention. I do not recollect the ship going ashore in Garden Reach, nor the hawser breaking. About two o'clock she got ashore on Bebeo Domingo's Lump. I do not know how long she was aground. I consider it necessary for the vessel to come to an anchor before the steamer can go ahead. I am not acquainted with the mode of passing hawsers. The tides were very strong on the 29th of September. There was the ebb tide as well. The ship was lying in the stream.

Re-examined. I came down to the steamer in a beaulah. I first saw the row boat when the hawsers were passing. I do not know when it arrived. I breakfasted on board the steamer. The Larkins anchored long after we breakfasted.

By the Chief Justice. I think the hawser was put on board the row boat after the Larkins came to an anchor. I believe immediately afterwards.

John Statham, examined by Mr. Clarke. I am a Master Pilot in the Company's service. I have been in the service 25 years and a few months. I was in September Pilot on board the Larkins. The steamer is in such a position under the care of the Pilot. The Larkins was lying alongside Champaul Ghunt. The Andrew Henderson was off Cooly Bazar. I think there was one vessel between. I remember Mr. Huthugle coming on board. He proceeded to the steamer. When he left I was preparing to get under weigh. The ship was preparing. I mean, I have nothing to do with it until the ship is under steam. A message was sent to the steamer from me. The row boat took the message. The row boat immediately went. That was about eight o'clock. The row boat did not return until I anchored off Cooly Bazar. I suppose the boat ran me alongside. That was a boat which brought back Mr. Huthugle. A little before 9 o'clock, the Larkins left her moorings. She brought in off the Cooly Bazar. When I anchored the Andrew Henderson was a ber moorings. The two vessels were nearly abreast of each other. I anchored the Larkins nearly in the middle of the stream. The steamer was very near the bank. We could plainly see each other, and the persons on board. We anchored at $\frac{1}{2}$ past 9, and at $\frac{1}{2}$ past 10 the steamer came ahead. There was a delay of one hour. I was anxious to get the ship off to save my day and tide. I have had charge of many ships down the river, and for many years. I consider that there was delay and negligence. First of all by it, I consider that it would have been possible for me to have got down to Culpee the first night if it had not been for the delay. The steamer was ready as far as her steam was concerned, but she was at her moorings instead of being out in the stream ready to take me to tow. We met the flood tide that day at Rajgunge; if we had started at 10 o'clock, we should have met the tide at Budge Budge. We started at 10 minutes past eleven. It was the height of the spring tide. We anchored at sunset off Fullah. The James and Mary were just beyond. We could not get over them safely at that hour. If it had not been for the delay of the hour, I should have got over the James and Mary on that day, and then I could have anchored at Culpee. On the second day, I got to Culpee and might otherwise have anchored at Kedgee. On the third day we reached Kedgee and we might have reached the Reef Buoy if it had not been for the delay.

Cross-examined by Mr. Turton. I was for three or four years the Pilot of the Furber. I was a candidate for the Forbes after she became the property of the Fug Association. I never was a candidate for the Andrew Henderson. I made no application for it at all. I am on good terms with captain Richards. I do not know what he is towards me. I am on good terms with every one, a universal philanthropist. I had words with captain Richards, and they were not sweet words. It was about the towing of the Malcolm. (The witness at first refused to answer that question.) He called me a liar. I said he was a gentleman; I meant that he was not a gentleman. The delay on the part of the steamer was this, that they did not cast off from the lunny the instant I arrived. We lay at his mooring, he out in a hawser on board by the row boat. (The printed rules and regulations put in.) I do see there; we did not send any hawser on board, but if she had demanded hawsers, she would have had them, as there were two hawsers on deck. We did not send lines on board her. I do not consider "lines" as requisite from the vessel. I consider that the steamer should provide lines, for it is the custom for the steamers to do so. The steamer provided a hawser and line, the hawser was to tow with, and the line to haul my hawser aboard. I have a log. I have got an extract from it. I do not show the log to every one. It is in my desk at my house at Howrah. I said that it would take equal time for us to send hawsers on board, it would not take more time to do that than for the steamer to supply one hawser. The steamer ought to have provided about. I used to do so in the Furber, even in the hawsers, and in an ebullition. Of course the hawsers cannot be fastened properly without the steamer anchoring. The tide would have been favourable about 5 o'clock in morning. The sun was a little before six o'clock in evening, and there was light enough about five. I went to board the Larkins at six o'clock. I was ready for the steamer at $\frac{1}{2}$ past 9. If the ship had been hauled out at $\frac{1}{2}$ past 7, we should have been prepared for the steamer then. An accident happened to the steamer the night before. The ship got ashore for about ten minutes at Rajgunge. She did not again get ashore on that day. She got ashore on the following day a little above Hooz. There she was ashore an hour and minutes. The hawser did not break, (says a few of the hawsers did break.) The time I do not remember. I did not see the ship's hawser until the hawser broke, and we got on shore at Rajgunge. One of the hawsers broke when we got ashore on the James and Mary. Before I left Cooly Bazar I had made up my mind that we had lost the day. I did not write nor did I protest against proceedings. I proceeded that day because we were anxious to get on. We were afraid of losing hands. We might have anchored a ship's length nearer the steamer than he did. The steamer is not bound to tow after sun down. She towed the last day to $\frac{1}{2}$ past 7; not on the previous day, as far as I can remember. The steamer did not take us in tow before sunrise. The reason why we could not get passed Culpee was that there was not sufficient water; I got to Culpee before sun down; it might be an hour or two hours; I could not pass Culpeo with that tide, still had not got a more starting with the flood, I should have got to Culpeo that evening, then I might have had to anchor for a couple of hours, and then have gone on.

Re-examined. We got ashore the second day, a little above Houghly point. It was in consequence of the Steamer shooting about in the eddies. We should not have been subject in those eddies. The first day I should not have got a shore. I was not sufficiently in produce river, I can swear to this being a true extract. The steamer did not send the row boat for hawser or line. The Steamer, as a general practice, is in the hawser. I have never known a single instance to the contrary. The printed rule in this respect is a direction. I have said that the Steamer could have taken the ship to tow in an hour. The practice is for the Steamer, as soon as she gets a head to send a hawser. Until one hawser at least is fast, the ship cannot take up her anchor. The Steamer ought to have been clear of her moorings and in the stream. If we had started at day light in the morning, it would have made no difference.

By the Chief Justice. I would have the anchor in the forenoon with one hawser fast, if I had started at 6, 7, 8, 9, or 10 o'clock from Cooley Bazar; I might easily have got to Culpeo that evening. Certainly if my hawser had parted the first day, and the delay had not happened, I should not have got to Culpeo. The difference in one hour should have made no difference in the state of the eddies, at all, so the accident might have happened equally the first day. We were aground from 10 to 15 minutes.

James Black, examined by Mr. Leith. I am a branch Pilot, and officiating Harbour master; I saw the Larkins coming down to Cooley Bazar on the 29th September last. I was in a Budgewoa. I saw the Andrew Henderson off Cooley Bazar. The Andrew Henderson was at her buoy after the ship anchored. It was not less than half an hour. I do not think the Steamer left the buoy in proper time. She ought to have left the buoy when she saw the vessel proceeding down. There must have been delay. The Steamer ought to have anchored under her bows. I am well acquainted with the river; an hour makes a material difference in the eddies. In September, or in any month, if they had met the flood tide about Ooloolureth, they might have got to Culpeo that night, starting at 10 o'clock, they ought to have got near Ooloolureth that night. The second day they might have got to Kedgeree. Even if they had anchored at Diamond Harbour the first day, they might equally have got to Kedgeree the next day.

Cross-examined by Mr. Morton. I would rather have two hawsers fast, than only one in the freshes. From Culpeo to Diamond Harbour, is about five miles. Starting an hour or half an hour later they could have got that night to Diamond Harbour, if, starting some time earlier they would they have been enabled to reach Culpeo. I did not notice the time by my watch. It could not be less. It must have been more than half an hour. The steamer ought to have left the buoy. It is safest to anchor, before attempting to fasten the hawsers. I never saw an instance of the steamer remaining at her buoy before. When I have taken vessels which have been chiefly men of war, the steamer has been always waiting ready for them. I consider that she ought to leave the buoy. It is always customary for the vessel to send word at the time the steamer is wanted. I don't know whether they sent on this occasion or what the message was. I never saw steam tugs in any other river than this. I would rather have two hawsers fast than one, before the anchor was weighed.

By the Court. It would have been just the same thing if they had passed the James and Mary that evening.

Probably she would have passed the James and Mary that evening, if no accident had happened. If she had been afloat an hour, she would very likely not have got over.

Thomas Scullen, examined by Mr. Clarke. I have been ten years and three months in the Pilot service. I have taken down many ships towed by steam boats. When a ship drops down, the steamer ought to be out in the stream waiting for her.

Cross-examined by Mr. Tutton. Ships sometimes go down to the Cooley Bazar, and remain there some time. Where there is an arrangement to the contrary, the steamer ought to be going about in the stream. I have seen steamers lying off the Cooley Bazar, waiting until the vessel they were to tow came down—that was when it had been so arranged, I suppose. I have known orders given for the ship to weigh anchor before both hawsers have been made fast. I only once had a ship drawing twenty-two feet water, so I cannot tell, whether it is done in such cases. If the ship had met the flood tide at one o'clock at Budgewoa, and an accident had happened, she could have passed the James and Mary.

Mr. Clarke here put in the agreement put in by the plaintiff and stated that was the defendant's case.

PLAINTIFF'S EVIDENCE.

Capt John Russell, examined by Mr. Morton. I am commander of the Company's Steamer Gunga. I have been employed on board of steam vessels since 1828. I have often towed vessels. I have always remained at a buoy or at anchor until the vessel to be towed is at anchor; that is in the freshes. My vessel is a Government vessel and is employed for hire occasionally. I have often seen the steam tug vessel at their buoys or at anchor. They sometimes quit before the ship anchors sometimes not. I should say that it was the usual custom for the steamer to quit the buoy, as soon as the vessel to be towed anchors, but not before. It will take 10 minutes or a quarter of an hour to quit the buoy and go ahead of the vessel—perhaps a little more in the freshes. It will take a quarter of an hour to pass the hawsers and another quarter or more for the ship to get all her anchor, and as much more for the steamer to get up. The steamer cannot get up her anchor, till the ship has got her safe—after this the steamer must steer over to one side of the river, in order to the turn the ship round. This would take 5 or 10 minutes.

Cross-examined by Mr. Clarke.—I have occasionally taken less time than I have mentioned and frequently much more, there are no specific regulations for the case of the Company's vessel. I have seen the steam tug vessels leave their buoys they sometimes do, and sometimes do not. I dare say I have seen as much of steam vessels as Mr. Scullen and Mr. Black. I have never been in the employ of the Steam Tug Association.

William Blunt Esq., examined by Mr. Tutton.—I was on board the Larkins and was chiefly in my cabin; I do not recollect that there was any detention or delay or any spoken of, till afterwards, when we were going down the river.

Capt. An elens Gillett examined by Mr. Morton.—I am an assistant in the Water Attendant's office. I had the fitting out of the vessel for the China expedition—they all went away by steam; I think there were upwards of 30 vessels altogether. Some of the steam vessels went out into the stream to the ships, but the greater number remained at the buoys, or at anchor.

Capt James Richards examined by Mr. Tutton.—I am commander of the steam vessel Andrew Henderson, and have been so for some time past. I have taken ships down on many occasions. In the freshes we do not leave the buoy until the ship has anchored. On the 25th of September last, the row boat left the Larkins when all the men were in the boat. The boat came along side at a quarter past 10 o'clock. The first thing was to put the hawser and line on board. I always keep a log, the chief mate writes it. I have never been required in the freshets to quit the buoy, until the ship has come down. In the north-east monsoon, it is difficult. I am not in the habit of plying about in the stream. The freshets are so strong sometimes that we require both our paddles and an anchor. It was so on the present occasion. The time occupied from our leaving the buoy, was about three quarters of an hour or so. The ship drew 27 feet 6 inches to water, in my experience, I say the time occupied was a reasonable one. We have no interest in delaying, and our steam had been up since day light.

The ship got on shore at Rajpouze about the first of the flood. She was on shore, a quarter of an hour or 20 minutes. The hawser broke twice that day. The first time we carried both hawsers away, that occasioned a delay of an hour, or an hour and a half; the second day we carried away one hawser and cast off the other the next day we got a ground again.

Cross-examined by Mr. Clarke—I saw the Larkins coming down when she was off the Fort point. The boat came along side us about the time the ship anchored. She anchored abreast of us. The Larkins hailed us once. We did not require to be called more than once. It is not the custom in the freshets, to leave the buoy till the vessel anchors. There would be no danger for the steamer to go into the stream and steam.

Mr. Roderick McDonald was called, but the court stopped the counsel for the plaintiff, and no more evidence was given.

Verdict for the plaintiff.

MONDAY, NOV. 23,

DOE DEM. JUDGUTCHUNDER MOOKERJEE V. JOHN AND ROBERT WATSON.

This is an action of ejectment, brought to try the title to the moiety or half share of the Talook of Rajpouze a large and valuable Talook in the district of Mirza;

Mr. Clarke and Mr. Morton appeared for the plaintiff known.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Leith for the defence.

The trial occupied the Court the whole day, and was not terminated when their Lordship's rose at a late hour.

Adjourned—Harkaru, November 24, 1840.

DOE D. JUDGUTCHUNDER MOOKERJEE V. WATSON.

The trial of this ejectment was resumed this-morning, and occupied the whole day. The case for the defendants was closed when the court rose.

Mr. Clarke will be heard to-morrow morning in reply.

The main point in the case is the validity of a certain Puttoonee lease granted by Ramanujan Mookerjee to his sons in October, 1837, and subsequently assigned, by him to the defendants, Messrs. Watson on the 26th March, 1838. The lessors of the plaintiff claim under a bill of sale from the Sheriff of South India, dated upon a seizure of the 26th March, 1839, consequently in the original Puttoonee, that prior to the assignment. The consideration alleged to have been given by the defendants, is the sum of Rs. Rs. 55,000, besides an annual payment of about Rs. Rs. 5,000. A great number of witnesses have been examined, and various documents produced on both sides.

Adjourned.—Harkaru, November 25, 1840.

SITTINGS AFTER FOURTH TERM.

DOE DEM. JUDGUTCHUNDER MOOKERJEE V. WATSON.

This ejectment action was resumed this morning, and terminated at 2 o'clock. This was the third day.

The title of the lessors of the plaintiff depended upon a bill of sale from the Sheriff, dated December, 1839. The writ of hæc facias issued on the 8th March 1838, and was delivered into the Sheriff's office on the following day. The judgment under which the writ issued was a title of the lessors of the plaintiff against Ramanujan Mookerjee, the undisputed proprietor of the moiety of the Talook in dispute. There was no other abstract proof of the seizure than the Sheriff's return; but this only proved the fact of the seizure having been made not of the precise date.*

The defendants also claimed through Ramanujan, their title being an assignment on the 26th March 1838 of a Puttoonee lease granted by him on the 7th of October 1837. The whole depended upon the genuineness and validity of the Puttoonee. It was not pretended that Messrs. Watson were parties to any fraud or contrivance; but it was contended for the plaintiffs, that however bona fide their part of the transaction was, they could have no title if the original Puttoonee (which was to the sisters of Ramanujan) was a fictitious and fraudulent instrument.

The Court were of opinion, upon the whole evidence, that the original Puttoonee and the assignment to the defendants, were for good and valid consideration, and that they were both sufficiently established; that the verdict therefore, must be for the defendants.

Verdict for the defendants.

GOVERNMENT DOCKET V. JUDGUTCHUNDER SEAL.

This case was commenced, but was not concluded when the Court rose, and will be resumed to-morrow.

The Advocate General and Mr. Sandes for the plaintiff.

Mr. Clarke and Mr. Smith for the defence.

Adjourned.

* It would be highly convenient if the return always specified the date, upon execution only lands from the seizure. In the present case it became ultimately immaterial as the Puttoonee was held good, and that was unquestionably before the seizure, being even before the writ issued.

Mr. A. Grant, of the firm of Messrs. Collier Bird and Grant, was yesterday admitted a Notary.—Calcutta Courier Nov. 25, 1840.

GOPINMOHUN DORSEY V JADUBCHUNDER SEAL AND ANOTHER.

This action, which was commenced yesterday, was resumed this morning.

The action was brought to recover the sum of Co. Rs. 9,895, being the balance of an account stated between the parties. The defendants gave notice to dispute the jurisdiction; but the question of jurisdiction was disposed of in favor of the plaintiff upon the evidence given yesterday.

The defendant went into his case this morning; but the Court considered that the claim of the plaintiff was established, and gave a verdict for the full amount.

Verdict for plaintiffs.

RAMLOONUN SATRAH V GOVERNORHUN GOSWAMEE.

This was an action to recover Co. Rs. 3,185 alleged to be due for the price and value of work done by the plaintiff for the defendant, who had employed him to build his family house at Serampore.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Leith appeared for the plaintiff.

The plaintiff's witnesses swore that an estimate or account put in, exhibited a correct statement of the work done. Part of the work contracted for, was left unfinished; but the reason assigned was, that the defendant had ceased to supply funds or materials.

There was a specific contract in writing, but the plaintiff had only declared on the common counts for work done.

Mr. Clarke (with whom was Mr. Morton) for the defence contended that if the plaintiff contracted to perform work, under an entire contract, part performance would not entitle him to recover even pro tanto Sinclair v. Bowles, 9 H. and C. And the defence was not properly the subject matter of a special plea, but was admissible under the general issue. Hayneiden v. Staff, 5 Ad. and Ell.

Witnesses were called for the defence.

The Court were of opinion that there was no distinct evidence to shew, in contradiction to the plaintiff's witnesses that the work exhibited by the estimate rendered, had not been performed; and that the plaintiff was entitled to a verdict for the amount claimed.

Verdict for plaintiff.

The common law board will be resumed to-morrow. The above cause stands No. 9.—Hurkaru, November 27, 1840.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1840.

TORABU ALLY MOONSHIE C. GOOCHLCHUNDER ROY.

Mr. Leith for the plaintiff said, that this action was brought to recover the sum of Company's Rupees 1,550 of which Rs. 1,400, were due upon three hundrees drawn by defendant in favour of plaintiff upon one Newyehung Hurkaru. The remaining sum of Rs. 150 was for money paid. The hundrees were presented for acceptance and were dishonoured. On the part of the defendant, the defence set up by the pleadings was that the bills were accommodation bills, and that no consideration was ever received for them.

One witness was called for the plaintiff, who proved that the hundrees were signed by defendant. Witness was present at a conversation between the parties, and heard that Rs. 1,550, was found due.

The Advocate General (with him was Mr. Morton) addressed the Court for the defence. The case for the defence was, that the defendant was in fact the plaintiff's creditor at the time the hundrees were granted, and that he received from the plaintiff an agreement in writing acknowledging that the hundrees were mere accommodation bills.

This instrument was put in, and sworn to by two attesting witnesses.

Mr. Leith then addressed the Court in reply, and proposed calling further witnesses, to meet the defendant's case and establish consideration.

The Advocate-General objected to this, and observed, that in the first place the witnesses ought to have been called before his learned friend addressed the Court, and that in the next place evidence in reply was not admissible where the plaintiff had notice of the defence on the pleadings, and went partially into the question of "consideration" at the outset.

The Court said, that certainly the witnesses ought to have been called before the Court was addressed in reply; but there was nothing in the objection, that the plaintiff could not examine further evidence after the defendant's case had closed, where his case was a new one set up.

Three more witnesses were then called by the plaintiff, and the Court gave a verdict for the amount of the hundrees, Company's Rupees 1,400.

Verdict for plaintiff.

As there is but issue case and others still remaining to be tried, the Court will proceed with the common law board to-morrow. The first case is Reeves v. Barrington.—Hurkaru, November 28, 1840.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1840.

SITTINGS AFTER FOURTH TERM.

THOMAS RIEVES V. WILLIAM BARRINGTON.

Mr. Morton opened the pleadings.

Mr. Prinsep for the plaintiff, stated that this action was brought to recover the sum of Co's Rs. 1200, the balance due for the repairs done by the plaintiff to the "Gipsy," a brig belonging to the defendant. The original contract was that the repairs should be performed for the sum of Rs. 2,200, within the period of six weeks. Of that sum 1,800 had been paid; but a considerable quantity of extra work had been performed, for the value of which as well as for the balance due upon the specific contract, this action was brought. The defendant had pleaded, besides the general issue and a plea of payment, a special plea of set-off, which, by pleading as liquidated damages the sum of £100,000, opened for six days demurrage at the rate of 20 percent per diem, according to the strict terms of the contract. It would be shown, however, that the delay arose partly from the extra work thus done at the defendant's request, and partly from his own dilatoriness in furnishing materials.

Witnesses were then called on the part of the plaintiff, who proved the above facts. An estimate of the extra work was put in signed by Mr. Pittman, the chief officer of the brig. Two of the witnesses swore that there was great delay on the part of the defendant himself in furnishing the materials.

The Advocate-General objected to the latter evidence but it received, concluding that the plaintiff ought to have replied specifically to the plea of set-off that the delay was caused by defendant's own act, instead of merely replying generally non quia indubitatus.

The Court, however, allowed the evidence. This was an action upon the common counts, and for extra work as well as work under the special contract, and it was doubtful whether the claim for demurrage could be set off at all, otherwise than by deducting such of the costs of action as arose in the special contract, under which such counter-claim arose.

The Advocate-General (with whom was Mr. Clarke) addressed the Court for the defence, and called two or three witnesses.

The Court were of opinion, that there must be a verdict for plaintiff or Company's Report 1, 183, but they reserved leave to the Advocate-General to move upon the point of law, if upon due consideration he should be of opinion that the point was arguable. They found, as a fact, that the sum of Rs. 400,000 was due upon the contract, and Rs. 793 for the extra work; and further that the repairs were not finished until fifty days after the time specified, but that the delay arose from the default of defendant himself.

Verdict for plaintiff.

The common law heard will be resumed on Monday. Hurkara, November 30, 1840.

INSOLVENT COURT.

IN THE MATTER OF J. H. STOCQUELER.

Mr. Stocqueler applied to be admitted to bail, but Sir H. Seton refused the application, observing that though there was one precedent for such a proceeding, yet it was a precedent which must not be followed. — Calcutta Courier, Oct. 31 — Hurkara, November 2, 1840.

We were not quite right in what we stated on Saturday, relative to Mr. Stocqueler. This Gentleman has offered bail, but is at present undecided whether he will apply to the Court to justify, after the following observations made by the Court.

Sir H. Seton observed in the Supreme Court with reference to the case of Captain Vacker that the decision then was not to be considered a precedent. In this case the insolvent who had petitioned for bail, put in bail on the condition which he was in custody, and was ordered upon bail after petition, in spite of the finding. The insolvent was then called in question having been asked His Lordship said, that he had not considered the matter, and found it if true to have been considered in other cases. — Calcutta Courier, therefore was not to be considered a precedent, if a similar case should arise again. — Calcutta Courier, Nov. 2.

[Hurkara, Nov. 4, 1840]

(Before Sir H. W. Seton.)

IN THE MATTER OF ISAAC JACOB AND OTHERS.

In this case farther examination of the insolvents took place, but their written was not produced.

Mr. Prinsep on behalf of the detaining creditor, urged that from the insolvent's own statements, they knew nothing at all of the entries in the Schedule, which had been evidently drawn up by the native writer Ramthurne, who has been put out of the way. On this and other grounds he urged, that the insolvents could not be considered entitled to the benefit of the Act.

Mr. Norton then made a few observations on behalf of the insolvents.

The Court then said that its impression of the matter was that the accounts were not satisfactory, and under this impression it could not give effect in favor of the insolvents. An order was therefore given for the insolvents to be remanded till the 4th December next, for the insolvents to produce documents to enable the assignee to recover the debts mentioned in the Schedule. — Hurkara, November 4, 1840.

Nov. 7, 1840.

(Before Sir H. W. Seton.)

IN THE MATTER OF SAMUEL GARDNER JOHNSTONE.

This Insolvent was in custody, and being unopposed, received the benefit of the Act.

IN THE MATTER OF MILES ALFRED KENYON.

IN THE MATTER OF AMEERUDDIN MAHOMED.

The Insolvent was opposed, and the Advocate-General appeared against him, and Mr. Shaw for him. The Advocate-General, after some introductory observations in regard to the deficiency of the schedule and that there was property which had not been entered in it, proceeded to examine the Insolvent, when the information elicited, was substantially as follows:-

Insolvent examined by the Advocate-General, that he deposited a cheque with Dwarakanath Tagore, under these circumstances. His brother, who held a situation of Sheristadar at Bkerungge, in consequence of certain accusations against him had been suspended. He had come to Calcutta with a view to appeal, but was about to return to his station without effecting a settlement of his affairs, when he came in contact with one Harro Moonphoe. This individual told him, in the way of conversation, that Baboo Dwarakanath Tagore possessed extensive influence, and that his word had great weight with collectors, magistrates, and gentlemen in authority, and that if Insolvent's brother offered him a consideration there was every likelihood of him being freed from his difficulties. Under this information, the embarrassed Sheristadar took proper steps, and a bargain of four thousand rupees was struck for Dwarakanath Tagore. The Sheristadar borrowed two thousand rupees from Gopallol Tagore, which he gave Dwarakanath Tagore as part payment of the amount of the bargain. He then returned to Bkerungge, and after some days despatched Insolvent to Calcutta, with instructions to draw another two thousand rupees from Gopallol Tagore, to give that sum to Dwarakanath Tagore, and in fact to settle the matter in the best way he was able. On arrival in Calcutta Insolvent applied for and received from Gopallol Tagore the amount of two thousand rupees for which he executed a byt on his personal liability. The two thousand was given in a cheque which he deposited with Dwarakanath Tagore, as farther payment of the bargain settled between him and Insolvent's brother. Under these circumstances, it was that Insolvent deposited the cheque for two thousand rupees with Dwarakanath Tagore.

The Insolvent after the above explanation, proceeded with his answers to the following purport. I was not personally known to Gopallol Tagore, but he had been led to confide in me from the circumstance of his holding unequal share in certain property along with my sister in law Nujeebnoliva. My sister in law got the share, by it being transferred in her name. Her name alone is entered in the collector's books though I was not present when the order was given for the entry, nor can I swear that the entry is now there.

The cheque was given to Dwarakanath Tagore's as a bribe for my brother. Besides the sum of two thousand, I took five hundred rupees also from Gopallol Tagore, for my personal expenses during my stay in Calcutta. As the bond to Gopallol Tagore was executed in my name, he sued me for the amount, and although it was originally borrowed on account of my brother, yet he having written to me that the object of the bribe not being attained, I should recover the amount in the best way I could, I had no other alternative left, but to enter Dwarakanath Tagore's name in my schedule as my debtor for the two thousand rupees. As to the five hundred rupees, which I subsequently borrowed I had hopes of refunding that amount not only as I expected assistance from my brother, but I expected to enter into service.

The sum of four thousand rupees was given to Dwarakanath Tagore for getting my brother delivered from his difficulties and trial in his office. Subsequent to my brother's having given the two thousand rupees, I heard from him about the arrangement with Dwarakanath Tagore. It was also mentioned to me by Gopallol Tagore at his own house. When conversation and communications of this description took place, Gopallol Tagore generally sent out his omahs, allowing only two or three sometimes to remain. On the occasion the subject in question was mentioned to me, I do not recollect if any one else was present. In the course of conversation the circumstance is mentioned, was mentioned to me by both, but not as a reason for the arrangement. I delivered the cheque to Dwarakanath Tagore, and he gave the five hundred. He went along with me on that occasion, but did not enter the room in which Dwarakanath was. On giving the cheque into his hand, Dwarakanath asked me for what it was, where I explained the relation between him and my brother, and said that I had brought the cheque for two thousand in full of the amount of the bargain. Dwarakanath then requested me to call his cashier Poonochunder Lahorey which I had proceeded to do, when he recalled me and turning over the cheque in his hand, asked me if my name was on the back of it. I told him it was not, when he requested me to endorse it and gave it to Poonochunder Lahorey. The two thousand rupees I took from Gopallol Tagore on account of my brother. I spoke to him on the subject, when he replied that since the money given to Dwarakanath had not tended to free my brother's brother, he directed me to give back the sum whence I had got it.

I am joined with my brothers in my ancestral property. What that property is, however, I cannot exactly describe, as the whole is in the possession of my mother. The property belongs to my grandfather, from whom it descended to my father, and on his demise devolved on my mother. When my mother dies, of course, it will come to my brothers and myself. My maternal uncle died leaving two sons. It is customary among Mahomedans for the whole of the property to go to the wife on the death of her husband. In Smitra Pergunnah, Zillah Jowah, there is a village of Shergram, in which my mother holds a share. That property was purchased by my grandfather and, as already is entered, a share devolved on my mother. The village calls Belcoolah is the same Pergunnah my mother holds a share in. There is a house and garden in Boderach Pergunnah Nimber, in the possession of my mother. The house does not stand in the names of my brothers and myself, but in that of my father.

The Advocate-General, after having examined the insolvent thus far, put it to the court whether he should go on to other points or an order to the amount of the schedule should be made, since three parcels of property had been submitted by the insolvent.

Mr Shaw asked if the Court considered the Insolvent to have an interest in the property.

The Court thought the schedule was substantially defective, and therefore ordered the Insolvent to be remanded for it to be amended.

IN THE MATTER OF FRANCIS FAYIN.

An application was made for the final discharge of this insolvent.

IN THE MATTER OF WILLIAM CLARKE, DAVID CLARKE, AND WILLIAM JOHNSTON THORPE.

In the matter of these insolvents Mr W P Downing made an application, for the enlargement of time, as a statement had been made with the creditors, and application was granted.

IN THE MATTER OF MANUK MAISON MANUK.

This insolvent received his discharge without further opposition.

IN THE MATTER OF CHARLES TROWER.

BOMBAY COURT-MARTIAL ON CAPTAIN DUFF.

Mr. Crawford then placed before the Court, the which Testimony to character which will be found in Appendix No. 1 to 9.

The officiating Judge Advocate immediately afterwards, read the copy of which not having been able to obtain a copy, we must be content to say, that having been presented before that officer had any knowledge of the nature of Captain Duff's defence, it could not of course have any but very partial reference to the facts or arguments adduced in that document, in support of the evidence by which the charge against Capt. Duff was attempted to be supported.

The reply as far as it was possible to follow the officiating Judge Advocate in the low tone of voice in which it was read, went to say that as the 6 had been no direct contradiction offered to the evidence given by the three witnesses for the prosecution, there was nothing to shake their testimony on the points to which they had deposed, and that he was entitled to expect the same reasonable allowance for the discrepancy in the testimony of those witnesses on which the prisoner had remarked as Captain Duff claimed for the discrepancy in his own witnesses in the defence just read. The officiating Judge Advocate further endeavoured to reconcile the different accounts that Gibbird had given at different times, of the number of prisoners put to death by his orders at Kowlahee, by referring to a portion of Lieut. Gibbird's defence on his Court-Martial at Poona, of which the following is believed to be the substance, if not the precise quotation cited by the officiating Judge Advocate on this occasion.

"There is one circumstance which is far from my intention, as it would be foreign to my character to pass over in silence. The point I allude to is the act of appearing that I did in my communication to Mr. Spooner and to the officers at Vingorla in the mention of only one prisoner being shot. The only way in which I can account for this being able to speak as to the death of merely one prisoner is, that Colonel Purrib was by name well known to all of us, known in my ever as a person of great importance amongst the rebels, not only from his own influence, but from that of his family and relations, the prisoners being people of no note, and whose very names were unknown, it is very probable the more that I say has but more stress upon the circumstance of Colonel Purrib's death than of the others, and Mr. Spooner and my brother officers may for the same reason have paid more attention to it, so that what I have said regarding it is of minor note would naturally make less impression on their minds, and I be sooner effaced from their recollections.

The Judge Advocate concluded his reply, by stating that the Court would give the prisoner the benefit of any doubts they might entertain, on a full consideration of the whole of the evidences that had been placed before them.

* This appeared to be added whilst the defence was being read—Editor.

Lieut. Colonel Capon being called into Court to do duty sworn.

Questioned by the Court.

Q. During the time you were in command of the 16th Regiment, had you an opportunity of forming an opinion on the general character of Lieutenant Munro?

A. Yes.

Q. Will you be kind enough to state your opinion of his general character?

A. My opinion of his character is, that he is exceedingly upright, honourable and sincere, and I esteemed him the best officer in this regiment after the staff.

Questioned by the Prisoner.

Q. How long did you command the 16th regiment, and how long was Lieutenant Munro under your command?

A. I commenced it from the 1st of February to the first week in October last year. Lieut. Munro joined about the 10th February, and was under my command the whole time I was with the Regiment after that. The trial is here finished, and the prisoner and witnesses are dismissed.

No. 1.

My dear Duff.—I have received your letter, and in reply have only to assure you, that it affords me sincere gratification to hear testimony to your conduct, since the day we first became known to each other as brother officers in the 16th Regiment. We served together at Berar and the Punjab in the years 1819-20 and 21, and can with truth assert, that during that period I never knew you to act otherwise, than as the character of an officer, a man of honor, and a gentleman, and further I had reason to believe, you were esteemed by your brother officers, and considered by them in the light of a person not disposed to bear malice, quarrelsome, or given to any of those propensities which could influence them to form an opinion contrary to the one I have expressed, and if what I have now stated will be of the least service to you, you are at liberty to make whatever use you may think proper of this note, and believe me,

Yours very sincerely,

(Signed) BRUCE GATON.

Poona, 29th July 1841.

* Lieutenant Munro joined the 16th Regiment at Vingorla on the 10th February 1841 (1840) as shown in the certificate issued to him in that office, and between that date and the 1st of March 1841, for himself the complement best well known to him, for reasons best known to him, he endeavored to bring the professional character of his brother officer into disrepute, thereby indicating such improper feelings both as an officer and private individual, as to render any further remarks from the commander of the Forces unnecessary.—Editor.

Baroda, 27th April, 1945.

"My dear Deff,—I have known you for many years, and during some part of that time intimately, and I have not the slightest hesitation in saying, that there is not so brave an army whose word I would so eagerly or than your own. I considered you to be capable of an approach to falsehood, and I have never heard or known, of your having ever acted by want, or deed, in a way that could cast the smallest stain upon your character as a gentleman; and a man of honour, nor do I think you capable of doing so."

You may have many friends whose testimony must have much more weight than mine, but if you think my opinion will be of the slightest service, you are most welcome to make use of this letter in any way you think proper.

Yours in great haste, very truly,

My DEAR DREW.—I have many apologies to offer, for not replying before to your letter of the 4th instant, but having had a good deal of business on my hands of one kind or other, must plead my excuse.

I regret exceedingly to hear you are to appear before a Court Martial, for either as prosecutor or prisoner, it is distressing and harassing.

If my testimony can be of any use to you, I have much satisfaction in being able to say that I can conscientiously affirm after an intimate acquaintance of nearly twenty years; I have always found you (and have expressed myself so to others before) as a strictly honourable man, and one of the last I should have supposed would be guilty of the act you are accused of,—that in my intercourse with Society, I have always heard you spoken of as a man of integrity and uprightness of character.—With my sincere wishes for an honourable acquittal.

I remain, my dear Duff, yours very sincerely,

Major Alexander Stewart, Captain John H. Regan, Henry D. J. Anderson, Major and Captain of Brigades Bagdall, commanding American Troops, that "I have known Captain D. O. Dow at the same Regiment, ever since the year 1866, since I have served with him at Surat, Bombay, and on Deutchman at Tashah; during the time the Regiment was at those stations, and until I was removed from that duty to my present employment;—during which time, being on terms of much intimacy, I have not found the conduct of a man of honor and a gentleman, and upon whom word I could place the most implicit reliance; and I believe him totally incapable of such a deception from truth."

My dear DUFF,—I have much pleasure in saying, that during an intimacy of some years I have ever considered you a person of unquestionable veracity, and from the knowledge and acquaintance that has subsisted between us, I am inclined to believe and imagine, that you would not commit or be guilty of so action unworthy the character of an officer or gentleman.

Sincerely yours,

No. 6.

MY DEAR DUFF,—I received your letter of 13th at Belgium a few days ago, and would have answered it earlier, but I have been much engaged and must content myself now with a very few lines, you wish me to give my opinion of you—I shall do so with much pleasure and without reserve one way or the other. Our acquaintance is now of some standing, and from the degree of intimacy that existed. I had no good opportunity as most men of judging your character and disposition. I believe you perfectly incapable of perpetrating or sanctioning an act of inhumanity. I think you deficient in reserve, and that your heart is better than your head, but I am confident you are wanting in no gentlemanly or soldierly feeling or principle, and I would trust your word sooner than I would some men's Oaths.

I can scarcely suppose that my opinion can be of any use to you, should it be make any use you please of it. It is all the same to me.

As to the parties who appeared against you in the Court of Inquiry, I never heard but one opinion, viz., that the right wringing they got from Major General Fitzgerahl in General Orders was most richly deserved.

Very busy, so excuse this short yarn, wishing you good luck in every thing, and a speedy deliverance out of the hands of the Philistines (it is no shame to, an honest man to have his conduct acritulized).

I remain your's sincerely,

1st May 1840. (Signed) A. H. BUTTINGTON.

Tell friend Dick, I shot another Tiger last month.
Kind regards to Mrs. Duff.

Throughout all intimate acquaintance of about 20 years past, during which period I had ample opportunity of knowing of you, I have continuously declared that I believe you quite incapable of wanting what is given. I have no hesitation in saying that I have never met with an individual upon whose word I would place more implicit reliance. I consider you to be thoroughly of an entirely inconsistent war that high sense of honour and rectitude which has marked your course through life; and I assure you nothing ever surprised me more than hearing, for the first time in my life, a doubt cast on the veracity of Daniel George Duff.

With sincere good wishes and confidence in your successfully passing the ordeal you are about to be subjected to.

I remain, my dear Duff, your's most sincerely,

MY DEAR DUFF—I am truly concerned to hear of the important and unpleasant situation in which you are now placed, but any honest man may be similarly situated without fault of his own. I am, however, so that I have known you for nearly 20 years, and I think very intimately, and although circumstances and the different spheres of our respective duties have kept us apart for some time I do not believe either from what I know of you are capable of committing the offence of which you

REMARKS BY THE CHIEF.—The Court having in obedience to the orders of His Excellency the Commander in Chief re-considered their proceedings, and after the presenter Captain Daniel George Duff 16th Regiment N. I., did at a General Court Martial held at Poona between the 30th December 1839, and the 14th January 1840 give testimony to the effect as set forth in the charge but the Court are of opinion that the prisoner is not guilty of having given that testimony knowingly and wilfully believing it to be false, and they do therefore, fully and honourably acquit him of the charge.

Remarks by the Commander in Chief.

On the revised Proceedings, an inaccuracy appears in the second paragraph, where it is stated, that the Court proceeded to re-consider their former finding and sentence.

As a sentence could have been passed, the former verdict having been an acquittal, the mistake on the part of the Court in using the word "Sentence" is conspicuous though not material.

This Court Martial was convened for the purpose, state in the General Orders of the 24th of March last, and having done my duty towards the public service, in the steps I have taken, it only remains for me to offer in the Proceedings my confirmation. Captain Duff, is accordingly released from arrest, and is to return to his duty.

PARA! ACCIDENTS.—A posse of clerks, whom the holy days had emancipated from their official duties, resorted to the Salt-water Lakes on the 24th of October, to try their skill at shooting. One of them, named Sheng, happened unfortunately to overlook the danger in which he was and was consequently, drowned. His body was picked up, a few days subsequently, partly devoured by fishes, and was interred, according to Christian rites.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.—This body have lately addressed the Marine Board, representing the inefficient state of the Harbour Master's establishment. The Chamber of Commerce, in their letter, particularly alluded to the accident, which a few weeks ago occurred among the shipping when no regular assistance whatever from the Harbour Master's establishment could be obtained. On this ground they suggest the expediency of augmenting the establishment in question in order to meet the exigencies of the greatly increased number of vessels which now come to this port.

A NEW INSTRUMENT.—We understand that Mr Robinson, of the Humber College, has invented an instrument for measuring both horizontal and vertical angles, without employing the stand or artificial horizon.

ABSENT ON A PREVENTIVE OFFICER.—Mr Hoag, a Chief Officer of the Cashmere Merchant, has been committed to jail for one month, in consequence of having failed to pay a fine of one hundred rupees imposed on him by the magistrate, for assaulting a preventive officer, named Hornbush.

ATTEMPTED FLORENTINE.—A very interesting case of attempted elopement occurred a few days back, in the neighbourhood of How Bazar. The circumstances under which the affair happened were those which usually belong to similar cases, namely, an ardent young man desperate with love, fawning and sighing for the possession of the idol of his adorations a tender young lady, his mistress pining and languishing to throw herself into the arms of her lover, and lastly a set of relentless friends adopting every counter measure to foil the intentions of the willing pair. Thus played the couple in question very naturally worked on no account be considered, until the faithful Adonis concerted a plan, in order to possess the object of his burning desire.

The young lady, for the sake of greater security had been sent to the house of a trusty friend of her mother's, with injunctions to be kept close. To an adjoining house, her devoted lover repaired, and contrived, as lovers know how to convey a slip of paper explaining the length and breadth of his plan. The day and hour having arrived, the young man appeared in the disguise of a khatmutgar, with a lucca palmy following him. The lady was prepared, and receiving the key, slipped out of the house. But she was observed by her grandfather before she could get into the conveyance. An exciting chase ensued, the young lady running first, her lover running after her, and the old granny running after them both. At length the young lady overcame by exhaustion, stopped, when the old lady got a hold of her, and reinforcement having by this time come up the fugitive maiden was taken home to be more vigilantly watched, and the amorous swain was well high thrashed out of his skin for such audacity.

OVERLAND DISPATCH.—The Government intend to send at least one more despatch across the Isthmus of Suez, to England, despite the present unsettled state of affairs in Egypt. A steamer will start from Bombay for Suez, on the 1st of December next, and the 18th proximo is the last official advertisement for the transmission of letters from Calcutta.

NUMEROUS COLLISION BETWEEN PASSENGERS AND SHIPWRECK.—The ship has been damaged at Aden, that the H. C. ship-of-war Edinburgh, had detected a French frigate in the act of landing arms, for the use of the Arabs, close to Aden, that an engagement had ensued between them in coffee lands, and that both vessels had suffered very severely. We are assured that this incident is without any foundation, as letters from Aden, of the 21st of October, the latest received, do not mention a word about it.

PASADGETT ON THE PUNJAB.—We understand, on good authority, there is reason to believe, that every facility will be afforded by the Sikhs to the passage across the Peshawar of the Brigade under Light Colonel Sherston, of H. M. 44th, which has been ordered to proceed to Afghanistan.

Mrs EAST.—Subsequent to the arrest of that notorious woman Mrs East, alias Mrs Howard, two applications had been made to Mr Robinson, the Magistrate, for a cloth merchant and the other from a Malabar Jeweller, stating that while Mrs East was living at "Spence's" she had fraudulently obtained from them goods and articles, and begged that they might be returned.

Mr Robinson referred the applications to the Deputy Superintendent of Police, and Mr. East was immediately sent for in order to point out the different things taken by them, and they were referred to them. The value of the clothes taken, was understood, to be 500 Rs. and that of the jewellery, consisting of gold ornaments and diamond rings, &c., to be considerable.

CIVIL SERVANTS.—Although no extraordinary demand for the services of civil officers will render it necessary for the Government to prohibit applications for leave of absence, we apprehend that the stringent regulations will this year offer an impediment, almost as serious, to the gratification of the wishes of many who are at present desirous of returning home. There are we believe, about seventeen applications for furlough now before the authorities but it is supposed that there will not be any available for the officers junior to Mr D. M. Dineen.

VACCINATION.—Dr Dinan Stewart Superintendent General of Vaccination in Bengal has just received from England some fresh vaccine lymph on points and glass, tubes and cruets—with which he has succeeded in re-producing and establishing a perfect form of the vaccine pox and now calls upon parents, to send their children to get properly vaccinated, and thus secure them against the attacks of that dreadful scourge, the small pox.

WARLIKE DEMONSTRATIONS.—We are given to understand, that a force, consisting of about five or six regiments of infantry and a proportionate number of cavalry and artillery, is about to be assembled on the Nepal frontier.

There has been a rumour in Calcutta during the week that Mr Hodgson, our Resident at Comillah, had been imprisoned by the Nepalese authorities. There is no truth in it, however.

DR GOODFELLOW.—On Saturday last the Governor of the Native Hospital met to nominate a superintendent surgeon for the New Chitpore Dispensary. There were several candidates for the appointment, but Dr. Goodfellow proved the successful one.

been murdered, during the week, by being poisoned, and the bodies were found in the river by their cook.

THEFTS OF SUGAR.—There is a considerable loss of sugar in the river, and the loss is increasing. The sugar is being taken in the river by the river police, and the loss is increasing. The sugar is being taken in the river by the river police, and the loss is increasing. The sugar is being taken in the river by the river police, and the loss is increasing.

ANOTHER MURDER.—A native woman has been murdered by her paramour. The deed was done by a knife being plunged into her stomach, so as to cause the wounds to protrude. She was removed to the Hospital, but died the subsequent day. The murderer has escaped.

WATERBOMBING FOR FUN.—A conspicuous advertisement, in the Commercial Advertiser of the 31st ultimo, announced "Mrs. Ayres' Grand Subscription Fancy Ball and Supper, tickets each rupees 5—cash." As might be expected, all the "big-tails" and "bob-tails" of Hong Kong came, that could afford the requisite amount, flocked to Madame Ayres' fire-up, disported as monkeys at monkeys as each respective fancy dictated. As might be further expected, a large party of Waikato, about thirty in number, also went to the "Ball and Supper" at whose appearance, a light girl wore the test of the miscellaneous company to leave them in full possession of the evening's entertainment. The ladies, their presence acknowledged, the Waikato, set themselves down to "trip it to the light fantastic toe" and all kinds of devilry and mischief, at a rate which fully vindicated their title as Waterbombers.

There was one of them in particular, who distinguished himself above his brethren, as a perfect genius in this way, including, as he did, in the "overt" that breathings could invent. In the very "bill room" he went, with a candle in his hand, and singing "in a corner, in a corner"——but it had better be so untold, for enquiry by a certain noble Department.

Having turned up snook at the ladies, bantled the gentlemen, and kicked every thing out of its place, on the upper floor, they proceeded to the supper table below stairs and here knives and forks were thrown quite in disuse, wings of fowls and ducks flew in all directions, and, in fact, the riotous mode of feasting adopted, was the most unique and unparalleled in the annals of supper tables.

About midnight the party received intelligence of a wedding not far from the Ball Room, and thither they went, their own. On arrival they found a rush wedding, but were soon made to retreat by dint of the argumentum baculum offered by the wedding guests. Upon this open war was proclaimed by those of the party, with such effect, that the wedding party, who were about to leave, were obliged to return, and the wedding party, who were about to leave, were obliged to return, and the wedding party, who were about to leave, were obliged to return.

This warfare continued for a considerable time, and the wedding party, who were about to leave, were obliged to return, and the wedding party, who were about to leave, were obliged to return.

THE WATER ENGINE.—The water engine, which was increased in size, has been suggested to the Government, and the Government, who were about to leave, were obliged to return, and the Government, who were about to leave, were obliged to return.

THE RAZZA BAZA.—Her Highness the Raza Baza, being about to undertake a journey from Adahabad to the Dekhan, Captain J. Fitzgerald, of the 42d Madras N. I., has been directed to accompany Her Highness during the trip—reassuming his duties at Nagpore, on Her Highness' arrival at her destination.

CRICKET.—The first match of the season came off on the cricket ground on Friday, between the men of the Ditch and the men of Dumbly and Barrack pore, in which the Ditch was vanquished. It was a very near thing. Calcutta took the bat first, and were put out for the small score of 36. The United forces then went in and scored 104. The United forces then went in and scored 104. The United forces then went in and scored 104.

Yesterday a match was played between the married and the single. There was not time to finish, but the score was rather in favour of the latter.

THE LAUNCH.—The business and bustle of the town were either closed or suspended at 2 p.m. on the 10, the greater portion of the community having flocked in dense crowds to witness the launch of Ruzome's new ship from the Kidderpore Dock. The preparations made on the spot, for the reception of visitors were grand and noble, and the occasion was honoured by the elite of the city, including the Governor General and suite. The assembly had collected mostly before the hour fixed, and by 2 o'clock the tide ran up to the high-water mark, and great air and expectation became apparent. The ship was now about to be shod off the stocks, and one of the Misses Eden (we understand) stood ready for the christening ceremony. Some delay ensued in the movement of the ship, while expectations gazed with straining eyes to see her gallantly glide into the stream. The spectators waited and waited, and the ship waited and waited, yet the vessel budged not, the tide ran low, the clock struck three, and still the new ship kept her place with provoking obduracy. By this time the water had ebbed considerably, and the assemblage as much irritated, so the launch of necessity has been postponed until the 11th.

On the 11th, however, the vessel was launched and named the Argentine Lander. On reaching the river the vessel was quickly "away," and shortly quitted the river. The old women say, that "a bad omen" makes a good ending." We hope the Argentine Lander may give a profitable ship to her owner.

AN ADDITION.—We hear that an addition of about five tons of vessels is shortly to be made to the fleet, commanded by General Claude Martine, for the support of the public institution in Calcutta which bears his name. In consequence of this addition, fifteen new guns, and twenty more will be added on the fortification. The school is to be divided into two divisions, and it having been found necessary to remove the girls' department to a suitable house in the immediate neighbourhood of Shree Bazar.

THE MEDICAL COLLEGE.—We understand that sixteen of the advanced students of the Medical College, who have applied for certificates of qualification, are now undergoing a strict and searching examination, which is conducted by Drs. Grant, Drummond, Wise, and the Professors of the College.

CHOLERA.—The cholera has broke out in Calcutta and has been raging for the last two or three weeks. As yet its ravages have not been numerous, but most of the cases that have happened, have been among Europeans. Within a few days, several fatal cases occurred in the General Hospital, while the other Hospitals have almost daily a case or two coming in. The appearance of this plague at this time of the year, is attributed to the heavy fall of dew at night, and extreme severity of the sun in the day. It is supposed, that a shower of rain would prove beneficial, at this particular period.

DARING BURGLARY.—Our readers may probably remember the serious case of his glory of which we gave a short account, barely noticing it a few days ago. The case was lately under investigation before the magistrate, when the following particulars were elicited. It appeared in evidence, that on Tuesday, the 3d instant, Ramdhan Mitter, a respectable native merchant, received into his house in Shampoonker, eighteen bales of silk, which he had purchased. The value of these bales was between eight and nine thousand rupees. He lodged them in an upper room in his house. On the morning of the following day, about 6 o'clock, he was informed by the bearer, that the door of his store-room had been broken open—he went to the room and missed five bales of silk, the value of which he computes at two thousand eight hundred rupees. He found a hole in the wall, through which he supposed the thief must have introduced his hand, and pushed back the bolt. He also found a ladder lying below at the foot of the wall inside. He went to the Police office and stated the facts there. Captain Burch and Mr. McCann, proceeded with him to his house. They observed the print of footsteps in a dry ditch besides the house, which they traced to a garden, at no great distance from it. They went in to this garden and searched it, when they found two parcels of silk, the contents of a bale, lying in a dry drain covered over with grass. The mally stated, that he had gone to one some Juttra that night. When he returned, which was at a very advanced hour, he found two men, Hurris and Looer, and several coolies, in the garden, as also five bales. He demanded who they were. Looer and Hurris desired him to keep quiet and promised to give him ten rupees. The mally remonstrated, but they attended not to his remonstrances. Soon after a palkey garry came to the garden, and they put the greater part of the bales into the conveyance, with which they went away, leaving two parcels behind, for which they had not room enough in the garry to carry them away; besides just at that time day began to break, which obliged them to hasten away. Upon the information of the mally, Hurris and Looer, at the same time, were taken up. The mally is now in custody and will be sent up to the court.

THE COVENANT GIRL.—Letters have been received from Mrs. Manning, that the Covenant Girl, who had been sent to England in a vessel, for whose cargo she had been engaged, had been obliged to put into the Mauritius, with eight feet water in her hold, and was damaged by a storm she experienced, after passing the Cape. No casualties had occurred by her, but the crew and passengers had suffered greatly during the gale.

MR. V. LAMIN.—We are glad to learn, that the nomination of Surgeon and Superintendent of the Calcutta Dispensary by the Government of the Native Hospital, has fallen on Mr. Thomas Lamin, of the Noble Company's Dispensary, at Calcutta.

NEW COINAGE.—The new Victoria coinage has been issued from the Mint. It differs very little from the former coin, the Head of Victoria merely being substituted for William the Fourth's.

DACOITY AT AN INDIGO FACTORY.—There has been a sad dacoity at Ambayya Factory, in Perganna Mofsee. About 80 in 180 men attacked the factory at midnight of the 11th instant, and after cutting down one of the four burkundawes who guarded the door, the rest having run off, together with all the other servants about the place, they forced their way in and carried off a large heavy iron treasure chest, containing 2,800 rupees of cash, received only a day or two before into the factory. Mr. Manly, Mr. Watson's assistant there escaped and concealed himself in a paddy field during the confusion; but as he could not have it, the robbers in their retreat passed over the very field in which he had contrived to hide, and exposed him, when they attacked him and inflicted several severe wounds, mostly about his arms; one blow, however, which was aimed at his head with the intention of finishing him, struck the lower part of his cheek, which it cut off and fell on his shoulder, which is deeply wounded; the blow brought him to the ground, and the ruffians supposing him to be dead, made off after firing the hatch of the house on all sides. Most fortunately Mrs. Manly and her little girl of 8 years old were away 20 miles at Mr. Manly's brother's house at Keerpooy, and were thus providentially saved. After the departure of the robbers, Mr. M. was brought into the factory, and a man on horseback was sent off during the night to communicate the intelligence to his family and to procure assistance. This person, who had proceeded half way to Keerpooy, was met on the way by a tiger, which so frightened the horse that he turned round and did not stop till he got to instability. Another man was dispatched at day light and by 10 o'clock Mr. M.'s brother and family were on their road to Amagora but while coming over an uneven road, the horse fell with Mr. Manly, who was seriously cut and bruised; the eldest Mr. M. has been removed to Midnapore (station where there are two medical men, and with care will doubtless recover, as neither of his wounds are supposed to be mortal. It is said that the men were dacoits; but as this is the first time Mr. Watson's factory has been attacked, it is possible that it might have been done in a spirit of revenge by his rival. It is to be hoped that the Magistrate will be able to trace out the offenders, though that poor officer with 24 thanahs to look after, has not much time to spare for the investigation of one single case.

MURDER BY NIGHT.—We regret, though the following statement of a certain strange doings at Alouphyr is authenticated, we are not permitted to publish the names of the parties concerned in it; and as we are not permitted to mention names, we must in common fairness, omit that of the Magistrate who figures in

On the 5th current Mr. * * * arrived on the steamer from Calcutta, and brought two of his fellow passengers to dine, viz. Lieutenant * * * and Mr. * * *. I was also invited, and made one of the party. At 8 p.m. they left to return on board as they were going to Allahabad. Mr. * * * wishing to see the captain of the Flat, asked me to accompany him, which I consented to. On our way Messrs. * * * and * * * had a Tom and Jerry run, in which neither * * * or I took the least part; in fact, they were much in our rear. The Magistrate hearing something of it, put the Darogah up to make his report, so as to bring * * * and all into a scrape. On the 8th, he wrote us and demanded to know, why we upset down as I gates, and gave us two hours to return a reply; which if not satisfactory to him, he would fine us at full rate viz. 100 rupees and penalty bond of 2,000 rupees for Mr. * * * and 50 rupees and 1,000 rupees bond for self, and if not paid when demanded, our property to be sold and we to be imprisoned till the whole amount was paid and the bond given. No more was heard of it till the evening of the 19th when the demand was made, I refused to pay without an English receipt, which the Nazir told me the Magistrate refused to give, and would fine us double the next day, if we did not pay the demand. I thought it best to comply, and sent the cash and Mochulka to court next morning. Seeing that these magistrates exercised despotic power to the Mofussil * * * did not pay, and next day the Magistrate sent his numerous troops and myrmidons; who took forcibly much of * * * and * * * furniture out of their houses, behaved with the most brutal insolence, and auctioned it for 200 rupees, they are now after him for the Mochulka. He evaded them for the last 2 or 3 days, by being on the other side of the river, but to-morrow or next day, he will have him in jail no doubt. The whole of the proceedings were exparte; we were never called to disprove what he told the darogah to state, although we ought to have been present at the examination of the witness. I have detailed most of the particulars. Now do my dear friend, draw it up in your superior style and publish it, with any comments you please, in all the Calcutta papers. Ask the Editors to accompany the insertion with an editorial. * * * can assist you for my sake, and for all our sakes, he doubtless will. My object is to obtain justice, which a thing exists in the British dominions. It were worse than madness to expect it in the Mofussil. Here it is "Mofussil Oppression." * * * law or a new way of raising a revenue. The man has nothing to do, and therefore employs his time in thus robbing Planters, Natives and others of their money. He never fines less monthly than 1,000 rupees. There's justice!!! To induce these gentles to rob the public, the company allow them 10 per cent. on the whole. Should there be any expense we shall willingly defray it. You need not at first mention our names, but if you are called on, you may—as it is all true. What is now an Englishman's boasted liberty if a strippling may trample on him with impunity? Are not Courts of Law and justice (misnamed so) in this country miserable farces?"

THUGGERS IN CALCUTTA.—A communication has just been received by Government, from the Deputy Superintendent, for the suppression of Thuggee, requesting the assistance of the Calcutta authorities for the apprehension of about twenty men belonging to the Calcutta Militia. These men, it appears, have been away from their corps since 1834, applying for leave of absence at various times. And from information received by the Thuggee department, they are believed to be engaged in gaining a living by the atrocities of the Thuggee system. They are supposed to be practising their dark deeds in the vicinity of Calcutta, and prices have been set for each of their apprehension. The same communication likewise states, that a party of four or five persons, of the appearance of a party of four or five, carried on by Calcutta. Several respectable people, and consequently, that the way in which it is practised, is by inviting the people into the thuggee boats, which are always good boats, with commodious accommodations, and despatching them, in many cases, almost immediately after shoving off from the shore, and in broad day!

NEW OVERSEERS.—It is reported, that Mr. Oldfield of the Post Office, has sent up a proposition to Government, recommending the appointment of four European overseers to superintend the passage of the deck between this and Bombay.

THE OVERLAND MAIL.—An express, which arrived yesterday from Bombay, brings accounts from Bagdad to the 3d of October, confirming the intelligence received from Egypt of the bombardment of Beyrout. (It is stated that Soloman Pacha (Col Selva) had been unable to maintain his position at that place, and had fallen back on Damascus. Shereef Pacha, had detained the Post packets from Bagdad at Damascus, and taken out all the English letters. These would be merely a Persian Gulf despatch from Karack. His stoppage at Damascus leaves little hope for the Mail at Alexandria, we fear.

THE SALT OCEANS.—The new Superintendent of the Government Salt Golahs in Sulkea over the water, is at present making active exertions for the detection of malversation which, it is generally supposed, has long crept into that department.

THE DEATH OF CAPTAIN GUERNEC.—Our co-citizens must have heard on the 26th instant, as well as ourselves, the firing of a gun half hourly during the day, and on enquiry we ascertained it was a mark of respect, to the memory of the late Captain GUERNEC, of the Petite Nancy whose death is mentioned in our obituary list, by the officer in command. All the French vessels in the port and some of the English, had their colours half mast high on the occasion, and Captain Guernec was buried in the evening with martial honours. This gentleman was so generally known to and respected by the residents in Calcutta, that his loss will be much regretted. He was one of the first, if not the first, French commander of a merchant vessel who visited Calcutta after the peace of 1815, and his voyages have been pretty regular ever since—not, we fear, very much to his own advantage, as some of his speculations were unfortunate; but unquestionably to the gratification of all those, male or female, who delight in fine wines or fine dresses, for the supply of which the "Petite Nancy" was justly celebrated.

THE MEDICAL COLLEGE.—The examination of the advanced students at the Medical College, who applied for certificates of qualification, was yesterday concluded. Out of sixteen, nine have been deemed worthy of the distinction, the rest having been recommended to their studies for a further period. The examination, which was conducted by Drs. Grant, Drummond, Wile, Jackson and other eminent Medical men of the Presidency, was throughout of a strict and searching character, affording a gratifying measure of the acquirements of the students of the noble Institution, and reflecting the highest credit on the Professors who have the charge of their instruction. The candidates were examined in the following branches of the Medical Science viz.—Anatomy, Physiology, Chemistry, Materia Medica, Practice of Medicine and Elements of Surgery in all which their respective proficiency was tested by a very strict and impartial ordeal. This accession to the number of professional students of the College, must be extremely gratifying to those who are anxious to introduce into this country a rational and an improved system of Medical knowledge.

Wreck.—We regret to announce the total wreck of the Francis Warden, which was inward bound from India, on the 25th instant. She was on shore off Mad Point on the 25th instant, and all the efforts of her crew could not get her off. A letter from a gentleman on board the Seshorse gives the following particulars:—

Hedgees Roads, November 26th.—While at anchor in Hedgees Roads, the Nacodah of the ship Francis Warden came on board and reported his vessel on shore and in great danger of speedily becoming a wreck, and requesting us to render him our assistance. Mr. R. Venderhoff was on board the distressed vessel this morning at 9 o'clock, and found that she had, bilged and was lying on her starboard broadside—her long boat and fishing boat having been taken away the previous night. There were 40 of her lascars crew on board, whom Mr. R. told to save themselves as well as they could, in the two miserable boats which were left. At high water, after seeing the men in the boats with their chests, Mr. R. left the vessel, as nothing could be done for her, she being a complete wreck—the whole of her upper deck and most part of her poop and forecabin were under water previous to her being deserted.

Robberies.—Burglaries are getting common again in Calcutta. Several have been perpetrated during the week. One was committed in the house of a Malabar merchant living in Colootah. The house was entered by several robbers, most of whom, however, as a most unusual circumstance, have been taken by the chowkadar of the ward; who, poor fellow, well nigh got strangled for his unconstitutional vigilance. Property belonging to the Malabar is missing to the amount of three hundred rupees.

THE BODY OF YOUNG WALKER.—The body of young Walker, an unfortunate midshipman of the Owen Glen down, who fell over board on Sunday last and was drowned, was picked up on the 26th instant, near the Hindoo burning place.

Mofussil.

BIKANER.—We hear that the Maha Rana of Oodipoor, is expected at Bikaner shortly, to celebrate his marriage with the sister of Rajah Ruiten Sing. He has left Oodipoor for the purpose.

GUYA.—The Guya Ukhbar states that the Raja of that place Mituraj Singh, is gathered unto his fathers. His death is much lamented by his subjects, for he was a friend to the poor and destitute, a mild and benevolent man. Four months previous to his death, he partitioned out his Raj among his wives and sons, and retired to a place of Hindu worship at Guya, where he remained till he died.

LUDHIANA.—We learn from the Loodianah Ukhbar that Khuruk Singh is so ill, that he is not expected to recover. Should his illness take a favourable turn, however, his recovery will be very slow. His son Nao Nehal has the whole of the cares of the State on his shoulders, and a heavy burden it is, and is likely to prove.

GOVERNMENT.—The Curfew system has been enforced at Houghly and Chittaurah; and the residents have, consequently, been interdicted from stirring after 9 p. m. We are not aware that Mr. Lycett had obtained the sanction of the Governor General, before he put the inhabitants of those places to the great inconvenience of confining themselves, silent velox, within their doors after gun fire.

GENERAL.—The 1st light cavalry left for the mountains of the 25th ultimo, on which day the 9th light cavalry and the 10th light cavalry, both of which were under the command of the 25th N. I., arrived on the 25th ultimo, and left for the 25th instant. Major General Elphinstone inspected the different regiments, and gave them unqualified praise for their excellent appearance.

The general also inspected the 10th and 15th regiments, N. I., on the parade ground, and complimented the commanding officers upon the very efficient and orderly state of their regiments.

The officers of the 10th N. I. entertained General Elphinstone at dinner on Friday last; the sitting was prolonged to a late hour, although the general retired early.

700 camels laden with Military Stores, leave the station this morning to join the conveyance preparing for Cabul. The same number left during the last month.

G. F. Harvey, Esq., Sessions Judge, returned to the station on the 31st ultimo.

The 20th N. I. escorted a load of 10 diagonally milled Enrickabad rupees to this treasury. They will be sent on to Loodianah.

The 20th from Rampore are eagerly looked for and wait from all accounts be very acceptable to the Treasury as the troops, we hear, are in arrears for more than two months, and the inconvenience is greatly felt.

A troupe of carts laden with some 500 stand of arms on their way from Allahabad to this, were attacked by a band of robbers, about six marches from Delhi. The fellows expected to get hold of treasure, but the escort, a Naick and six apoys, drove them off after firing a volley. One poor gairawan was severely hurt by a blow from a club.

SCINDIA.—The fever season has commenced in Lower Scinde, and sickness is at present very prevalent—especially towards Shikarpore.

The Meer of Khytpoor and his brother are, as usual, quarrelling and fighting with each other. A strong force, consisting of H. M. 40th, 1 company of the 2nd grenadiers, 3 companies of the Bengal 38th and 2 guns, were about to be despatched from Sukkar to endeavour to pacify the strife. This was reckoned heavy duty for regiments already so much done up with severe fatigue. Fortunately the Bengal 38th had just arrived, and what chiefly required the means of conveying stores and baggage. The country is almost entirely stripped of camels, and they are consequently dear and very difficult to be come by at all. A good camel will at present cost from Rs 90 to 95; (£9 to £9 10.) One Correspondent writes us; "unless the authorities manage better, we are in a fair way of not being able to move at all for want of these useful animals; the country not affording for age for any other kind of cattle."

The grenadiers, whose head quarters had returned to Sukkar, had lost 80 men. Numbers of the camel men who ran away when the Murrees commenced their attack, had returned with many of their camels, and joined Major Chibborne on his march, and after his arrival at Shikarpore. In this way about 400 had lately been saved. Some of the doolie-wallahs and horse keepers had also come straggling in, so that many supposed to have been killed, were safe in camp.

It was reported by the last stricken defendant, that he had been in the station, one of the officers in the Department, had been ordered, contacted to inform him after the arrest that he had been married to a woman named Dore, the name of the Board was 42 miles from Kansas, he received a communication having got him into special about.

The country between Sukkur and Tharpore is, in great measure, covered with water; so that camels can not at present, pass from the one point to the other.

The 38th N. I. marched from Bekkur on the night of the 9th instant, towards Kohaw, near the Gundava Pass. On the preceding evening the regiment entertained the officers, when a party of nearly twenty sat down to dinner.

RESTORATION OF KHELAT—A report has reached us from a source we deem worthy of credit, that the Murree tribes, in upper Scinde, have come over to our interest, and that Khelat has been again made over to us. It is thus the game is played by these rascals, the Government ought to be first of such tricks, and bear to mind that fear has proved its mastery over disaffection, merely for the time being, how to put it out of the power of these tribes to turn upon us at the first reverse, if ever a failure or but generalship produces one again, will be perhaps a difficult task, but one to which strenuous attention should be given, we would advocate, if not a deep revenge, yet the striking of such a blow as should leave it impracticable for years to come, and the demolition of every strong hold not required by our forces. The gathering of the troops in such strength as is now taking place is the only reason of this fresh display of fealty, it is to be counted upon beyond such it as we keep up the amount of our force which we do not suppose the intention of government to do and we sincerely hope that measures have been taken, as and it is our wish, but friends are not to be allowed a pretext of exempting every kind of punishment, and to suit their alliance to their convenience.

REPORTS.—We have received letters from Lihree to the 23rd of September, which confirm the accounts we gave in our prospect of yesterday, as to the safety of Captain Brown and the brave garrison of Kithn, and we fervently hope they will be able to hold out until some relief reaches them. The privations have been great and their torture and misery under them excite the deep sympathy of the whole community. We had from our correspondent that Nusser Khan Mehrab Khan and his now at Mooling with a powerful force and that he gives out "if he were ceasing taking Quetta" shall afterward attack Durr and Lohre. It is now said that he has taken them and men with him but the Beluchee report a little to be relied upon. However that as precaution might be taken, the men of the 5th Regt N I, in a very few days attack only by camp to slow (as all had become) with Major (Libb's force) and with only 6 picks and 8 powahs, they intrenched a square in front of the neopos lines of 50 yards by 30, and 2 guns were placed at the angles. The intrenchment was formed with a ditch bank and palisades. If any fighting takes place, it will be rather hard work, as the whole force only consists of 150 able men with 70 sick and 54 recruits. However they are all in high spirits and wish much to be permitted to go to the relief of Captain Brown who is a general favorite. Captain Heath is at Dadar with 175 men and 2 guns. If Nusser Khan succeeds at Quetta he will have to bear the brunt of the first attack. The old kales Pultun ban suffered severely since his arrival in Seinde and if any thing should occur adverse at Dadar or Lihree, the Regiment will almost be annihilated. The Marrees boast that they have taken 4 lakhs of treasure, at least so the Saucars say at Lihree. The climate is still very oppressive. The west. Wind velocity 10 m.p.h. Clouds 100 per cent.

Precipitation 0.00 in. Barometer 30.00 in. Hg.
Observations: School boys playing football. They be hoped Government will take their case into our consideration, and award such compensation as the severity of their cases demand.

"The Zemba Sidam arrived from the hills on the 18th October and brought news of the 1st October. Browne and his party had just arrived at Shikarpore. The Murrees had never for an hour been out of our coverage after the defeat at Surtout on the 1st September, so that it was no difficult matter for Captain Browne to make terms with their chief. He was permitted to march out with all his men, his stock, his baggage, his guns and all munitions of war. In passing through the beautiful mountain country where so many diamond hills of late been encoughlered, he experienced interruption and annoyance, reached Shikarpore, (our correspondent does not mention at what date, but it must have been about the 3d or 4th October,) all safe, in good health, and in the same high spirits by which he and his men have throughout been animated."

CABUL—Letters have been received from Cabul, to the 4th of October giving the following items of news :

The detachment under Sir Robert Sale, which had been sent against some chiefs of the Kohistan, who had been detected in corresponding with Dost Mahomed, had succeeded, without any difficulty, in capturing the town and three forts belonging to Ali Khan and Rujah Khan, the two principal of those chiefs. The victory seems to have been nearly bloodless, but General Sale mentions with deep regret, that Captain Edward Connolly, an Assistant on Sir W. MacNaghien's Staff, who was acting as Aide-de-Camp was shot through the heart at his side. The only other casualties mentioned are two men of the 13th Queen's, and two of the grandsons of the 31st Native Infantry wounded. The occupation of these forts is considered of importance, as it was to them that Dost Mahomed had been invited to repair.

Our readers will join in the regret of General Sale, that this decisive advantage should have cost the life of a promising young officer; but such, alas! is the price at which victory must too often be purchased.

Brigadier Dennie, with his detachment from Bameean, reached Syzhan on the 24th of September, and found that Dost Mahomed, with the Oosbeg force, had rapidly retreated, on hearing of his advance. The fall of snow having commenced, the pursuit was not continued through the mountains towards Kooloom. The Fort of Syzhan was to be destroyed. The latest intelligence shows, that the Wales of Kooloom had entered into negotiations for repurchasing his interests from those of Dost Mahomed, and that an arrangement had been made with him, the particulars of which do not appear from the letters yet received.

In the affair of the 29th September, in the Kohistan in which a town and three forts belonging to the people in insurrection had been taken, the enemy, though occupying a very strong position, do not seem to have stood the attack, but fled across an unfordable river with precipitation. There was, therefore, little loss on either side. On the 3d October, Sir Robert Sale attacked a fort named Joolga, said to be the principal stronghold of the rebels. The walls were found too thick to be effectively breached by the 9-pounder guns which he had with him, and two high to be reached by the scaling ladders. The quailing column, which had advanced in the belief that the breach was practicable, and which behaved with conspicuous gallantry, was in consequence, compelled to retire, leaving, we are sorry to say, 11 men of his Majesty's 13th, and 1 of the 37th N. I. killed, and having 12 men wounded. The vigour of the attack had, however, so intimidated the garrison, who must have also suffered severely from our fire, that they immediately afterwards fled, and possession was obtained of the place, which was destroyed on the day on which the despatches were sent off. It was regretted that the rebel chiefs had by this means escaped, but there appeared not to be likelihood of any necessity for further protracted operations. The Doonance Horse are mentioned to have behaved well.

Lucknow.—A letter from Lucknow states—The famous dacoit Mongul Sain has at length been taken. The Resident applied to the King, nearly six months ago, for the use of one of Robert's Regiments, with the view of apprehending the rebel, who was well entrenched in the jungles of Namparra, and Toolseepoor (under the Nepal hills) with nearly two thousand fighting men. In consequence of a whole Regiment, not being available, six companies were employed for this service. The Resident of Catmandoo was also asked to afford assistance, in case of Mongul Sain's taking shelter in the Nepal territories. The Oude Force drove the dacoits into Nepal, but as they received orders, not to enter that territory, they did not follow them but, were obliged to remain in the Terree. The marauder was caught by the Nepaless and by them handed over to Lieutenant Hollings, of the Thuggee Department, who had accompanied the Oude Force under the command of Captain Need. This expedition against the Budducks, who have been all caught, now seemingly at an end, but the climate has shewn its effects both upon the officers and men. Lieutenant and Adjutant MacDonagh, a most powerful man, and of a splendid constitution, has died of the jungle fever; Lieut Kinder has been obliged to go on leave. Every man belonging to the Grenadier and Light Company, has been laid up, and many are dead, and others dying every day. The rest of the Regiment very sickly. What could otherwise have been expected from a corps which has been during the hot winds and rains under canvas, and at the breaking up of the monsoons in the Terree.

SCINDE, SHIKARPORE.—The following interesting items have been received from Shikarpore :—

F 13th October 1840.—We are encamped here, waiting the arrival of the left wing of the 40th Queen's when we progress together to attack the enemy, said to be distant from us about 50 miles. This Mehrab Khan seems to know what he is after, as he has taken possession of the only wells from this to Bagh.

14th.—The wing of the 40th Queen's, arrived here this morning, under Major Bo-cawen. As he is the senior officer here, he assumes command of the force and we march to-morrow, at 4, to Jaughun, next day to, Jamedara, 3d day to Rajhan, where commence the desert, and we are expected to traverse this place at night in 14 hours, on the 4th day, and then attack the enemy. Two guns are to join us, with about 300 irregular horse and Queen's 38th and 40th regiments, are to form part of our force, making in all about 1,200 men, oppose about 5,000. No matter it is a compact little force, and the men cheerful and contented.

SUKKUR.—Letters up to 10th inst, 14th of October have been received from the right wing of 11. M. 40th Regiment. They state, that intelligence had been received, that the Belooches were assembled in some force at Kudra, at a distance of from 4 to 5 marches from Luckee, where they were encamped, and they hoped to bring them to action about the 18th instant. Great fears seemed to be entertained that these marauders would descend into the plains, and laying waste the country, render supplies of every kind scarce and exorbitant in price. The left wing of H. M. 40th Regiment with Captain Cargrave's company of Artillery marched from Kurra-chee at 3 A. M. of the 18th, and on the very same day at half-past one P. M. the left wing of H. M. 41st marched into camp most opportunely. The 31st Regiment Bombay N. I. were to march from Kurra-chee on the 20th. No other news was arriving at the time our correspondent's letter was dated.

Letters from Scinde describe the success of General Nott as very great; he had given a very signal defeat to the people of the Shawl country; many of whom were killed.

In our supplement of Tuesday last it was mentioned that Lord Auckland had ordered General Nott to proceed to the attack on Khelat as it was probable that General Brooks from Bombay would not arrive in time.

AFGHANISTAN, — BAMEEAN.—The following is the latest intelligence—received on Saturday morning—from Bameean. Dost Mahomed, it will be seen, has fallen back upon Heibuck:—

Oct 1.—Yesterday we returned from Syghan, having completed a treaty with the Meer Waller, and left some lasting records of our progress. We had scarcely reached Akrobat, when we heard that the Amer and his Usbeg army had retreated from Syghan, and that the former had started from Guree: before moving, however, they had thrown garrisons of 60 and 100 men into Hiatoo and Sairi-Sung. At the time of our reaching Akrobat, the enemy had a picquet at the pass, who observed our entrance into the valley, and immediately withdrew and gave information of our approach; the consequence was, that next morning, on our march towards Syghan, we learnt that the Usbega had abandoned both forts, after setting fire to Hiatoo. Our camp was pitched there on the 23rd, and in the course of the day the gateway of the fort was destroyed. Next day found us at Syghan. Mahomed Ali Beg and his sons had fled to Kamurd, and the only chief left in the valley was Foudad Beg, who came in and met Lord. The former, though never any particular friend to us, has of course been taken into favour, and is now master of the whole valley. Immediately on our arrival, the destruction of the fort of Sairi-Sung was commenced, and of this ancient structure, scarce a stone remains standing. One of the towers was blown up with 60 lbs. of powder, and the gateway and walls (of masonry) were destroyed by the pioneers with pick axes. It is well that we have done this, as an enemy will have now no longer a stronghold at Syghan, which might be the means of annoyance to the Bameean detachment. The fort we could have breached from a hill to the south, but a breach on that side would have been of no further use, than that it would have completely exposed the interior of the work, and the garrison must eventually have surrendered. The breach, if made in the southern face, could not have been stormed, as the rock is on that side perpendicular. The only accessible front is to the East, in which the gateway is situated, and which is much stronger than any of the other sides.

On the 25th, a messenger arrived from the Meer Waller; the latter wrote that, since Dost Mahomed Khan had left, he was willing to treat with us. The elchee departed the same day with letters, containing proposals; and the next day another messenger came in from Kamurd, to request that the Political Agent would send an officer to the Waller, to arrange a personal conference between Lord, and the former. Lieutenant Rattray accordingly visited the Waller on the 27th, and on the following day the Meer Waller met the Political Agent on the summit of the Dundas Shikan; and the following terms were agreed on.

1st.—That either army should occupy the following day.

This was a capital arrangement, and we kept our part of the contract most faithfully. Whether the Meer Waller was equally strict in the performance of his promise, is as yet unknown.

2nd.—The Waller, in the height of his generosity, gave up, Ayroos, I and we, determined not to be outdone in liberality gave Kamurd to his tender keeping!

The Meer, at first, was rather anxious to have both Syahin and Akrobat (according to the original grab made by the Shah), but as he found the Political Agent fully determined against this, he at last generously waived the point.

3rd.—Heiback to be retained by the Meer and Baha Beg, late chief of that place, to be allowed to go whithersoever he may please.

We should have insisted no more favourable terms for this chief, had it not been lately discovered, that he had for a long time, been carrying on an intrigue with the King of Bokhara.

4th.—The Meer Waller engaged that he would neither harbour nor assist Dost Mahomed Khan, nor any of his family.

I fear this is a promise made to be broken,.

5th.—Dr. Lord promise to present a telescope to the Meer.

I forgot to tell you before, that the Waller wrote from Ilatno (before the action) to Dr. L. a letter full of complaints, of broken promises; the most serious charge, however seemed to be that Dr. Lord had promised him a doorbarn, which he never received.

Such are the terms of the treaty between the British and the Waller of Kooloom. Any arrangement is at this juncture of affairs, desirable; but I cannot consider any treaty satisfactory, unless it be ratified within the Walls of Kooloom. The Meer has gained a considerable accession of territory, and we have gained a loss; not that the loss of Bajgah is much to be regretted; the contrary is the case, but the Meer Waller has unfortunately discovered; that we are not, any more than other mortals invulnerable. He has acquired, by this treaty, and by his arms, Heiback Sarbagh, Dooab Rajgah, and Kamurd; his dominions now extend to the summit of the Dundon Shikun. However, he has learnt this, that had he remained quiet at Kooloom, his rule would have extended still further, and he has also discovered, by painful experience, that his whole army, even when assisted by the popular ex-ruler of Cabul, and by the chief of Koonduob, cannot cope with a small detachment of our army.

Bameenn, October 2, 1840.—"Yesterday afternoon, Moolla Waller Shah arrived here from the Meer's camp. The reason of his visit, is this; Dost Mahomed Khan departing of success in Khoistan has gone to Heiback. The Meer Waller, as I told you in yesterday's letter, agreed not to harbour the ex-chief; and, accordingly, has sent his minister to us; he is willing to try his persuasive powers on the Dost to induce him to surrender but will not openly give him up. Lieut. Rattray and the Moollah started this morning on their way to Heiback; I hope their mission will be successful. The Waller withdrew from Kamurd, according to agreement, and, was yesterday at Hees, a stage beyond the Kam Kooni.

The Cabul Bank appears still to conduct very irregularly. The letter of the 1st of October, came in the day after that of the 31, and was unaccompanied.

The 4th Troop, third Brigade of Horse Artillery, was to have marched with the 2d N. I. from Bameenn to Cabul on the 31 ultimo. The troop has been stationed at the former place ever since the latter end of September 1839 and after more than a year of "ready quarters" at the "gigantic rabbit-warren," the Bameenn has been called; we sincerely congratulate them on their return to a habitable a place, as the Metropolis of Afghanistan. We hear that there is some talk of abandoning Bameenn altogether, but do not think that so imprudent a measure will be adopted at present; it is said that Dost Mahomed, if he falls in, Kobistan, will try his luck at Bajore. He does not seem to have the least intention of following the example of his friend Meer Waller, but will fight it out, until his legs are smitten off and then he will fight on his humps.

Cabul.—We have little or no news from Afghanistan this week but it appears that there were twelve men killed in the assault upon the forts mentioned as captured in our last issue. A private letter from Cabul mentions the murder of Lieutenant John Shaw, of the 2d N. I., who was found with his throat cut in his tent. The deed is supposed to have been committed by his own servant who made use of the deceased officer's sword—two of them have been apprehended.

All is at present quiet at Cabul and its vicinity but of course, this state of tranquility will not under present circumstances, be of long duration.

Rox.—Abdool Kurreem Khan fled the other day from his brother's roof, taking with him some armour, whom the Nuwah had recently discharged. He went to Chupra visited it at night with a Chupra, killing the Nuwah's Anil, with some others, and carried away all he could lay his hands on. He afterwards retreated into the Harowl country.

Letters from Lucknow state, that the 55th regt, of native infantry, and the left wing of the 3d, marched from Oude for Meerut on the 1st instant and that the right wing was to follow in a day or two, they having found it impossible to proceed with the right wing, for want of carriage.

Scinde.—A letter from Upper Scinde, of the 22d October, states as above:—

"The Force under Major Roscoe arrived at Kundah on the 18th, the 25th Bombay Native Infantry (now nearly 1,000 bayonets) with 2 guns, reached Jull on the same date. An express from Major Roscoe has just reached me, stating that on the 19th he heard of an advanced party of the Bahoree being close to him. He attacked and gave them a very heavy thrashing, killing 50. The loss on our side was 2 killed and 5 wounded. He was pushing on to Oodhans, (half way between Kundah and Gundava) where a strong body of the Bahorees then were, but they will fall back on Kotrali, (in the mouth of the Moolla Pass.) Major B. and the 25th will unite at Gundava, and attack the Bahoree at Kotra, should they wait there for him, but it is feared they will run away.

The 6th Bombay Native Infantry arrived at Sukkur this evening and there is a sufficient number of camels to push them on. They are very strong both in men and officers, and quite healthy and serviceable.

Letters from Cabool to the 15th October, mention receipt of authentic intelligence, to the effect that Dost Mahomed, having heard of the mission of Lieut. Battray from Bamegan, left the Khelsoom Territory, and moved rapidly, with about 200 followers, through the Ghorebund Pass into the Nijona country, or the northern portion of the Kohistan. His further plans had not been ascertained up to the date of the despatches.

SCHOOL.—Sir Claude M. Wade has established an English school for Native youth at this place, the expenses of which have been fixed at 3,000 rupees per annum, to be defrayed by rental contributions from the Sudras, and such Natives of the City.

ILLNESS.—Khurub Singh is convalescent, but in a state of great weakness. Lieutenant J. D. Cunningham, the surgeon, has been deputed by the Political Agent, to accompany our troops through the Punjab.

AFGHANISTAN.—We are able to state, on what we believe to be good authority, that two lack of rupees are offered by His Majesty Shah Sujah-ul Moolk, for the apprehension of the Ex-Ameer Dost Mahomed—who in his travels, recently passed within a very few miles—less than ten days our informant—of the British Camp, attended by but a few followers and in route, as understood, to Kohistan.

It was thought Dost Mahomed had gone away to the Eastward to Nigron, but the nature of his reception was not known.

His sons who escaped from Ghuznia are not getting followers to join them.

GUJARAT.—The notorious robber chief Gujraj Singh, who has so long exercised his vocation in these territories with impunity and whom the Maharajah had hitherto failed in securing, has been at last captured by a party of the Thuggee department, aided by the Maharajah's people.

NEPAUL.—A gentleman just arrived from Patna writes, that he had been shown a letter from Mr. Hodgson our Resident at Katmandoo, to a military officer, stating, that his Mr. Hodgson's life was in the most imminent danger, as there were 28,000 Nepalese assembled on the Hills, ready to pour down upon our territories in the plains, on receiving orders to that effect from China. There was great excitement in Katmandoo and Mr. Hodgson, consequently, apprehended danger from some popular outbreak.

PUNJAB.—Authentic intelligence has been received of the death of Maharajah Khuruck Singh, at Lahore. Forty six minute guns, corresponding to the years of his age, were fired from the ramparts of Fort William. When after the Maharajah's death, a procession was leaving the Palace for the performance of ceremonies on the banks of the Ravee, a beam fell, in consequence, it is believed, of the great pressure of elephants within the portal; and the Koonwar Nao Nehal Singh, the heir to the Sovereignty of the Punjab received a severe injury, of which he died a few days after. Nao Nehal Singh was twenty-two years of age when he died.

No sooner was the melancholy event, of Khuruck Singh's death, made known to the Undaron than the Ronee Jawar Koonr, sister of Sirdar Mungol Singh, expressed her firm determination to burn, and accordingly about 11 o'clock of the same day, she was immolated with three of her hand-maidens.

RAJAH MAHOMED, the brother of Dost Mahomed, residing at Lahore, is said to be the person who supplied the arms of war from that capital which were intercepted while he gave out, that the money proceeding from the Sikh Government, we suppose, he will, soon be turned out of the Sikh territory.

SCINDS QUETTA.—A letter from Quetta of the 13th ultimo says, that Belooches were actively engaged in the defence of Khelat and had built up every access to the Citadel, and stockaded the principal parts of the city. The 43rd Regiment N. I., were to leave on the 17th or 18th of October, and would reach Khelat in ten marches. The heavy battering guns from Candahar, had not crossed the Kojak Pass at the date of our communication, but were expected to do so daily. Captain Bean the Political Agent, had been very ill but was recovering.

General Nott had not started for Kelat on the 13th ultimo. He arrived at Quetta on the 23d or 24th of September, with the light company of the 42d N. I. and some Risallahs of Local Horse.

KUNDAN.—22d october.—On the arrival of the force composed of the wing of the 40th Regiment and Captain Currie's Horse at Kundu; intelligence arrived of the assistant Political Agent who accompanied it, that a party of Brahmins were coming down with a large number of camels, purposing, and preparing to carry away the plunder after an attack upon the town.

The "Horse" were immediately on their tack, but although on foot, and carefully guarding their camels, the rebels succeeded for some time in keeping our sowers at bay, among some close and thick jowarree jungle firing their match-locks on all accounts, and repounding. The Brahmins making for still thicker jungle and the Infantry not having had time to come up Captain Currie's

"Horse" were formed in two columns, led by Lieutenant Postans and Captain Currie. The sowers behaved most gallantly, while the rebels fought and fell upon their ground. 140 were killed, and 84 camels captured. Our own loss, consisted of 2 sowers killed and 3 severely wounded.

Nusseer Khan expected daily at Dadur—his descent into the plains will probably rest his fate. The blow which has now been struck, will doubtless produce a very salutary check to the spirit of opposition which late success has induced among the rebels, and followed up, as we hope it will be, will tend to relieve the plains from the destructive presence of the Hill Tribes—and establish peace and protection to the inhabitants of Cutchee.

SUKKUM, OCTOBER 23.—Letters from Dadur of the 14th instant speak of their all being well and quite ready for any Beloochees, who might think fit to descend the pass. A large body of Brahmins were in the Bolao, about 24 miles from Dadur. The principal chiefs are gone back to Khelat, being apprehensive General Nott would pounce upon it if all were absent. The great body of the rebels with Mabrab Khan's son at their head do not appear to have made up their mind, what to do. They expect to be assailed by the Murrees who have promised to join them, with two guns taken in the late affair. The 38th Bengal and a Wing to it M 40th arrived at Kundu on the Northern side of the desert. They found the place completely gutted; and that the Brahmins had plundered all the villages, and the poor, inhabitants fled to the mountains. The 46th and the 31 Horse got intelligence of a party of the wounded men were being sent off with 83 camels loaded with supplies. They immediately picked them up and sent them to the camp, guarded by 50 of the enemy. Nearly the whole of the British were killed and the remainder. The place, in that direction were covered with these plunderers and these seemed plenty to do. The 26th had reached Jal, 2 marches from Guntava and would soon be there. The 6th came into camp this morning.

Ross Bell's political authority has been extended to Capulshar, so that, in addition to Upper Scinde, he has now Kheilat and Shawl under his charge pretty good proof of the estimation he is held in by the Government.

AFGHANISTAN—CANDAHAR.—Matters at Kandahar were in a very unsettled state and the inhabitants extremely discontented owing to the outrageous proceedings of Futeh Jung, the Governor and the sons of Shah Dost. His profligacy and oppression, were carried to the most disgusting lengths. His income by allowance as Governor, of 1,400 rupees, was frequently swollen by rapacity, to a lakh, or whatever could be wrung from the people by the most loathsome means. In one instance rupees 3,000 were extorted from the relations of a merchant, who was previously subject to the most atrocious cruelty. His money thus villainously obtained, is squandered in the grossest profligacy and the shameless and excessive indulgence of a common Eater. Shah Shojah threatens for he has the grace to threaten his debauched son—are totally disregarded, and the young man, unrestrained by fear of any one, carries his profligacy and idleness to a length that is expected to produce an inheritance. Such at least is the picture given by persons on the spot of this heinous member of a family, who did not appear to possess even one small virtue amid a thousand crimes, vices, a depravity that fully explains the hatred of the Afghans, and their restlessness under such a rule.

CABUL 27th October.—The last of the Bameran detachment has arrived at Cabul—the Gorkh as a chief in on the 24th. It is well that the force has been withdrawn from that transmontane post, which during the year, is necessarily cut off from Cabul, and dependent on its own resources. The system of small detachments at a distance from their support is fatal in the extreme. In quiet times they are useless, and should even in my opinion they become a burthen requiring assistance from headquarters. By sending out these petty detachments we show our weakness to the enemy, it was the case at Bameran and doubtless this minor weakness induced the fourkhan chiefs to attack us. Then reinforcements were sent—Afghan levies, and this instead of strengthening the detachment enlarged it still more—1,310 Afghans were sent to assist 910 Hindustanis but the steady gallantry of the little Gorkhas, and the cool and resolute behaviour shown by the officers commanding the Afghan regiments, averted the danger. Captain Hopkins, at the risk of his life, went after his panic-stricken men, and brought back some 300 of them to their colours. The Jaunboas I told you before, behaved splendidly—once in lead, they were, near following the example of the Afghan infantry. They turned to go, but on their riding after them and telling them that they had mistaken the road they followed him to their proper post.

But when all these events were heard of in Cabul, then was the mistake perceived and a regiment of Hindustanis, though such could scarcely be spared from the capital, was sent to the assistance of Bameran, and all ended well, and now Khostam has become the scene of war, the Dost said and truly, "I am like a wooden spoon, you may throw me hither and thither, but I shall not be hurt." If we drive him from his present haunts, he will soon make his appearance in a fresh direction, and wherever he is there will be disaffection.

Khostan.—We have several letters from the "Kohistan Force" and from one dated 14th near Khostan. On 15th October, we gather that on the morning of the 13th, intelligence was brought into camp that Dost Mahomed had come through the "Chalchul" Pass at a "poted Durrah" early that morning, and that he had taken up his quarters in a fort some 15 miles distant. The spy reported that the Dost's party were very much exhausted and knocked up, and that a strong party of Cavalry was immediately dispatched the chance was in favor of his being intercepted, and that he had not more than a hundred followers with him. On 15th, Lieut. Dawson with 200 Jan Boars, and 300 of the "Shazail" Populizies (the lot of upper gentlemen) set out. However, they were unsuccessful. When the party arrived at the fort, they found that Dost Mahomed had left it about 10 the same morning for Najoud. Arrived, we observe on James's map, at some twenty miles almost due East of Charekar, where it is supposed he will remain until smothered. Lieut. Dawson with the party almost in his power, had to fight about and refuse to Charekar where he arrived at 9 P.M. Two of the Ex-rulers' houses, who were completely knocked up, were brought into camp. Desertion we are sorry to say, still continues, on the morning of the 14th October a whole company of Lieut. Mable's regiment of Khistanies went off to their Old Ruler, and it is feared that another company will take the first opportunity of following their example. The company, which has been sent, could have been relied upon above the others.

On the morning of the 15th October Camp was pitched near Ku a Bhag after a long march over a heavy country, and preparations were made for the attack of a fort in the neighborhood, which it was supposed would give our people some trouble as it was of a much stronger kind than any yet assailed, or met with in the valley. It is represented as having a high rampart wall, very thick, strong bastions at the angles, and a double gate.

The Chief who was in possession of it, was written to come into our terms, but returned an answer to this effect: "You were all day long battering the fort of Jon gh and did not get in after all, besides you let Meir Murz escape. Now, my fort is a stronger one than his, I have sent my family a good way away, and you may come when it is convenient to you, but I must distinctly tell you that I can never bow to a Kafir King and I'll fight to the last."

A later letter from Camp, dated 17th October, gives particulars of the result of the bit of brigadoccio indulged in by the valiant Chief of Baboo Koochgur.

"The Field Force under Major General Sir R. Sale, K.C.B., moved in battle array at 10 A.M. with every prospect of meeting most strenuous opposition. The fort of 'Baboo Khoosh, Ghur' was supposed, from report, to be a very strong place, and its approach lined with high garden walls for miles around.

Shortly before the column moved off, Captain Saunders of Engineers, accompanied by a strong reconnoitering party consisting of a squadron of the 2d Light Cavalry, two companies of the 27th regt. N. I. and two 6 pounder guns, the whole under Captain James Fraser, marched. Our road lay over ravines, water courses, wet fields and kave knows what. On the reconnolooking party hearing the fort, the garrison took flight and bolted, and the troops took peaceful possession.

We have all been sadly disappointed, for from the threat of the Chief and the number of his followers, we expected nothing short of a second Balafoz.

Dost Mahomed's son had arrived in the Ghorbund Pass with 400 Infantry and 200 horse. The Dost was still at "Nyrow."

Captain Sanders is to destroy the fort of Bahan Khwakh Ghor, after that, the force is to move to Ak Sarai and take up a position for the purpose of watching the Dost's movements.

Letters which may be depended upon from Major General Sale's camp, dated the 19th ultimo from Khush Durra state that a strong body of about 5 or 600 men, made a night attack about 9 p.m. of the 18th, but Sir Robert was prepared, and made suitable dispositions, the enemy made no impression on the camp, but kept a brassy fire from garden walls and ravines until midnight—the loss on our part was very trifling. From the darkness of the night, and the broken nature of the ground, Major General Sale very properly did not attempt to move, but remained on the defensive.

The following is a fuller account of the affair:

On the evening of the 31st October, Joolgah was evacuated by the enemy; on the following day the bastions were destroyed, and we quitted the ground at 1 p.m. marching 9 miles and encamping in the valley of the Ghorbund river, a short distance westward of the site of the ancient city of Bighram.

There we remained until the 8th, and Sir Alexander Burnes received the submission of some chief of importance, who previously to the Joolgah affair, had refused to acknowledge Shah Sufojah.

On the 8th we marched to Chhrekur, over 6 miles of the most abominable country ever crossed by an army. We were 4½ hours on the march and the mortar carts drawn by bullocks so completely broke down, that Lieut. Maule's regiment of Kohistanas were sent to draw the carriages to camp by the drag-rope.

On the 14th October, Dost Mahomed passed through the Kohistan and reached Nyrow, and it became necessary to observe the roads from that valley towards Cabul. On the 15th we marched to Kamhagh and encamped about a mile southward of the village. On the 15th and 16th we made enquiry concerning the fort of a rebel chief, named Dervvesh Khan, about 6 miles further down the Koh-i-daman. The reports made it very much stronger than any we had seen, and the road was said to lead through narrow lanes and orchards occupied by the adherents of the Dervvesh. On the 17th we were about to move, with the prospect of skirmishing through the enclosed country, when an Afghan friend offered to show us another road practicable for guns and avoiding the enclosures. He performed his promise well, and at about 2 p.m. we arrived before the fort, which the enemy abandoned without resistance. On the 18th the bastions were destroyed.

On the afternoon of the 18th October, some officers looking towards the village of Kardurrah, about 3½ miles west of camp, espied a large body of armed men collected apparently for some enterprise. They were in number between 800 to 1,000, and one party displayed a banner. The Cavalry was immediately formed in a line, facing towards Kardurrah, and messengers were sent to enquire the object of the assembly. The reply was quite positive and our expectations were lulled, though great precautions were taken to prevent any chance of surprise. At a little before 9 p.m., the night being dark, we were attacked in front and rear at the same moment by about 800 men, who were completely covered by the ravines and walls which approached close to our camp. The fire continued bravely until past 11 o'clock, but fortunately was directed so high, that very little damage was sustained by one party. One remainder of the Shah's regular cavalry was killed, together with one esopoy of the 37th N. L., a few men and horses were wounded, and nothing was missing. The assailants having expended all their ammunition, retired in disgust, carrying off one man killed and one badly wounded by the few shots that were fired by our men. On the 19th we were joined by the six companies 37th and by the 2 nine pounders from Cabul, and on the 20th we advanced 4 miles, and encamped near the garden ground of Kardurrah and the adjacent village of Beyduck. It was determined to attack the place next morning, and the enemy seemed very confident in the strength of their position and resolute to defend it.

The night passed quietly, and our men rose on the morning of the 21st October, fresh and ready for action. The cavalry with a wing 37th and 2 six-pounders were sent against the eastern front of the enemy's position, while the main body of Infantry with the nine pounder and mortar batteries took the road to Beyduck, beyond which was said to be a position, attainable by guns, and from which Kardurrah might be cannonaded. We had not moved a mile when villagers came to say that the whole of the enemy had taken to flight, and that the village of Kardurrah was without an inhabitant. The advanced guard leaving its guns, went forward to destroy the village, and the remainder of the troops returned to camp.

On examining the position which the enemy (800 or 1,000 in number) had not ventured to defend, we became immediately sensible that their want of courage had spared us the loss of probably one half of our men, to say nothing of the possibility of an unequalled defeat the difficulties presented by the ground to our enemy assailing the village cannot be adequately described, vineyards and gardens forming a succession of terraces, one above the other, on the steep hill side, garden walls without number, and trees of all sorts, closely planted, were obstacles to be surmounted ere the village itself could be attained; and the village was of considerable extent, containing about 800 flat roofed houses, the streets so narrow that only one horse man could pass through the nest of them and only 2 or 3 lanes giving entrance from beyond the walls of the place, which was built on a steep ascent, houses rising above house like a series of irregular steps. Had the enemy defended this ground with resolution, it would have been scarcely possible for us to have carried the village. The road proved to be impracticable for guns, and that one could have given but little assistance to the assailants from any position which it could have attained in the course of the morning.

The village having been partially destroyed, and the vineyard relieved of immense quantity of the most beautiful grapes that we had ever beheld, the force marched on the 22d October and encamped on an open plain between Ak Sarai and Kamhagh, where it remains.

I will close this letter with an account of an execution which took place in front of our camp at Chhrekur, on the 14th instant, as it will convey to our readers an idea of the degree of civilization to which the Afghans have attained.

An Afghan having two wives and a male servant was murdered by the servant who took unto himself one of the widows. The other women, when the British entered the city, were all changed of marriage, and the person who had been married to a husband.

The Shahzadeh, and his wife, to compromise the matter, offering to make good the fine room his own treasury, but the complaint would not compromise, and the law was thus carried into effect.

The culprit, with his hands tied behind him, walked out to the front of the camp and placed on his knees. The woman, veiled, rushed at him with a large Afghan knife, which she buried in his body two or three times, turning it round at each thrust. The poor wretch felt mortally wounded, but not nearly dead, and his throat was quietly cut by some relations of the murdered man. The body was then stretched out where it fell, and a crew of children covered it with stones.

PUNJAB.—Our letters from the Punjab, dated the 14th instant, state that Colonel Shelton's Brigade crossed the Sutledge on the 13th and every thing seemed to indicate that the passage through the Punjab would be achieved without the slightest trouble.

Punjab Bank of Sutledge. Nov. 14.—The force consisting of Captain Nichol's troop of horse artillery 5th Cavalry, H. M.'s 44th regiment, and 54th and 27th regiment of N. I. with the depot of H. M.'s 13th, under Captain Fenwick and all under the command of Col. Shelton H. M.'s 4th, left Peshawar at 5 o'clock this morning, and crossed the Sutledge to our present ground, over as fine a bridge of boats as I would wish to see made, and provided by our loving friends the Sikhs who, by the same token, are far more quiet and peacefully disposed than soldiers of fortune was. There is not a doubt but that the brigade will receive greater facility in its progress through the Punjab than even in the company's territory, certainly with fully as much as we experienced through the protected state between Kurram and Peshawar. But that we should under the present state of the Punjab, never have crossed the Sutledge except for one purpose and one only namely the acquisition of the country, does not admit of a doubt instead of littering away life and money in a useless and unprofitable contest. Some ammunition that was behind has come in, and the brigade moves off on Monday. Colonel Shelton still retains the command of his regiment, as well as that of the brigade; but I suppose the order nominating him as brigadier will soon be in print.

A guard of 100 of Sher Singh's Sowars accompany us from hence to Peshawar, to see to our comfort, under the command of Chet Singh, who is Shadian or Vakeel, and rather a favorite at the court, though not much of a courtier or warrior either in appearance. The Sikhs are hammering away just now about 80 miles from hence, with 25,000 of the chief of their troops against an independent chief, whose name and place I just at this moment forget.

As regards the passage of Europeans just now, safer travelling is not in India, or no safer, they are trembling in their shoes, and any one would receive civility from a general to a drumboy. The two actual murderers of poor Shaw have been apprehended, and were undetected by last accounts, by Sir W. McNaghten.

GUNDAVA.—The following is extracted from a letter from Gundava, dated 29th October. "On the morning of the 23d, the force arrived at Gundava, but unfortunately too late to save it from a total sack, and complete demolition of property. The most determined and destruction seems to have influenced the rebels in their attack, they levelled and burnt that which they could not, from its character, transport for their own benefit the whole amount averaging about 3½ lakhs of rupees. The houses of the Hindoos, had been burnt, and the last sack and thieving Gundava presented a general scene of misery and destruction. The advance of our troops was the signal for the retreat of the rebels towards the pan, and Kohra being threatened, with similar fate, to that which had attended Gundava it was deemed expedient to move on. On the 24th, the force reached Kohra happily in time to save it. A party of the rebels' horse, who were hovering in its neighbourhood, but speedily moved off. As the troops took up a position little mischief has been effected at Kohra, and the cultivators have not been sufficiently panic-stricken to abandon it.

Nussur Khan threatens Dadur, and the force marches on it, on the 27th Lieutenant Loveday had arrived at Gundava, after Major Boscawen's force had left it and would take up a position at Kohra on the 28th. The 25th Regt. had been annoyed on their march by some parties of Mughsees but the rebels had been easily dispersed."

DADUR.—MURDER OF LIEUTENANT LOVEDAY.—Letters from Sukkur, dated 9th Nov. announce the deplorable termination of poor Lieutenant Loveday's career by murder, in a most atrocious and cowardly manner. It seems that Major Boscawen, who was sent to Dadur in command of the right wing of the Queen's 40th and the 38th Bengal N I some guns and irregular horse, arrived there on the 2d intact, but found the Brahmoes had plundered the town and were threatening our entrenched camp. Major Boscawen succeeded, however, in driving them back within the Bolan Pass, and took possession of their camp, where, to his extreme horror, he found Lieutenant Loveday, half naked, in heavy iron, and his head nearly severed from his body! We do not know how he got into the power of this truly racially tribe of plunderers, or whether he had escaped and been intercepted by them, at any rate, we sincerely hope that no treaties with the whole set of these worthless rascals will be listened to. They are born, raised and reared up in treachery to one another, and as to ourselves, we feel quite convinced that it is only fear which produced the good conduct shown towards Brown. We ought not to expect allegiance and loyalty from them but it will be a madness to put it in the power of either Kelat or Muree to turn upon us when they see fitting occasion to break a treaty, which they are likely to consider binding just so long as it suits their purpose. How will Nussur Khan and his mother excuse themselves?

Mr. Ross Bell had returned from Khyrpoor, and his activity, so universally acknowledged, will be of the utmost good service.

In confirmation of the above intelligence, which we have extracted from the Delhi Gazette, we learn, that letters have been received in Calcutta, from Dadur, to nearly a similar purport. Lieutenant Loveday's life, it seems, had been threatened several times by the Brahmoes; but the chief had protected him, and appointed a guard to be constantly with him. When Major Boscawen's force (about 1500 men) reached Dadur, which it found in the occupation of the enemy, and 300 of our sepoys besieged in their outposts, an attack was immediately commenced, and the Brahmoes immediately dispersed, and fled to the mountain passes, leaving their tents and a considerable number of camels behind them. On the field, the body of Lieut. Loveday was discovered, with the head nearly severed from the body, which was still in it; and by the statement of his servant, a native of Hindustan, who had remained with him during the whole of his captivity, it would appear that the guard had joined the fugitives at the first onset of the British force, but they subsequently returned and cut him down; not, as it is supposed, by any command of the chief of the clan, but as their own excuse for not bringing him away, and pretending that they themselves saw him cut down, in the confusion, by some of our irregular horse.

The body was not mutilated, but was in an emaciated state from fever.

We have seen an official report from the native officer now commanding Colonel Skinner's horse which gives an account of the very gallant behaviour of that detachment in Scinde. On the 29th October, an attack was expected on Dadur, when Mr. Macpherson, an officer in the political employ, went out in the town into the plain at the head of this weak squadron, where the Brahoues, said to amount to 6 or 7000, made a furious charge from all sides, they were repulsed, but Skinner's head Jeshdar and three Sowars were killed, 23 Native Officers and men wounded, and upwards of the same number of horses were either killed or wounded. Three companies of the Bombay Infantry, under Captain Watkins, were also of this detachment, but were left in the town stockaded, and the Reschler at the close of his despatch, which is dated the 31st ultimo, expected another attack.

MOOSTUNG.—“A letter from Moostung, of the 27th ultimo, supplies the following interesting items:

“We arrived here yesterday with the 18 pounders, which we transported with great ease, save now and then at a water cut, which gives some trouble. We heard here that the 38th Bengal Native Infantry marched from Bukkur on the 3th; and a wing of H. M.'s 43th on the 11th. The Bombay troops are pushing up by Gundaya but we shall not wait for them. We start afresh to-morrow, and by this day week calculate on being masters of Khelat. Every one is in high spirits and confident and we have no doubt of doing the business in good style as it was performed the same time last year.

“The news here is more warlike than we have had for some time, Khelat is filling, Asad Khan had joined with the flower of his tribe, and the young Khan and all have sworn to die martyrs or conquer.

“A breath of submission we breathe not.

The sword we have drawn we will sheathe not.”

is their modest chant. In more sober language they say, it is impossible now to retreat without a fight on the plain to be won and if that fails they must not yield until a goodly breach has been made, when they think—then second thoughts—that they may yield without loss of honor. We hope they will be as good as their word but as for attacking us on the plain (by which you are to understand any place outside of the town, for the country is an ocean of hills) it is out of the question, that they will venture on such a force as we have, a troop of Horse Artillery, and two Regiments of N I besides Macan's rough and ready boys, 300 of Christie's Horse and 100 Locals. They may be foolish enough to make a run away fight on the so called plain, but not Khelat and allow us to open a breach and then ask for terms for the citadel. But these manoeuvres will not go down, and should they fire a shot, they will find themselves what Mr. Weller calls “the Victims of Gammon.” The orders are out, we march to-morrow we shall reach Khelat, by the 3d November, and expect to be masters of it before then that day.”

AFGHANISTAN—CABUL.—An Express from Cabool of November, 4th was on the 25th instant. It appears that on the 2d November, Sir R Sale met the force which had assembled round Dost Mahomed at a place named Purwar, and dispersed it. Mr P B Lord was unfortunately killed in this affair. Dost Mahomed appears to have come direct from the fight in to Cabool. On the evening of the 3d, as Sir Wm MacNaughten was returning from his evening ride a single horseman galloped up to him when within a few yards of his residence in the Citadel, and said that Dost Mahomed had arrived, and sought his protection. This horseman proved to be Sorolla Mahomed Khan, Burkzye, of Nijow, an adherent of the Ex-chief, who had been particularly active in intrigues in his favour in the Khoshia n. Dost Mahomed then rode up, and alighted from his horse. He was requested again to mount, and conducted to Sir W MacNaughten's house, within the enclosure of which a tent was pitched for him, and every thing necessary for his comfort provided. He put his sword into Sir W MacNaughten's hand, as a token of submission, and appeared gratified on its being immediately returned to him. On the morning of the 4th November, Sir W Cotton, with his staff and the principal Officers in Cabool, met Dost Mahomed at Sir W MacNaughten's House. It was intended to bring the Ex-Chief to India with his family under the escort of the 2d European Regiment, the 4th N I, and the 2d Cavalry, but the plans in this respect had not been finally determined.

A very general amnesty for political offences in Afghanistan would probably be declared in consequence of the surrender of Dost Mahomed Khan. He had written to his three sons, who were out in different parts of the country, desiring them to follow his example, and deliver themselves up.

THE NOBLE SHAH.—Adi-convery has been made, we hear which, if true, will not be much to the credit of our protegee Shah Soops. It is said, that the letters intercepted by our authorities, while apparently passing from the Sools to other potentates, couched in treacherous terms against our government, have been proved to be forgeries committed by the people about the ruler of Cabool with the purpose of inducing our government to believe that the Sools were intriguing against, and to afford sufficient inducement for us to annex Peshawar to Afghanistan in a new treaty when one is made.

DETENTION OF THE BRITISH OFFICERS AT PONDICHERY.—A rumour has prevailed, that some detention had been offered by the authorities of Pondicherry, to Colonel Fenwick and Captain Parrow, who had taken their passage to Havre by the French vessel Agate, which left the Roads about a fortnight ago. We were hardly disposed at first to give credit to this foolish and premature stretch of authority, on the part of the Pondicherry Government, but have reason now to suppose it correct.

MILITARY MOVEMENTS.—Orders for field service have been received by H M 94th Regiment now stationed at Cannanore, and also the company of artillery at that station. The destination is supposed to be Secude.

RETIRING FUND.—The subject of a “Retiring Fund, is likely to be taken up with some spirit by the Madras Army. A full plan of the details has been made out, which will no doubt be discussed by every corps in the service and resolutions entered into founded thereon.

COONO.—A Coono correspondent, under date 1st instant, the 11th instant, writes as follows:—

A few days ago, as a party of convicts were at work on the new line of road from Perampalam to Flazerpatt some of them near the latter place, raised a shout of Huttee! On the peons who were in charge of them looking round to see from what part of the jungle the elephant was approaching, the convicts continued to seize their swords, with which they wounded several of the peons (one dangerously) and rushed into the jungle

The departures for this station, are as follows: On the 8th instant, Captain R Larcher and Lieut. M Descheroli on furlough to Europe, to embark from the western coast —

SECOND RABID - From Secunderabad we have letters under date the 10th and 11th instant, from which we have selected the following extracts -

The usual quantity of rain has latterly fallen; upwards of thirty in his. The weather during the day is very close and sultry. Thermometer from 80 to 85 at noon. There are heavy falls of dew during the night.

Dysentery and intermittent fever have prevailed, during the last three months, to a considerable extent among both Europeans and Natives. I am glad to state that but few casualties have occurred. Seven or eight of the sickened place during the last mentioned period in the Madras 100th Regiment.

The Head of the Communist Department at this station, has received previous instructions to have the whole of the 7th Air Division and the available forces at a moment's warning, as it is expected that the Head Quarters of the Honorable Secretary General will be moved to Tientsin, but what purpose is not known. It has also been ordered that a power will be necessary to supply the troops on the march he informed in real time to see any of the corps at Secun - should should move with the Head Quarters of the force.

Four young officers at this station have latterly been playing the Monty of Worley to such an extent as to render a Court of Inquiry on their doing necessary, the proceedings of which, if I am not mistaken have been already dispatched to Monty for the consideration of his Excellency the Commander in Chief.

THE OTHERS SAID TO BE KEPT AT PONTI-FRAC—Having very little information in respect to the information, give it to a report presented last week that in cultivation of a dispute between the two countries, (since I have received) the French Government at Ponticherry had effected some agreement to help a certain type of two Madras officers to in a French vessel affairs most successful to be now able to give an unqualified confession in the whole affair. We are informed from Ponticherry that nothing of the kind was done or even can be planned and that on the contrary the people are being sent to be used between the neighboring French and English residents.

AN SHIRT TIE AND TIE. A special Court was held on the 21st October in which Sir Edward Gumbrell presided when W. L. Lell, Esq. was sworn in as Acting Coroner, and David Pugh, Esq. as a Justice of the Peace.

APOTHECARY ON TRIAL.—The trial of Assistant Apothecary Herbert A. Knappee, for the murder of Assistant Apothecary O'Brien, has terminated in a being found guilty and sentenced to death, which sentence is to be commuted by the clemency of the Commander in Chief to transportation for life.

DEATH BY LIGHTNING—On the 26th October, about twenty minutes after nine o'clock in the evening a snake of the 1st Native Veterinary Battalion named Rainasawmy, was struck dead by lightning. The unfortunate man was sitting at the door of his hut, reading and was in the act of tying up his book, when the lightning came in contact with the top of the roof, tearing up the thatch to the point of the door, and descended upon the poor man, who fell and died immediately. A child was sitting close behind the man; he was also knocked down, but not, it seems by the lightning, as no injury was sustained. A woman was in the house, within two paces of the door, but she also was unhurt.

CHOLERA.—Our accounts from Bellary mention that the cholera had appeared in H M 4th Regiment of Infantry. Three cases are reported, and we are glad to add, that the patients are in a fair way for recovery. Brigadier Lugland, K H, had set out for Secnde to join his corps, and Brigadier Leslie, the next senior Officer, had assumed the command of the station.

MR. BIRD—The Honorable John Bird, Esq., was sworn in in the Council Chamber on Tuesday, at 2 o'clock P. M., as a Member of Council, a Salute of 13 guns was fired from the fort on the occasion.

SHOLAPOUR, OCT 27—A melancholy occurrence took place here a few days ago. W. Chandler, first sergeant in the A Troop of the 52d Cavalry, having been missing from his line for two days, his body was found floating in a water tank, between the Troop lines and those of the 52d Regiment, on the third morning afterwards. It is not known how he came by his untimely end, but it is supposed to have been his own premeditated doing, from his changed and absent manners lately remarked by his comrades. He was a young man much respected in the Troop.

They have now proceeded to Innervelly and will there engage a new the Collector, who will obtain for them 1000 acres of land, already under cotton cultivation upon which their first experiments will be carried on.

KAMETI, OCT. 29.—During the celebration of the 5th Shintō festival, a serious disturbance took place among troops of the 6th Local Auto-Defense Force of the 25th and 49th Regts. Native Infantry. The leaders are in custody, and will be brought to trial before a General Court Martial.

counts — Assistant Apothecary B. Hughes, who was recently sentenced by a court martial to this station on three months imprisonment, made his escape from the place of his confinement at four o'clock on the morning of the 23d instant, in the direction of the river below; but, as the guard could overtake him, he had plunged into the water and drowned himself.

BRIGAM, NOV. 3. The following is a clear and detailed account of a plot and conspiracy stated to have been discovered at Brigham. A certain brahmin has for the last twelve years been in the habit of purchasing old accoutrements, &c. It is also said that he had in his possession a receipt from some person in the Bombay presidency, for some thousands of ammunition or a Shroff reading in the lines of the 2nd of April, A. D. was also apprehend a large quantity of accoutrements, ammunition, &c., having been discovered, buried under ground in his house. The cause of this discovery was that the brahmin, who is a sportsman (a thing rather uncommon for one of his caste) had on several occasions shot a Brahmin, who said, was much hurt, but it was not considered seriously so, but as respects Lieut. Sheppard from injuries he received, it would appear serious apprehensions are entertained for his life.

—A very pleasing instance at the station. He also asked the musician if he could procure for payment two-hundred sets of new accoutrements, &c. The man's suspicions were aroused, and he promised to let the brahmin know. They then parted and the man went instantly to the sergeant major and acquainted him with what had passed by whom he was taken to the adjutant; and subsequently to the officer commanding and to the political agent. It was decided that the articles should be given out of the stores and placed in the old hospital. In the evening the bandman and the brahmin met according to appointment. It was then agreed that they should meet at the burial ground at three o'clock on the following morning in order to make arrangements for the removal of the articles; which was done, when the brahmin remarked, (it being a rainy morning,) "this will be a fine opportunity no body will be stirring." They then proceeded to the hospital, whence the brahmin took a huge bundle of the articles and departed them on a coolie, whom he had brought for the purpose. He then went into the building again returned with a similar load when the alarm was given, and he was seized and confined in the main guard. For two or three days he would eat nothing, but he subsequently altered his mind in this respect, and ate and drank as usual. He was tried and sentenced to work for two years on the roads. The sheriff was let off, on his promising not to traffic in such ware again. It is rumoured that the brahmin was sent here by the Rajah of Kolapore.

KANPUR, NOVEMBER 1.—Shaik Ebraam, a private of the 49th Regt. N. I. who was lately tried by a general court-martial for theft, and sentenced to one year's imprisonment with hard labour in irons, is now about to be tried a second time for a still graver offence, the particulars of which are as follow. The confirmed proceedings of the court having been received from Madras, a parole was ordered, for the purpose of the sentence being read, preparatory to the handing over of the prisoner to the civil authorities, when the prisoner commenced abusing the drill halldar in most violent and vulgar language. The commanding officer, in consequence, directed the guard to remove the prisoner from the parade ground; but this was not very easily effected, for on the order being given, the prisoner suddenly seized the Naique's musket, and pointed it at the adjutant; but with great presence of mind, that Officer knocked the weapon aside. A scuffle then ensued between the prisoner and the guard, in which the former endeavoured to possess himself of a bayonet, but without success. He was ultimately secured, but with considerable difficulty, having given the three or four active men who had charge of him such trouble as they had not experienced for many a long day. I should observe that in addition to a year's imprisonment and hard labour, the court had sentenced him to receive fifty lashes on his bare back; but this part of the sentence his excellency the commander in chief had remitted.

BELLARY.—Cholera is raging at BELLARY, and several four soldiers have fallen victims to it.

Accounts from Bellary, we regret to say, speak of a serious accident having happened to Brigadier Leslie and Lieutenant and Adjutant Sheppard of the King's Own. While on a drive, the buggy was upset and both were thrown with violence to the ground—from the fall PRINCE HYDER KHAN.—The Government of India has on a mature consideration of the case of Prince Hyder Khan, been induced to restore him to his full allowance of Rupees 1000 per month.

SALE OF BENGAL GOVERNMENT BILLS.—A sale of bills on the Bengal Government to the extent of five lakhs of rupees took place at the General Treasury, which to the astonishment of those not in the secret, average no less a rate than Rs-101 10 10 in Bombay per 100 in Cal-

EXPECTED STOPPAGE OF THE MAIL.—Reports have reached us from Bussora in 21 days, by which we learn that Ibrahim Pacha is marching on Constantinople. If his news prove true and the rumours were true on the subject when the vessel left Bussora, we have great fear that our overland mail will be stopped.

THE MURDER CASE.—Apothecary Burgess who shot Apothecary O'Brien for having criminal intercourse with his wife, has been sentenced to transportation for life.

DISCOVERY OF COAL MINES.—We understand from a good source that at Quilamane, a place in the Portuguese Settlement of Mozambique, a short distance to the south of that town, a discovery has been made of some valuable coal mines. This discovery is of great interest not only to the Portuguese, but to the British inhabitants of India, as it will tend to ensure a supply of that necessary article, in many of the contingencies of war, not only to the Steam-boats on the Indian ocean, but also at Aden and in various parts of the Red Sea. The quality of the newly uncovered coal is said to be excellent. Specimens have already arrived at Bombay.

A NEW TRIBE OF PARSEES.—A great stir has been excited amongst the Parsees by a Syud who has lately arrived here, either from, or on, a pilgrimage, we know not which. This worthy, whilst on his travels, appears to have fallen in with a nation of Parsees living under one of their own kings, a real descendant of Chosroes, and sequestered far away from the noise of the more busy world, in a mountain retreat, which has been described to us, as existing somewhere between Persia and China, —a range of distance where the fancy has ample space to expand itself and exasperate. The sympathy of the Parsees has, of course, been until aroused towards their far distant newly found brethren; and the intelligence of the survival and kindly way of a monarch who cherishes the memory of Shapoor and Nushirvan, who adores the elements of the Zoroastra in faith and wears on his person the sacred grille and shirt of the Parsees, has called forth their surprise and amazement. We have heard that the report of the Syud has been discussed in solemn Panchayat assembled, where it was proposed that Vakeels should be sent to this distant newly discovered people, bearing assurances of the delight which the news of their existence created in the breasts of their broken in Bombay, and of their anxiety to have their history, and to contribute to the welfare.

Burmah.

Maulmein Chronicles to the 30th ultimo, have been received, but they contain no news of much importance. A report was prevalent that the king of Ava had an intention of paying a visit to Rangoon but it is no worthy of much credence. A new Governor had been set over the latter place, but had deferred his installation until after the "Boat Races,"—and this we believe, is all.

MAULMAIN.—GOVERNOR OF BIRING—It is confidently reported in this place that Mong Shway Ya, son of the Governor of Birong, succeeds his father in the appointment with much enlarged power, extending, it is said, Ioung agoon and Yamthang.

WRECK OF THE MARY AND GEORGE—The Schooner Catharine, which arrived at Maulmain, on the 6th October from Mergui, has brought up some of the crew of the brig Mary and George brought from Calcutta to Tonkin. This vessel left the Pilot on the 15th July last laden with Lac, Rice Sugar Rum, &c., and she disappeared on the 1st August and was wrecked in a reef in the N.W. bay of the Andamans on the morning of the 5th within a few miles of the spot where the late Dr. Hether lost his life. On the 28th August the Master (G. H. Hilly) with six of the crew took the long boat and proceeded to the site of Port Cornwallis in hopes of finding a settlement there. They returned in the morning of the 1st September, and shortly after the Master became delirious and died on the 4th, on which day a large boat in which which proved to be the Mahar Telmea from Maulmain bound in the Nicobars, whose command arrived to convey the crew and such stores as were saved to Mergui.

RANGOON—The following is an extract from a letter, dated Rangoon, 6th October—

"From the non-arrival of our Governor, I conjecture the Court may be waiting to learn how our affairs are going on. Indeed, we hear that the schooner Kiora Mardonald is expected at Bawken from Singapore. If so, his Majesty will have the news as soon or sooner than the Fulka at Calcutta.

"We have a French ship here from Bourdeaux, via Caracol, with a large proportion of officers for a French ship. She is doing nothing—her arrival is most fortunate. The observant officers will bear testimony to Le Grand Nation, how much the court of Ava is in dread of offing the paramount power from which fact the French Statesmen will naturally infer that the inhabitants of this country are predisposed to be incorporated with those of British India, whenever it suits the Policy of the Company's Government would it be. Meanwhile our Government would do well to appreciate the court of Ava, that the violation of our treaties involves the surrender of all territories below Yindaboo which we restored on condition of the treaties being in full force."

Goa.

By an official order from the newly appointed Governor of Goa J. J. Lopes de Lima, dated the 30th of September last, the governor of Damau, Colonel Joao Cuhrat d'Enrique has been removed from that situation, and Major Manoel Correa de Silva Arango appointed to succeed him. This nomination appears to give satisfaction as the late Governor is stated to have been very unpopular.

It also stated that orders from Lisbon have come by the 14th overland mail to the Portuguese Government at Goa to send some of the vessels of war stationed there, in concert with ships sailing from Diu and Damau to Mozambique in order to prevent their capture, or seizure by the British cruisers. This proceeding is said to have been suggested by the Portuguese Government, at the instance of Senhor Andre de Nery of Mozambique, who is now in Lisbon acting as commissioner on the part of the commercial company of that province.

THIRTY-EIGHT PERSONS POISONED FROM EATING TURTLE.

Extensive mortality from eating noxious food, recently near Panura. It appears that two turtles were caught and brought to the bazar, where they were cut up and sold, and that every individual who ate part of them was seized in about 24 hours with a species of cholera of which it has been ascertained beyond a doubt, at least 38 persons—men, women and children—died, and lost upwards of 40 more were dangerously unwell.

THE COFFEE SEASON. We have several private letters from the interior which all concur in representing the present coffee season as peculiarly favourable. On the states that are engaged in gathering and preparing the crop, which is considered generally heavier than even last year's which was unusually abundant. From the villages a good deal of coffee is daily coming into Kandy.

THE CHOLERA. It is still raging in Kandy with some violence, notwithstanding the rain that fell during all the week before last. From four to six deaths occur daily in the disease has appeared among the Malay troops, and two Sergeants and two Privates have fallen victims to the disease.

China.

Our Extra of the 13th instant, put our readers, in possession of the most interesting items of news from China—We now give Mr. Stanton's examination at Canton.

EXAMINATION IN CANTON OF MR. VINCENT STANTON.—We stated last week that Mr. Vincent (not Eric as we erroneously named him) Stanton, arrived in Hongkong the 6th whilst on bathing, disappeared, and that there was every reason to suppose that he had been captured by the Chinese, in consequence of the rewards offered by their authorities for the capturing or slaying of Englishmen. On the following Saturday we heard of his having been seen near the Bogue in a fish boat, and it was said that his head was wounded. This information came however from a doubtful source, but on Sunday the 9th in the afternoon authentic accounts were received of his having arrived in Canton, and of his being the owner of the Chinese ship. It will be seen from the letter addressed to the British residents here to Capt. Smith, that his countrymen are strongly sympathetic in Mr. Stanton's misfortune and from the answer of Capt. Smith it is to be inferred that energetic measures will be taken for his liberation. Many are the reports as to the line of conduct likely to be adopted by the gallant officer, which we forbear to mention, certain as we are that the very best will be done.

As generally happens in transactions between the Chinese authorities and foreigners, so also in this case are ridicule and childishness mixed up with the more serious and painful features. Mr Stanton arrived in Canton early on the morning of Friday the 7th, and was delivered into the custody of the Namhoi yuns and though one would think the capture of a solitary foreigner, unaccused of any crime, except that of his birth to be a crime of very slight importance, great preparations were immediately made for his examination in the public hall of the Viceroy's palace. The preliminaries for this mighty business were concluded at about one o'clock, and at two the Kwang-chow-too the Pwan-yunc, Namhoi yunc and four other officers of high rank made their appearance, taking their seats, the Kwang-chow-too in the centre, in a row, on chairs adorned with a striped cloth, and the tables set upon such occasions before them. Behind the chairs of these functionaries was a partition which screened H. E. the Viceroy Lio from the looks of the profland. All the Hong merchants and Lingnans were in attendance standing, during the whole of the examination which lasted from 2 o'clock in the afternoon, until past 9 at night. A number of lower officers, police runners, factors, &c. &c. were also present, when Mr. Stanton under the charge of two linguists was brought into court, with chains on his bare feet, and dressed only in a shirt and trousers, the former some-what discoloured by the blood from a wound in his shoulder, which though not deep, appeared as if inflicted by some sharp instrument; his head and face also bruised on one side. In spite of his evident exhaustion he being very pale Mr. Stanton was made to kneel before this august assembly, which posture, in the course of the examination, he changed by sitting on the floor. A little food was given him before the examination began, which was conducted by the Kwang-chow-too, the linguist Atom acting as interpreter. The first questions put to the prisoner were—who are you? what is your name, what your nation? to which the reply was, that his name was Stanton, that he resided in Macao, and that he was an Englishman. How can you be an Englishman, replied the Kwang-chow-too, when it is well known that all the English have long since been ordered away from Macao, and that we have the assurance from our officers there that they are all gone? To which Mr. Stanton answered that so far from his countrymen having all left Macao there were upwards of a hundred living there. This answer seemed to create a good deal of astonishment in the judges, and the Kwang-chow-too was seen to whisper to his right side neighbour, then to that on the left, and these again communicated with the next in the line, all of which produced a good deal of grave nodding, of shakes of the head, and so on, and the Kwang-chow-too got up to commune with his master behind the screen, whence he returned after a short absence. In the low whispers among the judges, and the conference between the Viceroy and Kwang-chow-too, were rather frequent and happened whenever any thing appearing to them extraordinary, was said by the prisoner. Owing, it is supposed, to the presence near the issue of several Chinese who well understood English, the interpreter was observed to discharge his duty with considerable fidelity which is a rare occurrence, Chinese interpreters generally preferring to give the story they wish the mandarin to receive, to giving the real meaning of the deponent. It is on this account chiefly that the mandarins heard several things which must have astonished them not a little. The Kwang-chow-too then asked Mr. Stanton whether he was not aware of the existence of the proclamations offering rewards for the taking and killing of Englishmen which being answered in the affirmative, he was asked why such being the case, he had been walking about, well knowing that he subjected himself to being made a prisoner.—To which Mr. Stanton answered, that he was walking peacefully towards the beach to bathe, when he was surprised by Chinese who hurried him into a boat, two of which were at Casilla bay apparently waiting for him, but said Mr. Stanton, though now a prisoner, I advise you to liberate me without delay, for I am certain that within three days my countrymen will demand me and, their ships of war will open their fire upon you. This bold speech occasioned a good deal of surprise, which having subsided, the examination was continued. The prisoner was asked what his business was, and where he lived, to which he replied, he was a teacher who had come to this country with Mr. Turner's sons as their tutor, that he was in no way connected with trade, and was then living in Mr. Turner's house. To this it was objected that Mr. Turner was dead, and inquiry made of the present abode of Mr. Turner and persons who, the Kwang-chow-too was told, had returned to F. land. He was next asked how many ships of war had arrived on the coast of China, and how many troops to which the prisoner answered that about 45 ships had gone to the northward, that five remained in Macao; that there were 5,000 troops on board and that an equal number was expected to arrive soon. It was then asked why the English had not sent an armament to fight the Chinese, to which answer was made that the English had not come to fight the Chinese, but to obtain redress for injury suffered. It was objected that if they had not come to fight, why they had fired on the forts at Amoy and why they had taken Chusan? Answer—that at Amoy it was the Chinese who first fired on a boat bearing a flag of truce, and that in consequence of that, the Englishship destroyed the forts, that Chusan was taken because the letter which the English wished to have sent to the Emperor of China had been refused; that the object of the English was to complain of the treatment they had received to the Emperor himself but their letter had been every where refused; had it been received and forwarded on hostilities would have ensued. That the English had only occupied Chusan until a satisfactory answer shall have been received from the Emperor, when they will return the island to his government. The Kwang-chow-too also asked, why, if the intention of the English were pacific, they had captivated so many alt-junks, to which it was replied, that the alt-junks being considered Government property, had been seized and would be detained until restitution shall have been made for the property of which the English have been despoiled by the Chinese.

These are the principal points in the examination; to fill up the seven hours a great many more things were said, which it is unnecessary to repeat, and we may here observe, that our report of this examination may possibly be not altogether verbally correct, and that answers somewhat different may in reality have been given by Mr. Stanton, but in the main its correctness may be relied on.

Mr. Stanton now remains in custody of the Namhoi yunc, but is not shut up, we are told, in the common prison, but in a room in the Namhoi yunc's house in which generally such prisoners only are confined as can afford to pay handsome for this indulgence.

In the same prison with Mr. Stanton is a lascar who, by his own account, was also seized in the neighbourhood of Macao; we know not who this man may be, not having heard of any missing; his seizure has however drawn a poor Chinaman into great trouble, who, when he saw his countrymen approach the lascar, warned him of his danger, exhorting him to run away. This warning was overheard by the minions of the law, and he was seized, and may possibly lose his life for the treatable paces.

Though our extra has already furnished the China news, received by the Cruizer, we deem the following of sufficient interest to lay before our readers.

Amoy news.—The viceroy Ke-shan, at the mouth of the Pe-ho, treated the British plenipotentiary, Captain Elliot with marked civility, and the Emperor has appointed him, Ke-shan, to go to Canton, as Commissioner, to settle all points in negotiation there.

The troops at Chusan, have been suffering severely from sickness—the deaths, since the occupation of the island, being, Europeans 69, Natives 19. H. M.'s 28th had particularly suffered. What of fresh meat had caused dysentery to break out among the troops and the bazaars were very ill supplied. The Navy, at sea, had also suffered severely from dysentery, but few casualties occurred. Capt. Shean, of H. M.'s 40th, was the only officer that had died at Chusan. The sudden transition from heat to cold, had caused much suffering among the troops, who were forthwith to go into winter quarters at Chusan, and supplies of fresh provisions were expected from Manila and elsewhere. There seems a strong disposition on the part of the Chinese, to sacrifice Commissioner Lin, who has become very unpopular.

At Amoy the Chinese attempted to capture H. M.'s Ship Alligator, and a few days after to cut off three other boats, but failed on each occasion, suffering very considerable loss, though the Alligator has only small brass guns. Capt. Anstuther, of the Malacca Artillery, and his servant, whilst walking in Chusan, were kidnapped and carried off to Ning-po, where they are detained, but treated with kindness. The armed brig Aste, a vessel taken up for the service, and employed in surveying the mouth of the Yangtze river, had either been wrecked or captured, and her commander and last crew were also detained at Ning-po, and treated kindly likewise. The news from Macao is, that affairs remain in statu quo. Mr. Stanton was still detained at Canton, and no further collision had taken place between the Chinese and our forces.

CHUSAN AFTERNOON 27, 1840.—We are all on the qui vive here, the Admiral and Captain Elliot being hourly expected. The Madagascar steamer arrived on the 24th instant, having left on the 13th with the Hector and the rest of the squadron, and made the best of her way here to announce their approach. At present nothing certain is known regarding the result of the negotiation; although since the Madagascar came in, the quinquines have been hard at work, and as usual have spread such a number of lying reports, that one hardly ventures to believe any thing. Private letters from the Hector's have been received, and from them it appears that the result of the negotiation is studiously kept secret although it must have been more or less satisfactory. I will briefly mention what is known regarding the Admiral's proceedings, and after wards the reports prevalent of the success of the negotiation, although to answer for the truth of the latter, would be committing an awful responsibility. It is certain that the Admiral was from the first well received, although some delay occurred in delivering the letter of the Emperor. The latter was, however, received by the Chinese Admiral, and conveyed to Peking. The result was that the third person of the Empire was dispatched to negotiate and held several conferences with Captain Elliot. During the time that this occupied, an encampment was formed on shore, they were hospitably treated, and well supplied with fresh provisions. The negotiation being concluded, they set sail on the 15th, on their return hither, each party apparently well-pleased with the other; so that we may conclude that there is some reasonable prospect of an amicable adjustment of our quarrel with the Celestial Empire. Indeed it is not probable that the Admiral, with so large a force at his disposal, would have left the Pe-ho in such a hurry, if the result of his negotiation had been otherwise than satisfactory. The reports are that the Emperor was in great wrath and distress when he was told of the capture of Chusan—that he is eager to come to terms—that he is determined to displace Lin and to restore the trade with the English on a permanent footing than ever. It is further said that the sum of 2,000,000 sterling is to be paid to the English; but whether as indemnity for the Opium destroyed, or to meet the expenses of the expedition, depends sayeth not. Hing kong, or the island of Lantau, or both these places, are to be given up to the English government, and we, in return, are to restore these islands, and assist the Chinese in their wars for the future. The treaty is to be concluded at Canton, whether the Admiral is to proceed forthwith for the purpose of meeting the aforesaid third person of the Celestial Empire. The same No. 3 in the Empire appears to be a knowing one, and Heaven grant that he has not got to windward of the Admiral, and he slugged with him and the Plenipotentiary. Since the departure of the ill-fated craft Cyclops the Indian Oak, we have had an opportunity of writing to either Singapore or Macao. The Indian Oak left this for Singapore on the 9th of August, and seven or eight days after was totally wrecked on the Luchoo Islands. The intelligence of the wreck was brought hither by the first mail, who ventured in the launch, and two vessels were immediately despatched to bring back the crew and passengers. One of these, the Coral, returned on the 23d instant—the other (the Nimrod) is hourly expected and has an board the crew and passengers. No blame appears to be attributable to the Captain. No lives were lost and, on reaching the shore, they met with a most hospitable reception from the natives. They were supplied with shelter food and clothing, and all property received from the wreck, was turned aside and retained, and a guard of the natives placed over it. A considerable part of the baggage was saved by being thrown overboard, and blown to distant shore. The vessel soon became a total wreck, and completely disappeared in a short time. The state of affairs at Chusan is most disastrous at the time here—at least the military part of it—in a crippled and miserable condition. Sukursa has prevailed to such an extent, that nearly one-half of the troops are inefficient, and the rest miserably fallen off from the fine condition in which they were landed. The prevailing diseases are fever and ague and dysentery. The Cantonians, although so remarkably healthy in India have been the greatest sufferers. They have lost 27 men, and have 504 on their sick list today. Of those doing duty, certainly one-half are more fit for hospital—and scarcely one is in good health. The 18th are not in quite such a bad condition, but they have lost about 20 men, and the proportion of sick is not much smaller than in the 26th. The Volunteers and 4th have troops have fared on better. The 49th has been the healthiest corps, owing to their having been on board ship a month longer, and to the better situation of their camp. They have, however, 203 sick, and have lost several men. The diseases are not malignant, and under other circumstances they would be little fatal, and the men would rapidly regain their health and strength. But here it is different. The Commissariat have been unable to supply fresh provisions, beyond one pound of pork per man a week, and the same quantity of beef perhaps once or twice a month. The consequence is that the men have lived almost entirely on salt rations, and have become affected by scurvy; one man has died of it, and all are more or less tainted. Under these circumstances the men have been more liable to the prevailing diseases, and convalescents regain health only slowly and imperfectly, and many, it is to be feared, will never again be fit for service. It cannot be denied that this deplorable state of things has in a great measure, been occasioned by neglect, apathy, and mismanagement on the part of the powers that be. As regards the scarcity of fresh provisions—perhaps no exertions on the part of the commissariat could have secured an abundant supply; but there is no doubt that they have not done half what they might have done. Bullocks are very scarce owing to the circumstance of the natives only keeping them for agricultural purposes—the enormity of eating can having probably been seldom perpetrated until we came here. But that fresh meat of other kinds might have been procured, at least in sufficient quantities to prevent the occurrence of scurvy is easily proved by the simple fact that in one or two instances, the men in a tent, by clubbing together, with no other resources than their surplus pay and with no other assistance than a few Chinese coolies, have been able to procure fresh provisions for themselves for weeks together. The salt rations too issued to the troops is often nearly putrid. If these had been condemned, and the price returned to the soldiers, there is little doubt that the troops might have lived on fresh provisions in this very day, without any assistance from the commissariat—so much for the gentlemen of the commissariat department. There is no doubt that the ankuses might have been arrested by re-embarking the men, and that might easily have been done for as far as regards the use they are of on shore, they might just as well have been at Joricho, or any where else. They might easily have been sent on board the transports, keeping a few companies on shore to do the duty, and re-levelling them weekly. After the Admiral's departure, and when the men began to tumble into hospital at a fearful rate, the strongest representations were made to the commodore to induce him to re-embark a portion of the troops; but the only reply was that all the transports were engaged and none could be given for the accommodation troops, beyond the four hospital ships. At this time, and ever since, five or six ships have been lying in the harbour loaded with the stores of the Matilda (which of course would have been just as safe under guard on shore), and three or four more have been totally disengaged, besides other which might easily have been made available. The old commodore appears to have taken it into his noddle that the military are mere useless lumber, which he was obliged to carry to Chusan, and having landed them, that they have now no more claim on the transports than Commissariat bullocks have on the ships which have conveyed them.

When the attempt to have the men removed to the ships failed, a requisition was sent in to the proper authorities, to have a large house in the city converted into an hospital for the 26th, although this request was made nearly six weeks ago, and all that is necessary is merely to have the house cleaned and cleared (five or six days work at most), it has not yet been done. This is another specimen of the disgusting apathy which characterises every movement in Chusan. The numerous advantage of having the sick in one hospital are too obvious to require enumeration. Have the medical subordinates, and hospital followers are sick and while the other half have to do the work of the whole the patient instead of being concentrated, are scattered through some 20 tents on the side of a steep hill. Great excitement and consternation was caused the other day, by the disappearance of Capt. Anstruther, of the Madras Artillery. This unfortunate officer went out on the morning of the 15th for the purpose of surveying and sketching, and was seen on the afternoon of the same day, quickly pursuing his occupation in a valley near the camp of the 26th, and not far from the city walls. He did not return at night, and next morning, the alarm being given, parties were sent out in all directions to look for him but, as in the case of the comrade, without success. The next day some Chinaman came in and gave information, that they had seen Captain Anstruther tied hand and foot and carried to the beach where a junk was waiting to convey him to the mainland. The family of the man who is said to have perpetrated this outrage, have been arrested by order of the Governor, and remain in durance. The family includes two women and three children (!!) who of course are half dead of terror. Hanging would be too good for the scoundrels engaged in this kidnap-ing, but it is not easy to perceive the utility of arresting women and children. However, it is in the fashion at Chusan. Several individuals of the force have now been kidnapped, Captain Anstruther being the only European, and no measures more active than arresting women have been taken to prevent this very profitable trade between Chusan and the mainland. Several other cowardly attempts have been made to carry off officers and men, in which the kidnappers have come off second best. In one of these, however, although unsuccessful, an officer of the Queen's was severely wounded. On another occasion, two officers and three men of the 49th were attacked by about two hundred valiant Chinamen. They met, however, such a warm reception from the pistols, fowling-pieces and bayonets of the little party, that, after a short struggle, in which one of the rascals was killed, and half a dozen wounded, the whole mob took to their heels. Not only have these cowardly attacks been endured with the utmost apathy by the authorities, and no active measures taken to prevent their repetition, but in this instance disposition was at first shewn to take the part of the ruffians. When the man who had been shot was brought in, the pious Mr. G. and one or two others, uplifted their voices and the whines of their eyes, and exclaimed against the barbarous usage of the "poor unoffending natives." The Governor himself stigmatised it as murder, and would have brought the officers to a court-martial, had it not been proved, by the evidence of Chinamen who witnessed the affray, that the party had only fired in self defence. What renders this senseless conduct the more provoking, is the certainty which exists that these attacks have been instigated by Chinese soldiers, who are prowling about the island in disguise—say, there can be little doubt that there are numbers of these fellows, as well as mandarins, in Tinghoo itself, and that some of them skulk in what are called "protected houses," i. e. houses the inhabitants of which have returned and placed themselves under British protection. Many of these houses are known to be inhabited, although they are constantly shut up, and nothing is known, even by the Police, of the inmates of their occupations. A report is now prevalent that Captain Anstruther has been heard of, and that he will probably ere long be restored. He is said to be at Ningpo, and the authorities have offered to give him up, as well 18 sailors (at first said to be Europeans—afterwards sailors) and an English woman, all at present in their power, on the condition that we leave Chusan. This story is probably ridiculously exaggerated, but there appears good reason to hope that Captain Anstruther is at Ningpo, and that his life is safe. If there is any foundation for the improbable story of their other prisoners, one of our ships—probably the Isabella Robertson, or the Kitching, must have fallen into the hands of the Philistines. The Kiwa is an armed store brig; which has been employed in company with the Conway and Hebe tender for several weeks past surveying coast to the northward. The Kiwa had a lady on board, the Captain's wife; but it is almost impossible that the vessel could have been lost without intelligence reaching this. There has been another brush at Amoy, although it is now an old story here. The Alligator and armed transport Bremar, were sent thither to deliver a chop to the authorities at that place. The vessels approached with a flag of truce flying but were immediately attacked by a number of war-junks, which fired upon them. The Alligator peppered them well in return, and soon drove many of them on shore; but in doing so, came within range of a large battery (mounting it is said more than 100 guns) which immediately opened its fire to cover the retreat of the junks. The fire from the battery was well directed, and the officer in command of the Alligator deemed it advisable to withdraw the frigate from the unequal contest. The Bremar does not appear to have taken any part in the skirmish. Two and each of these parties struck the other with many blows, and the result was that the many articles of dress passed upon the head of the officer in command, and under the circumstances in which he was placed, they almost choked him. He was so placed that he could do little injury in the fort the guns of which were damaged, and so well served (although the elevation was too great) that some of the officers supposed that the soldiers were not all Chinese. In addition to this, had the ship been crippled by the fort, she would have fallen a prey to the war junk hovering around. The Aligator and Bremar returned on the 13th inst., without of course having effected their object. An alarm was given the other night that a fleet of war junks were going to pay us a visit, having been seen hovering about the island. The troops were ordered to be prepared for a night attack, and all to sleep in their clothes. Next morning, however, the fleet of war junks turned out to be mischievous men, laden with sugar. Twenty eight of them were captured and are detained. The number of junks now in the harbour as prizes is about forty, (without counting the empty ones, which were found run aground in the harbour when we took the place, but had all been detained that were in the power of our ships, there would have been about a hundred. Several ships have arrived here lately which have come on private speculation, and brought various supplies for the outer and inner man. One of these, the bark Anna, was taken up at Macao by a Portugee, who has gone himself, with all kinds of eatables and drinkables, and has been allowed to open a shop in the city. The only circumstance which damped his welcome is the outrageous price which he charges for every thing —one and sometimes two hundred per cent and even more on Calcutta prices. The supplies, however, were becoming necessary, and we should still like to see a few more ships come in, for if the commissariat like other hibernating animals, indulged in a complete state of torpidity during the cold months, we must depend for subsistence entirely on the supplies, which shall have arrived before the change of moonsoon, — that is to say, if we are condemned to winter here. Perhaps, ere we leave Chusan, due necessity may compel our soldiers to become as unscrupulous as those of our friends, here who think a pariah dog or a cat in a state of decomposition a dish to regale a hungry soldier. Apropos to Chusan stomachs a funny story is told here, which you may think too good to be true, but which is nevertheless well authenticated. A certain learned naturalist, it is said in the expedition took into his service a young native of the island to assist him in his entomological pursuits.

 This promising youth displayed nearly as much zeal as his master in collecting specimens of the insect tribes, but at the event showed, with a widely different motive.
 When the collection became considerable commenced eating it! and some time elapsed before his master could see out for the mysterious disappearance of his choicest specimens. At length he picked him up upon the (himself), and it was discovered that he would occasionally select a lump spider or scorpion or any other insect that struck his fancy, and holding it by the pin on which it had been impaled, the omnivorous monster would try it with a candle, with a little of the grease as a relish, and then hold the "specimen" with evident marks of satisfaction. The naturalist does not at all approve of this easy method of "learning and inwardly digesting" his favourite science, and declares that the loss to the British museum is incalculable.

28th SEPTEMBER. — The long talked of removal of the troops from camp into the city is about to take place.
 The 26th are to remove first and then the Volunteers.
 The 49th are to be quartered among the houses on the beach, with the 18th. The destination of the Madras troops is not yet settled. The quarters of the 26th were assigned to day and they will take possession of them yesterday. It appears certain that affairs are entrain for an amicable adjustment of our quarrel with the Celestial Empire. The Admiral it is said, will sail for Canton in a few days. It is not known what force he will take with him, but it is pretty certain that the whole military force will winter here, or if any portion accompanies the Admiral it will be very small. A chop was sent to Ningpo, supposed to be relative to Captain Anstruther. None of the ships that were with the Admiral have anchored in-do- this thelately passed through

 body is very sulky at the idea of remaining here all

29th SEPTEMBER. — The Admiral is here, having arrived yesterday. It appears certain that affairs are entrain for an amicable adjustment of our quarrel with the Celestial Empire. The Admiral it is said, will sail for Canton in a few days. It is not known what force he will take with him, but it is pretty certain that the whole military force will winter here, or if any portion accompanies the Admiral it will be very small. A chop was sent to Ningpo, supposed to be relative to Captain Anstruther. None of the ships that were with the Admiral have anchored in-do- this thelately passed through the harbour going out in the direction of Ningpo. Every body is very sulky at the idea of remaining here all the winter. No one sees the Governor, he sits at home, growling and grumbling like a bear with a sore head. My body was a little better, but I was still with a long pain. Two ships have arrived in the harbor—the Indra from Alaba, which had been long expected; and the other, I believe, is the Yankee from Manila—a private store-ship. The latter is said to have brought 150 bullocks. The repairs of the Mer-ville are completed, and she will soon be ready to sea. She was holed down for the first time on the 24th August, but would soon have filled with water had she not been immediately eased up again. This was owing to inefficiency of the pumps and other causes. These and all other difficulties were overcome by perseverance (although at one time success was nearly despair of), and the repairs were completed on the 20th instant. The damages were considerable. She lost 27 feet of her false keel, injured her main-keel, stern-post and rudder, and sustained such a shake, that it is still doubtful whether she will be able to carry her lower-deck guns until she is docked. We seldom see or hear any thing of the opium clippers, as they have never come into the harbour. Some reports say that they have not been able to dispose of any of the drug excepting a chest now and then; others that latterly they disposed of considerable quantity at high prices, 30th September. The weather during the last two days have been most unfavorable, and the sickness is on the increase. The 26th have lost two or three more men, and the number of sick now amounts to about 550. No improvement has yet taken place in any of the other corps, and the 49th have lost an officer, Captain Sheen. No improvement can be looked for while the weather continues so unfavorable. Yesterday and to-day it has been rainy raw and cold, and reminds one of a November day in England.

The following is an extract of a letter, dated Singapore 3rd November, 1840:

"We have the pleasure to hand you enclosed duplicate of our last, and regret to say, that by last advices of date 19th instant, the Governor Duerty had not arrived, and from the circumstance of the vessels that left in company with her, having experienced very stormy weather, we are apprehensive she has met with some accident. By next arrivals, however, we hope to hear of her having reached either Macao, or Manila, in safety."

"Our advices from Macao mention that the Chinese are sanguine of a speedy settlement of differences. In this, however foreigners do not coincide, with them, as the latter look upon the approaching negotiations with Keenhen, as a prelude of serious warfare. The latest news from Canton are, that Lin still continues in office, and the general opinion is that Lin's degradation, is a ruse on the part of the Emperor, to impose upon the Commissioners."

"Benares opium is selling just now at Sp. dls. 325 to 330 per chest; and Patna at Sp. dls. 370 per chest."

"Exchange on London 4 6 per dollar—Bengal 220 Co.'s Rs. per 100 dollars."

Chusan Harbour, Oct. 3d, 1840.—Since the sailing of the Cruizer, a few incidents, of which I may as well inform you, though they are of little importance, have taken place. The Conway arrived yesterday: she has explored the Yang-tse-Kiang, from its mouth upwards, or about 100 miles: thus high, and probably much higher, the navigation is perfectly practicable for ships of large size. The bar at its mouth is covered by 4 fathoms of water at low tide; in the ascent the soundings varied from 6 to 13 fathoms. The ship and her people were frequently fired on with matchlocks, from the shore, and her foraging parties met with considerable opposition, on several occasions. I regret that our ships, Washington and Ms. Middleton have been severely wounded by a Chinese battery. The Conway have suffered from fire-arms, and some of them have been severely wounded. The Kite and Ms. Noble were captured by the Chinese, and are in their keeping. It was from what we hear, that the Washington in command and one of the Ms. Noble for some purpose or other, and was taken by the Chinese, who then attacked and carried the vessel, making with little resistance from the few persons remaining on board. The Captain Noble, we have heard nothing about. We have not yet regained possession of Amoy, where Captain Elliot returned last evening from Ningpo, whither he went, it is supposed, for the purpose of speaking to the mandarins on the subject of an exchange of prisoners; the result is not known. Several officers, tired of the paper-dillon, have availed themselves of the unpopularity of peace, and have obtained permission to return to their different presidencies; among them, are Lieut. Ortolony, Madras Engineers; Capt. Peers, ditto; Lieut. Horton H. M. 49th; Sir H. Darrel, N. 1; Sir W. McGregor, ditto; Capt. Hartley, (sick) 49th; Mease; Clark and Atwell of Canton, have also left us. The Syden, Danish ship, from Alaba and Manilla, came in today. She brings passengers, merchants from Canton and supplies. The Blindell had arrived safely at Manilla, where provisions and rice are scarce: it is supposed she will not be able to get back here against the strength of the northerly monsoon. The Wallisley is getting ready for sea. The three Regiments have been ordered into the city and suburbs: report says all the troops are to winter here. With respect of future movements, both of the Army and Navy, in the absence of positive information, it is useless to conjecture what they may be—sickness is increasing, rather than decreasing.

4 P. M.—I have to add that poor Harvey, of the Conway, died last night.

City of Ting Hai, Chusan, Oct. 12th, 1840.—The brig St. Joachim will sail for Macao to-morrow. I have literally nothing to tell you, except that we exist in the state in which we were, when I last addressed to you, by the Asia Felix. The weather is now more settled, and is so pleasantly cool as to render the use of cloth clothing agreeable at morning and evening; yet, there is no decided improvement in the health of the troops: many of the patients, I should think 50 at least of the Cameronians alone, are in such state, that no earthly change can benefit them. The Cameronians have located themselves in the city. The 49th move in to-day, and the volunteers will follow in a day or two. This act will save much fatigue, and be productive of comfort to the men; the work being on level ground, the houses affording good dry shelter, and water being close at hand. The site, construction, and drainage of the city are such as would not impress any one with an idea of its healthiness, but it has advantages, which render it infinitely superior to camps, as we have experienced them. Now that the troops are about to occupy the houses, many of the Chinese have flocked in, begging to be permitted to reside in them. timely notice of our intention was published; therefore the claimants are not always attended to. The Admiral and Mr. Elliot remain here; there is a report of their being about to leave for Canton on the 18th instant. We are doing nothing, neither can I find out that we are preparing to act. Anstruther and the prisoners of the Kite remain at Ningpo, which is still under blockade. The Nimrod conveyed up the Lew-chew Junk, bringing the Captain and crew of the Indian Oak. The Junk was constructed, by the Lew-chewians in 15 days. Very little of the wreck has been put into her; neither have the stores or sails been saved. The Lew-chewians, were kind, yet would not permit our countrymen to go into the interior, or to have intercourse with the people at large. They seemed to regret having of co-operating with the troops already there. We alluded to the advantages likely to result from pursuing our enemies in this manner, and our occupying some interior line of posts, that might cover Aden from the ferocity of the Arabs, and give both the security and importance.

A report was prevalent at Aden, of which the Naodas of some Arab Hangelows were the authors, that there had been a tremendous fight between the Cruiser Elphinstone, commanded by Etherage, and a French Frigate. A French frigate had been expected in these seas for this some time back. The Elphinstone went on a cruise to Massawah and found the said frigate there at anchor. Upon some of the officers of the Cruiser proceeding ashore, they were hailed by the frigate, and told that they were not permitted to land. The commander incensed at this, sent word that he would resent an outrage and insult of this nature, if they persisted in keeping his officers from landing, and he himself then proceeded in his gig to try the result, and see what they would do. The consequence was that he was fired upon. Hethen put back to the ship, gave the frigate a broadside and a fierce action instantly commenced. The reports go on to say, that the Elphinstone was triumphant, and made capture of the Frigate, but in so disabled a state that the vessel cannot leave Massawah. A vessel has been sent from Aden to ascertain the truth, and was expected back in four or five days.

A letter from Aden, which we insert, is worthy of the attention of the Government. It strikes us, that there is there something in that fort which requires to be examined fully and fairly. We shall ask two simple questions.

Is it true that there are authorities there ignorant of the Arabic language? If so, surely some proper interpreters, or what is better, some experienced Officers conversant with that language ought to be sent thither, and those who cannot understand it, ought to be employed elsewhere.

The second question is whether means cannot be found for having vegetable food from the neighbourhood for the poor Sepoys? We have heard that—but here we stop.

We earnestly request the attention of the proper authorities to this subject.

APR. 30, 1840.—Some days ago there was a report of a new attack being contemplated by the Anser tribe, which lately took possession of Mocha. The roads communicating with the country which had been closed three months, were then open; but on the news of the approaching attack being circulated, they were ordered to be closed again. The alarm has blown over and the supplies are allowed to be brought in again, particularly since we hear nothing of a meeting of the tribes.

It is said here that the French have got possession of Massawa, either by treaty or purchase from Mohammed Ali, or else they have taken it quietly, now that the Egyptian Governor has withdrawn his troops from that part of the country. Something has happened, for the Enphrates was despatched six months ago to the assistance of the Elphinstone.

The poor soldiers suffer greatly in this place. There are now 161 of the 10th N. I. in the hospital. Scurvy is the general complaint among the natives and who can wonder at it? The flour here is so bitter and weevil-eaten that nothing short of starvation could induce one to eat of it.

ASIATIC SOCIETY

The usual Monthly Meeting of the above Society, was held last evening—Colonel J. A. Hodges in the Chair. Several works on scientific and other subjects were presented to the Society.

A splendid geological Map of England, sent out by the Home Geological Society, was shown to the Members present and greatly admired.

Dr. Spilbury had favored the Society with some valuable "notes" of a march in the Nerburdah—accompanied by a map prepared by him, showing the different routes from Subulpore to Amarkantak.

An old Chinese Coin, of date many years before the rise of the Tartar Dynasty, had been obtained at Macao by Captain Alcock, who had presented it to the Society—the coin was a large one, and covered with Chinese characters.

Some good specimens of stuffed birds were on the table.

An interesting communication was read from Major Rawlinson of Candahar, from whose services many valuable discoveries in the ruins of ancient Afghanistan, as well as an outline of the general history of that country, may be expected.

Read the monthly report of the Asiatic Society, which was very interesting and justified the subscription made by the Society.

A communication from Captain Cunningham was read, regarding the numerous standing lamps which were to be seen in and near the city of Patna; only one of which had as yet been opened.

It was mentioned that the Ornithological Collection of the Society is now becoming very valuable, but there are yet some skeletons of large animals from Singapore, Assam, &c. wanting, to make it complete.

A copy of Admiral Elliot's Proclamation, in Chinese, which had lately been circulated along the Chinese Coast, was shown to the Meeting.

The thanks of the Society were accorded for all the above presentations and communications, and the Meeting separated.—Calcutta Courier, December 3, 1849.

* Those friends of the society who may be able and willing to add to this valuable collection with specimens not at present to be found there, will doubtless find their presentations very acceptable.—Ed CAL. COUR.

Being assembled to reconsider and determine the rate of premium to be charged for war risk—it is voted to insure all risks hence to Europe, if required at 9 per cent, subject to no return in case there be no war, but, if not so required, then it is agreed to adhere to a former resolution, and charge a separate conditional war premium of 25 per cent, payable in the event of a commencement of maritime hostilities during the term of the Policy.

The Committee will defer making any new provision for country risks until the receipt of the next overland mail, when, if found expedient, a sub-committee will be appointed to fix a scale of premiums.

REPORT.

It is now about a year since the last Meeting was held.

The Shareholders are generally aware that the application made as to increasing the Capital was unsuccessful.

Mr. Wilson opened the Hotel about the project contemplated in the last report, and considering the disadvantages incident to a new undertaking, the number of visitors has proved, that the main object in view, viz. that of providing accommodation for all persons resorting to the Sanatorium is fully attained.

It is the opinion, however, of those visitors, that a considerable additional outlay will be required to render the Hotel in all respects what it should be, for the convenience and comfort of private families. The property is a valuable one, and considered by many to be worth the capital expended. But it is perhaps too small an affair for a Joint Stock Company: and in the circumstances previously reported, of a large debt due to the Secretary, your Committee has called this Meeting for the purpose stated in the advertisement.

As regards the progressive advancement of Darjeeling and the approaches to it, your Committee has little to add to the full report published by one of its Members a short time ago. Mr. Halkett is actively engaged in making the road between Bargaicha and Dinagopore, and the Billigoree Line is expected to be opened on the 1st of February. Government has likewise sanctioned the usual dak establishment of servants, &c. for the chopper hangalows under construction, so that on or before the 1st of March, it is expected, there will be no difficulty in travelling the whole way from the Ganges to Puukabaree in wheeled carriages. Your Committee has not neglected to propose to the Government a thorough repair of the old road by Baranoot or Kishinaghor, and from thence to Berhampore. But these and some minor points are still under consideration of the Governor of Bengal.

J. W. GRANT, Chairman.

1. Moved by Mr. Latley, and seconded by Mr. Campbell, — That the Report now read be approved ad. am. con.

2. Moved by Mr. Bruce, and seconded by Mr. Earle, — That the price of the property be fixed at Rs. 20,000 (rupees twenty thousand.) Carried nem. con.

3. Moved by Mr. Campbell, and seconded by Mr. Latley, — That the details of carrying through the above resolution be remitted to the Committee Carried nem. con.

Thanks to the Chair were voted by acclamation, and the meeting separated. — Hurkuru, December 14, 1840.

PRESENTATIONS TO THE SOCIETY.

LIBRARY.

1. — Madras Journal of Literature and Science, (No. 27.) — Presented by the Madras Literary Society.

2. — Proceedings of the American Philosophical Society, from 1839 to April 1840, (Nos. 7 to 11) Presented by the Society.

3. — Annual Report of the Geologist of Maryland for 1838, — Presented by the American Philosophical Society.

Second Annual Report on the Geological exploration of the state of Pennsylvania — Ditto.

Second Report on the Agriculture of Massachusetts. Premiums offered by the Horticultural Society of Pennsylvania, for vegetables, fruits and flowers, for 1839. — Ditto.

MUSEUM.

1. Specimen of Muringah Raw Silk. — Presented by Mr. M. Herring of Assam.

Mr. Herring mentions that this Silk has been wound off the cocoon by the Assamese, under his superintendence, and after a method superior to that pursued by the natives of the country. — Referred to Silk Committee.

2. Two specimens of Raw Silk reeled by Jews residing at Cochim. — Presented by Lieut. E. B. Stevenson.

Mr. Stevenson intimates that these samples are the result of the first attempt, made by the Jews, to reel Silk, — that they are a very industrious set, and if they succeed in their endeavours to cultivate the Mulberry in that Province, Mr. Stevenson considers that there is little doubt of their eventually producing a superior staple. — Referred to Silk Committee.

3. Specimen of Raw Silk manufactured at Bowang Factory in 1836 Presented by Baboo Comant Dutt, — Referred to Silk Committee.

4. Samples of Cotton of the second generation, grown in the Garden of the Brauch Agricultural Society of Dacca, from Upland Georgia Seed. — Presented by Mr. J. P. Cooke, President of the Society, and referred to the General Committee.

A sample of Colson, produced at Akyah, from Egyptian Seed, presented by Captain Bogle, referred to the General Committee.

Specimen of the Cane of Attacan, presented by Captain Bogle.

Captain Bogle states that this Cane has been grown by a native in very favorable soil, and with some little care, that the Cane (from which the specimen has been taken) was eight feet long and equally thick throughout, but had it been allowed to attain maturity it would doubtless have been ten feet long at least. Captain Bogle mentions that this Cane is said to give a fine sweet juice, and that he considers it altogether a very superior variety. Captain Bogle further adds that the people are generally ignorant of the art of making good gourd, but with such a Cane as this, almost indigenous, there is no doubt that a Sugar Factory at Akyah would have a very fair prospect of success.

7.—Acorns from Darjeeling.—Presented by the Darjeeling Plantation Society.

8.—A specimen of the indigenous vegetable, called Ool (Arum Campanulatum) of an unusual size, measuring 16 × 16 × 3 inches, grown in a Garden at Sorool, in the Dudwan District.—Presented by Baboo Goshinath Dutt.

The Baboo states that the mode of cooking this vegetable is as follows:

The shell being taken off, it is boiled with rice, and mixed with mustard powder, mustard oil and salt, it is then cut into squares of a thin size, one or one and a half tola in weight—after which it is boiled, and put into boiling mustard oil, with the salt added to it, and then fried up. To preserve the vegetable, it is shelled, then boiled in warm water and kept in lime juice with a mixture of salt and mustard powder.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE ANNUAL HORTICULTURAL EXHIBITION AND DINNER.

The Hon'ble the President intimated that the period had arrived for deciding on the time for holding the usual Annual Exhibition and Dinner. The Exhibition last year was found to have taken place at too early a date, and if there was no objection to the day he should propose that the forthcoming show and dinner should be on Friday, the 20th proximo. The same was agreed to unanimously and the arrangement of details was transferred to the General Committee.

ARRIVAL AND DISPOSAL OF FRUIT TREES FROM ENGLAND—RESOLUTIONS REGARDING SEED.

The Secretary announced the receipt of three cases from the London Seedsmen of Dwarf Apples, Pears, Plums, Cherries, Peaches, Nectarines, Apricots, Grape Vines, Red Raspberries, White Raspberries, Red Currants, White Currants, Black Currants, Gooseberries, and Figs in named sorts, by the ship Duke of Bedford, and mentioned that they had without loss at time been forwarded to the Nursery where they now were waiting the decision of the Society as to the mode of their disposal. It was arranged that they should be at once potted and examined by Dr. Wallich, Mr. Piddington and the Secretary, and advertised for sale by Auction at an early day. A return of 10 per cent. being made to those purchasers who were Members of the Society.

In connection with this subject the Secretary informed the Members that the Committee appointed at the former Meeting to determine on the best mode of securing seeds from England had met and adopted a series of resolutions which were unanimously carried, and referred to the Secretary and the Committee.

The success of a communication despatched by the house of George, Chairman of the Gardeners' Benevolent Society, which had been received by him, was mentioned by Mr. Stopford, and in order to record the sense of the Society on this disappointment, which has been so universally felt of the failure of the seeds from Messrs. Noble and Sons, the following resolution proposed by Mr. Piddington, and seconded by Mr. Stopford, was unanimously carried:

That the Agricultural and Horticultural Society of India, desire to record their extreme regret at the almost universal failure of the seeds sent out to the Society's special order; and that it requests Dr. Royle will be kind enough to convey to Messrs. Noble the expectation of the Society that some compensation will be made for the very great loss and disappointment which it has thus experienced.

GARDENING OPERATIONS AT KAMPTEE.

An interesting letter was next submitted which had been received from Lieutenant Munro at Kamptee on the subject of Gardening operations at that place. Lieutenant Munro after expressing his thanks for the very liberal supply of seeds of various kinds that had been sent to him, observes that he was informed by the old residents at the Station that it was useless to commence any operations in the garden till after the rains had ceased. This Lieutenant Munro did not believe, and from subsequent experience, is now convinced that the notion is an erroneous one. He sowed a great number of seeds the last week in May, whilst the hot weather lasted, which was till about the 15th of the next month, they remained dormant in the ground but as soon as the rains commenced they vegetated most freely and have thriven remarkably well, ever since almost all the people at Kamptee are now converts to Lt. Munro's system. A large grub (the grub of the cockchafer he believes) is very prevalent at Kamptee, and does great mischief. Lt. M. had heard of this and had the whole ground of his garden dug two feet deep and exposed in ridges during the dry weather. It has effectually destroyed them "and whilst my neighbours," writes Lt. Munro, "lost almost every plant they put down—I have not lost one." The native system of gardening, Lt. M. considers, only bring the top surface into use and the grubs at a few inches depth are undisturbed. There is also another insect, very common indeed at Kamptee, immediately after the rains commence, which is supposed to injure young plants, but Lt. Munro does not think that it does at all, it is he believes a species of sidopen-dra—but with his habits he is quite unacquainted and should like to know where to obtain information regarding them. It is harmless and does not hide itself—sometimes of a morning Lt. Munro has seen thousands in one small spot apparently just born, they vary considerably in colour. Since he has come to Kamptee, Lt. Munro has had a very strong proof of the advantage of boiling seeds. In 1837 when on the Neilgherry Hills, Lt. M. collected two pods of a very handsome species of convolvulus not quite ripe. He sowed some of the seeds at Kettary last year and none of them vegetated, when he came to Kamptee he had four left, one he put into boiling water for 1½ minutes, the remainder he sowed in the earth simply—the one that was boiled vegetated in seven days with one cotyledon very much damaged. Out of the three others two vegetated in about three weeks with one cotyledon also damaged, one died and the other has barely lived, and has now made a shoot 3 feet long. The one from the boiled seed grew most rapidly and has sent out shoots at all sides from 20 to 30 feet. It is by far the most extensive creeper he has seen amongst the convolvuli. It has not yet

Government; should it prove to be new, he says, that he will do his best to send some seed of it to the Society, as it is beautiful in its foliage; the young leaves are all copper coloured. — Hurkara, December 14, 1840.

ON THE PROPRIETY OF ESTABLISHING EXPERIMENTAL FARMS THROUGHOUT INDIA WITH THE SUPPORT AND UNDER THE SUPERVISION OF THE STATE.

The Secretary is desired to inform the Meeting that he had been favored with a long and interesting communication from Mr. Smith the Collector at Delhi, on the important subject of establishing Experimental Government Farms. Mr. Smith states that the note which he has the pleasure to transmit, was drawn up some months ago but not submitted to the Society at the time, inasmuch as it appeared to him, that one of the principal objects which he had in view, when he wrote it (viz the improved cultivation of Cotton) would be secured by the adoption of the measures advocated by the Society, in the report by the Special Cotton Committee to Government, which report he had not perused when his note was written.

It has since occurred to Mr. Smith, that it might be considered satisfactory to the Society to find the measures which it proposed, not essentially differing from those which are advocated by a member residing in a part of the country where Cotton cultivation prevails and it has besides struck him as possible, that the Society might be induced after reading the note to modify the plan by recommending that other experiments besides those in Cotton, should be carried on with the support and under the supervision of Government.

Mr. Smith is now preparing and hopes to be able to submit to the Society shortly, a note on the cultivation and produce of Cotton indigenous to the Delhi and Muttra part of India, the information contained in which will, he hopes, have the effect of inducing the Society to fix on some place in that neighborhood for prosecuting the experiments in Cotton cultivation.

Before however finally deciding on the several localities for experimental plantations, Mr. Smith strongly recommends that the Society should apply to Government, for its aid in obtaining information regarding the quantity of land cultivated, average produce, selling price, cost of cultivation, Government Revenue, and profit on every acre of Cotton cultivation within the Company's territories.

This can be best secured, Mr. Smith thinks, by calling upon the several local Revenue Officers, to furnish statements of an annexed, or somewhat similar form, containing the information in question for each pergunnah, in their respective jurisdictions.

With this information before it, the Society would be enabled to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion, as to what localities were best adapted for its operations, which it is impossible it can do with the imperfect information now before it.

In illustration of his position, that existing data are most unsatisfactory, Mr. Smith instances those furnished from the Madras Presidency contained in Major General Briggs's pamphlet on the Cotton trade of India. In page 65 of this work a table is given of the produce, charge assessment, and profit, on an acre of Cotton land in 13 districts on the Madras coast.

If this table is correct, many of the cultivators, on the Madras coasts grow their Cotton at a heavy loss, the value of the produce in several instances, being considerably less than the cost of cultivation and Government Revenue.

It is not however credible, Mr. Smith remarks, that land in the Mangalore district, which yields 200 lbs. of Cotton, could have been assessed at 14 rupees an acre (as Mr. Smith's neighborhood land yielding a similar produce scarcely pays as many rupees) or that six rupees fifteen annas should be taken in one district (Rajahmundry) where the produce is 97 lbs. of Cotton per acre, when seven annas six pie only is taken at Tanjore where the produce is stated to amount to 103 lbs. Neither is it to be believed that 48g. cost of cultivation per acre in one district (Guntour) should amount to only one rupee eleven annas eight pie, whilst in the adjoining one, it is stated to involve an expence of eighteen rupees eight annas per-acre.

In short this statement which has furnished grounds or needless declamatory attacks against Government for its incapacity bears, as well as most others of a similar nature, internal evidence of its inaccuracy, and Mr. Smith would therefore as before mentioned by him strongly recommend that before anything is attempted, accurate information should be sought for from each Presidency, district, and pergunnah where Cotton is grown, embracing every particular.

The only difficulty that occurs to Mr. Smith, is getting a correct account of what portion of the produce is applied to pay the cost of cultivation and what to profit.

In the Delhi and Muttra part of India the whole of the profits, i. e. all surplus beyond the actual subsistence of the cultivator and the Government Revenue, are absorbed in rent (not revenue) to the Zemindar as middleman, and interest to the Soukar or banker who supplies stock, seed, &c.

It is obvious, Mr. Smith says, that if an account is called for from a number of people as to the disposal of the produce, some will class under the head of cost of cultivation, what others will call profit (of stock.) In calling for any statement therefore, of the nature which Mr. Smith recommends, it ought to be distinctly explained that the cost of cultivation should merely contain the actual subsistence of the cultivator, and the profits include rent, (of the middlemen if any) and the profits of stock derived by the Soukar.

In illustration of his meaning Mr. Smith supposes a

A cultivator grows ten acres of Cotton which yields an amount of Cotton Wool, worth 100 rupees.

The produce is thus disposed of, — the subsistence of the cultivator and his family and bullocks absorbs 60 rupees — the Government Revenue is 10 rupees, the rent of the Zemindar 15 rupees, and the surplus 15 rupees is the profit or return which the Soukar gets as interest of money on advances which he has made or the purchase of cattle, seed, and subsistence to the cultivator, between the sowing and gathering of the crop. In this case, the cost of cultivation is 60 rupees, the Government Revenue 10 rupees, and the profits 30 rupees. The only person who really derives any profit is the Zemindar or middleman, that which is taken by the Soukar being in fact the profit, or interest on his advances for stock, &c.

In not one case out of ten in the North Western Provinces, does the actual cultivator participate directly in the profits. Where there is a Ryotwar settlement, it is possible that the cultivator may in some instances participate in the profits, though Mr. Smith imagines he (the Ryot) will be found in most cases in the hands of the Soukar.

Mr. Smith desires however to postpone all further remarks on this interesting subject until he submits his

...the Cotton cultivation of the East and West...
 ...the Society has applied to Government to obtain the...
 ...information which is proposed should be called for from...
 ...every part of India, without which he feels, anxious that...
 ...there is a probability of the question of the Society be-...
 ...ing undisturbed.

At the conclusion of the reading of the foregoing valuable letter, the Secretary attempted the notes, which Mr. Smith had been so good as to favor the Society with on the benefits to be derived by establishing Experimental Farms for the introduction of new and the improvement of known products in various parts of India; and mentioned, that it, with the form of table which had been submitted, would appear in full in the monthly pamphlet of proceedings.

The Hon'ble the President took occasion to remark, that the subject of Mr. Smith's paper was so intimately connected with the object, which the Government had immediately in view, that he thought he could advert to it with advantage. He alluded to the establishment of the Cotton Farms, under the management of the American Planters, who had come out.

The Society must be aware of the great difficulty which it had for a long time experienced in procuring Cotton seed from America, and the suspicion, which had been entertained by many on the jealousy which our Transatlantic brethren had evinced at the attempts now making to improve the Cotton cultivation of India would seem almost to be justified by the conduct of the American Press towards Captain Bayles, who had gone to America to obtain the services of some clever experienced Cotton Planters. The Hon'ble the President said that he had the satisfaction however of knowing that this feeling was not entertained by all and two American gentlemen were exempt from any jealous feeling of this kind, for to the exertions of Dr. Huggins and his father were the Society indebted to the supply of seed which is now daily expected via River pool.

The Home Government (I send) had decided on carrying on the experiment of cotton culture by its own officers, and it had no mind that Captain Bayles to be the superintendent—and he stated the substance of the following official letter—

To the Secretary to the Agricultural and Horticultural Society, Reference } Sir,—I am directed by the Right Hon'ble the Governor of Bengal to intimate to you for the information of the Society that, under orders from the Home authorities the American Cotton workmen, who are expected from England are to be employed, under the direct authority and control of Government, and not as was at first contemplated under the superintendence of the Agricultural and Horticultural Society.

2—The scene of operations is to be in the neighbourhood of Calcutta, and the workmen are to be placed at separate stations, within communicating distance of each other, two on each side of the Jumna, near Calcutta, where Captain Bayles, who is to be entrusted with the duty of immediate superintendence, will have his Head Quarters fixed.

3—His Lordship desires me to add, that while the attention of Government is being drawn by the Home authorities to the improved culture of Cotton, he will be happy to receive from the Society any suggestions that may occur to them, and that he will gladly avail himself, as occasions may arise, of the Society's advice and assistance in carrying the plans of Government into execution.

By this opportunity the Society will receive a copy of the letter from the Hon'ble the Governor of Bengal to the Secretary to the Society, dated the 1st inst.

Your most obedient Servant,

J. H. Young,

Deputy Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

Fort William, the 13th Decr, 1840.

With regard to the propriety of submitting to the Government the proposition for the artificial irrigation sought for by Mr. Smith, the Hon'ble the President said, he felt great doubts, whether the Government would be disposed to comply with the request, it made, for it was one that, to be efficient, would require a call to be made on all the public Revenue Officers throughout the country, and would necessarily occupy much of their time. Under these circumstances, perhaps, the publicity of Mr. Smith's views, might attract the notice of Government and if it was thought proper to issue instructions to the local officers, it could be done without the intervention of the Society.

DEPRESSED STATE OF AGRICULTURE IN TRANQUEBAR.]

The Secretary next brought forward a letter which he had been favored with, from Lieut. Stevenson at Cochin, whose present of silk, as wound by the Jews, will be found recorded in the list of presentations. Lieut. Stevenson says that he has succeeded in making some tolerable Sugar, and has shown some of the sugar cane cultivators, how to make it, but he says that they require to be constantly excited to exertion, until it is clearly proved, that the manufacture and cultivation of an article is profitable when they may be safely left to themselves. When General Fraser, the British Resident, left the country, all attempts at improvement have met with opposition from the old Government of Tranquebar and Lieut. Stevenson feelingly states that it is an unhappy sight to see so fine a country allowed to remain in such a miserable state. He adds 'the Government would only expend a tenth of the money towards the improvement of the country that it does in leaving Brahmins, the land would become a perfect garden, and until another Fraser, and a better Dewan are at the head of affairs, the country can never be what nature intended that it should be.'

DESPATCH OF FOREIGN AND INDIGENOUS SEEDS TO CALCUTTA.

An application from Government, for an ample supply of European vegetable, and Native excellent seed was next brought forward, and the Hon'ble the President stated that an abundant supply had been prepared to meet the wishes of Government, for despatch by the Cruiser. The Secretary mentioned that he had supplied 50 packets of Cape seeds, and a considerable quantity of the seeds of such vegetables as are used by the Natives of India, as condiments, the expense for which will be duly rendered to Government.

ON THE RICE OF PUURNAH AND THE ADVANTAGES RESULTING FROM AN INTERCHANGE OF INDIGENOUS SEEDS.

The Secretary desired to recall to the attention of the meeting the substance of a communication which he had submitted from Mr. Pratt, on the value of introducing Carolina rice into some of the pergunahs of the Poornah district, and stated that the country was indebted to the exertion of Mr. Hurry for this valuable change.

It now appears that the rice which Mr. Hurry dispatched to Poornah and was considered by Mr. Pratt to be Carolina Rice, is not American Rice at all, but an indigenous sort. The following are the interesting particulars which Mr. Hurry has forwarded the Society with in a letter to the Secretary.

(Calcutta, 28th September, 1840.)

MY DEAR SIR.—Referring to a communication with you on the subject of rice introduced by me into the District of Purneah, and stated by Mr. Pratt to be Carolina Rice. I think it is necessary to explain to the Society, that I never sent any Carolina Rice to Purneah. Soon after my arrival in this country, being largely interested in the Rice trade, I procured samples of various kinds of the grain from all the Countries between Pegu and the North West Provinces, both the dry and wet varieties, and also Carolina seed. After a vast many trials, the kinds proved to be best suited to the English market were some grown in the neighbourhood of Baradét within a few miles of Calcutta. These I introduced into Purneah, and at first had very great difficulty in inducing the ryots to cultivate it, though I understood that it is now general in the District; it is easily distinguished from the common paddy while growing by the colour. The Carolina Rice and also Bareilly were tried in this vicinity and succeeded very well, but the Carolina underwent a great change, becoming also long shaped, well known as chanderman's rice. The Bengali Rice, whether this arose from admixture with other sorts, I do not know, but I rather believe not, as it is impossible to make the ryots take the necessary pains to keep them distinct. The people in England, it should be remarked, judge of rice entirely by appearance, but by no quality as food. Here on the contrary the natives only regard the value as food, and can moderately distinguish the properties of each variety, even when the appearance to our eyes is quite similar. The test of market value is therefore wholly different in the two countries, and those who would outlive for shipment must bear this in mind.

I remain, yours very truly,

Wm. COBB HUNTER.

For all the foregoing valuable contributions, the thanks of the Society were accorded.

HENRY H. SPER, M. D.

Secretary.

MEDICAL AND PHYSICAL SOCIETY.

Proceedings of a meeting of the Medical and Physical Society of Calcutta, held at the Asiatic Society's apartment, the 5th December, 1840.

DR. WALLICH, in the Chair.

This being the last meeting previous to the annual change of the officers of the Society, the proposition made at the former one for the abolition of the selection and the distribution of periodicals, was postponed to a future evening.

MEMBERS ELECTED.

The following gentlemen, proposed at the last meeting, were elected Members of the Society.

A. W. Crozier, Esq., Assistant Surgeon, Bengal Service.

W. W. Wells, Esq., Assistant Surgeon, Bengal Service.

W. Jackson, Esq., Surgeon of the 8th Light Cavalry, was re-elected a member of the Society.

MEMBERS PROPOSED.

C. W. Cheyne, Esq., Assistant Garrison-Surgeon Chunar, by the Secretary and Dr. Wallich.

The following papers were then read and discussed.

1. Note by A. Beattie, Esq., of Allahabad, on a case of urinary calculi, in which as many as 26 small stones were removed by the Sub-Assistant Surgeon at that station, from a native patient at the Dispensary. The calculi are of irregular shape, smooth surface, the largest about the size of a pea.—Presented by the Medical Board.

2. Several interesting cases of ulcerative softening and disorganisation of the brain, with post mortem appearances and remarks, by W. A. Green, Esq., Howrah.

These are all cases of seamen, admitted into the Howrah Hospital, in the several stages of disease.

There is a most careful registry of all symptoms, &c., and of the appearances after death, which it would be impossible to abridge. At the conclusion of the remarks upon the case, it is stated, "that the relative amount of morbid process in the several cases did not tally with the recorded length of the disease. In the first case, of a year's standing, the disease of the brain, although a little more extensive than in the 2d and 4th cases, was essentially the same kind and degree of disorganisation. Two of the cases were admitted into the Hospital in November, one in March, one in May. The effect of the disease upon the circulation was to render it rapid and feeble; the tongue became dry and sticky, and the above secretions disordered. In the cases where the vomiting had been severe and continued, the mucous membrane of the stomach, particularly at the great end, was found highly vascular in large purple patches, and covered with a viscid mucus. The diseased state of the vein in the 3d case, was attended by a duly severe febrile paroxysm, preceded by vigor and then was discharget, from the ear and the deafness greater than in the other cases.

3. Correspondence on the Mylabris Cichorei as a substitute for cantharides, by Drs. Walker and Key.

Dr. Walker, gives a very interesting account of the mylabris cichorei, its natural history, &c., and states, that it is found in great abundance in the neighbourhood of Boloram, during the rains, and that it is common throughout the Deccan. It is supposed to be the same as the blistering fly of Dioscorides and Pliny, and as India has lately been shewn by Dr. Hoyle, to have supplied many drugs to the ancient world, Dr. Walker states, that it is not unlikely that some of the supply was derived from this country. That we should now import a blistering fly, presents a strange contrast to the former probable state of things. It is also a curious circumstance, that in some parts of Spain, a quantity that furnishes cantharides to all Europe, the mylabris should be preferred as a vesicatory.

The natives appear to be wholly unacquainted with its uses or properties. The name they give it is sun pak, or sun-muchkie, golden wing or golden insect.

The value of the extract of mylarin as a substitute for cantharides has been tested by the medical staff of the Hospital at Episcopa and noted in the correspondence, and it is found to be equally efficacious as a stimulant to the formation of urine, and as a diuretic. No doubt it will prove a valuable substitute for that now procured from Europe, seeing that the cantharides is one of the most expensive of European medicines, whilst the mylarin can be procured in any quantity, and at very little cost.

Dr. Walker's account of the value of the mylarin extract is also borne out by the following extract from Dr. Thompson's Materia Medica, where it is stated, page 658.

Of late years another insect has been introduced into practice as a substitute for the cantharides, which appears to possess all its vesicant and diuretic properties. Thus a species of the genus mylarin, one species of which, the mylarin chinensis, a native of the South of France, Italy and Greece, was employed by the ancients, and is described both by Dioscorides and Pliny. Pinay says it was used in the same manner as the blister beetle. The genus mylarin consists of fifty-one species, of which twenty-eight are found in Africa. The species employed as a substitute for cantharides is the mylarin variabilis. It is brought from China, and is regarded rather as a variety of the mylarin chinensis than a distinct species. M. Rouquet has analyzed it, and has found that it affords in cantharidin in a great abundance as the cantharides. It acts with a mild energy as a vesicant as the best cantharides—Presented by the Medical Board.

4. Account of a post mortem examination in which the 10th Rib had been badly fractured by a gripe shot and a particle of bone driven in upon the kidney where it had formed a strong ligamentous attachment which could not be separated without lacerating the piece of bone away with the kidney—Presented by the Medical Board.

5. Case of morbus cereleus with convulsions and death in a infant aged 1 month and 25 days, together with the preparation shewing the open communication between the two auricles.

The patient had also a small umbilical hernia which it was somewhat difficult to keep in a reduced state. Careful examination failed to discover any lesion of organisation in the spine or head and the only external source of possible irritation being the umbilical hernia.

The diagnosis and prognosis which had been distinctly pronounced on the third day of treatment were fully verified by the autopsy, both auricles were greatly distended with black clotted blood, and the foramen ovale, which had remained occluded was at least quarter of an inch in diameter, its margin white and round and glossy almost translucent, no trace of a valve having ever existed. Dr. Stewart's object in laying these particulars before the society is to call attention to the probability of this lesion as an occasional cause of convulsions in young children at a period of life when it is not usually expected. "Such malformations we may be assured," says Bell, "are infinitely more frequent than we suppose, since we observe many children die suddenly discoloured, and in convulsions, attributable to no other conceivable internal, and to no possible external, cause."

Dr. Stewart's object in laying these particulars before the society is to call attention to the probability of this lesion as an occasional cause of convulsions in young children at a period of life when it is not usually expected. "Such malformations we may be assured," says Bell, "are infinitely more frequent than we suppose, since we observe many children die suddenly discoloured, and in convulsions, attributable to no other conceivable internal, and to no possible external, cause."

By many of the members present the umbilical hernia (which was stated to be somewhat difficult to be kept reduced) was considered a sufficient cause, to produce the convulsions in favor of which argument was considered the good health which the child had enjoyed for the first six weeks, and the speedy return of the natural color when the convulsions ceased independent of the circumstance that the passage of the venous blood to the left auricle, and thence into the circulation, would be likely to produce symptoms of coma rather than convulsion. The case is of much interest, and the preparation shewed the open communication to be fully as large as stated by Dr. Stewart.

The several numbers of the medical, periodicals received since last meeting were laid upon the table.

2. The following extract of a letter from H. M. Low, Esquire of Calcutta, to the address of the Provisional Secretary, was then read.

"I enclose a list of Shareholders up to this date, 17th November, 1840, the number could easily be filled up here, for beyond the notice in the papers no influence has been used, and I only returned the night before last, and I am overhauled with the overland and other business."

"There have been a great many enquiries and applications to insure house property and furniture, but it is needless to send particulars until the Board is appointed."

3. A minute from the Hon'ble H. B. Dalzell, proposing that the office of the Company should be removed to Calcutta, (numerously signed) was next read and carried without dissent.

5. Proposed by Major General Smith, and seconded by A. Matthews, Esq.—That with reference to the purpose of the present meeting as relates to the appointment of such establishment as may bring the Company into the earliest possible operation, and to the peculiar and unprecedented circumstances attending the transfer of an infant institution from the most distant station to the chief city of the country, the Directors at Simla be requested to nominate a Secretary at their earliest convenience, and to request him to proceed in charge of all documents to Calcutta.

6. Proposed by Colonel Chadwick, and seconded by C. R. Cartwright, Esq.—That consequent on the loss of time arising from the removal of the office to Calcutta, the payment of the first instalment of shares be postponed from the 1st January to 1st of March 1861, the operations of the Company to commence from the latter date of which public notice be given in the newspapers. Carried.

7. Proposed by G Peabody, Esq., seconded by Colonel Chadwick.—That the thanks of the meeting be given to the Hon'ble J. C. Erskine, for his able conduct in the chair.—Englishman, December 17.

FOUNDATION STONE OF THE METCALFE HALL.

Saturday, the 19th Dec. 1840.

On the Procession reaching the ground it halted and faced inwards, forming a broad lane, through which the Grand Lodge passed to the East of the Foundation stone, where there were a platform and three chairs for the P. and Dep. P. Grand Masters, the officers of the Grand Lodge ranged themselves on either side and in rear of the three chairs.

The Magistrate of Calcutta and the Committee of the Metcalfe Building and Agri-Horticultural Society met the Grand Lodge on the ground and proceeded to their respective places, the Magistrates on the South and the Committee on the North of the Stone, where they found chairs placed for them indicated by flags.

The Brethren of the Lodges ranged themselves two deep in the places indicated to them by yellow flags.

The P. G. Masters having seated themselves, the Music played, and the Architect of the Building, C. K. Robinson Esq., presented the plan to the P. G. Master

The P. Grand Masters and the Deputy then standing on the Eastern side of the stone, the P. G. Wardens on the Western side, the Masters on the South, and the Committee of the Building on the North. The P. G. M. for Bengal addressing brother Barlow said, R. W. J. G. Warden, what is the emblem of your office? to which the reply was, 'The Plumb, R. W. &c, and I now present it for your use.' The Level and Square having been in the same manner presented by Sir Edward Ryan and brother Blackstone, and the stone having been proved by these implements—the Builder (Mr. Gray, then handed the mallet with which each of the P. G. Masters struck the stone three times, and P. G. M. of Bengal saying, "May the Great Architect, of the Universe grant a blessing on this stone."

which we have now laid, and that we may be enabled by his Providence to finish this and every other virtuous undertaking.

The Grand Officers and Brethren gave the usual response with the Masonic honors. The Cornucopia and cups of wine and oil were then presented by the respective bearers, through the P. G. Wardens and the D. P. G. Master, to the P. G. Master of Bengal, who having poured them all on the stone said:

"May the all bounteous author of nature bless this city with abundance of corn, wine and oil and with all the necessary convenience, and comforts of life." The Brethren again gave the usual response and the Masonic honors.

The stone having been laid, &c., the Provincial Grand Master of Bengal, Br. J. Grant, spoke as follows:

Gentlemen of the Committee of the Metcalfe Testament, — I believe I am not assuming too much upon myself in saying, that the public are much indebted to you, for the great trouble you have so long kindly taken, and the judicious and able manner, in which you have, to the best of your power, fulfilled the wishes of the Subscribers to the Metcalfe Fund, in furtherance of the object they had in view. On the part of the Free Masons of Calcutta again, I have to express our thankful appreciation of the excellent arrangements you have made in aid of the fraternity, and to enable them to conduct the ceremony, of laying the foundation-stone of the intended building, in a proper manner.

My Lord Auckland, Miss Eden, Miss Frances Eden, and Ladies and Gentlemen, — It is a very different thing to address an assemblage like this, under the blue canopy of the sky, and to throw off an unprepared speech, at a special convocation of the Fraternity in their own Hall; supported as I should be in the latter case by the sense of feelings common to us all, and the conviction of a relative sympathy. And yet have we not all a community of feelings and interests even here? I am very sensible that there are present many of the Masonic Fraternity who would appear before you to much greater advantage than myself; but poor-spirited must be the man who, being called upon to perform so honorable a duty, would shrink from it, formidable as it may be to address so numerous and highly respectable an assembly, comprising in itself, all that is eminent in rank and station, no less than the beauty, grace, elegance and intelligence of the British Metropolis of the East. Poorer still must be the man — (and here I am not unconscious that I may be identifying to my own deficiency) — who would not kindle into some animation of sentiment, on the occasion of so auspicious, and noble a solemnity, as that which has brought us together.

It has been always the custom of Masons, from the highest antiquity, to lay the foundations of certain edifices, with a solemn and significant ceremonial. You will find in the sacred records allusion to the chief-stone of the corner, that is to say of the North-East corner, for it was at that point that Masons have ever begun to build — and the chief-stone has always been laid upon a sure and firm foundation, with an invocation, before all the people, for the blessing of the Great Architect of Heaven and Earth, without which no undertaking can succeed, no work prosper. I have said that the ceremonial was a significant one; for you have seen me pour forth upon this stone, corn, wine, and oil — eloquent types of the goodness and bounty of all-wise Providence; and thus we have done in a spirit of deep thankfulness for the blessings that we have enjoyed in time past, and of humble hope for a continuance of abundance and mercy to time to come.

You have heard from the inscription read by my venerable friend, that the building now founded, will be the chosen place for matured deliberation upon the best modes of improving the spiritual resources of India. In a country subject to vicissitudes of the seasons, that sometimes bring famine and pestilence in their train, whatever tends to mitigate such evils by multiplying produce as much as possible on every available point; and to bring waste land into cultivation, must be considered in the light of a public benefit. But it is not merely the sustenance of life and physical comfort that the Metcalfe Hall may prove instrumental in advancing. By its name even, the edifice will be associated with liberal and benevolent views; and it is to be hoped that it will prove the medium of diffusing useful and edifying knowledge long after we who stand today this spot, thankful for that hope, have "shuffled off this mortal coil."

Ever since my arrival in this country, I have observed the traces of an improving spirit at work in different phases; and as the behest of that spirit, the foundations have been laid by the Free Masons of Bengal of an edifice, some of them dedicated to the ordinances of our holy religion; and others devoted to the advancement of education on European principles. One of these I particularly remember, and though many of them are mouldering in the grave, I still see near me two or three friends who stood with me in masonic square, when we laid the foundation stone of the Hindoo College; an institution that has done more for the improvement of Native intellect, than any previous one since the country came into the possession of the British. Benevolence, like fame, is finely conceived, by a celebrated ancient poet, acquires strength by progression, and contrary to mere mechanical impulses and laws, deepens while it widens its channels. What on the occasion of founding the Hindoo College we did for the youthful native mind, we are now about to carry into practical effect for the mature intellect of this country. At the Hindoo College, youth are taught the theoretical knowledge of the implements, tools, and weapons wherewith they will have to work their way through the occupations of life, or to struggle and do battle with its difficulties and exigencies. In the Metcalfe Hall again, will be illustrated the scientific application of means to manifold useful ends, no less than the illimitable potentiality of their productiveness.

But a few years ago, he whose name will be associated with the building now founded, was our fellow-worker, and afterwards — such either character he was loved, respected and honored. I believe, that I am only stating the simple and unadorned truth, in saying, that no person who ever served the Hon'ble E. I. Company acquitted himself during his long and brilliant career, with greater zeal, efficiency and distinction, or left the shores of India with a heavier freight of the good wishes and blessings of all classes, than SIR CHARLES METCALFE. Of his hospitality, munificence, and charity, it were superfluous to dilate before an audience already so conversant with them; neither is this the place to expatiate upon one of his public measures which has elicited much applause from many, but respecting which opinion is undoubtedly divided. The best way of rendering all parties unanimous respecting the liberty of the Press, is for those who wield that potent engine for good, or for evil; to handle it manfully, yet soberly and wisely, and under the guidance of moral principles and good feeling.

The mists of prejudice, and the partialities of passion are too apt to beset contemporary opinions. He who most calmly and dispassionately weighs conflicting claims, and circumstances, will be the most likely to anticipate the judgment of posterity, when men and measures shall have their allotted place in the great firmament of history, either to shine there for ever, as stars of the first, second and third magnitude; or to triumph, it may be that for a century, or so, the eyes cannot see but through the aid of art, and the progress which the mind speculates in vain what purpose they serve in the great scheme of things. When in our vision live our mortal fires—equi may be said of the truly great statesman, that after he has for ever quitted the scene of his triumphs, he will live in the masterly measures he decreed, and in the functions of his policy of his system, and the intuitive penetration of his system, and the intuitive penetration of his sagacity, have fastened into notice, and stimulated to celebrity, it was the glory of the Marquis of Wellesley, not merely to build up with grand proportions and just symmetry, the magnificent state fabric of which the colonnades yet illustrate (I have not quarried the materials, but to secure its being kept in a becoming state of splendour, and proper repair by the formation of a system of preparation, education, and direct line, for the servants of the Company, especially that class of them to whom the political, civil, and territorial administration of affairs is entrusted, which gives to patronage its dignified and legitimate prerogative to calling forth high requirements and unfolding eminent power and worth of character, as he has distinguished the phenomena the Metcalfe, the Bayley, the Carnack and Jenkinnes of our times.

I have alluded to one of our rulers whose name is associated with the expression of free opinion—but on grateful would I be of me were I on such a fair occasion, to omit mention of a nobleman, whose name I lend as low in the list of death and who I believe to have been a most sincere friend to India,—for Lord William Bentinck also connected his name in partnership with a fair cause when he entrusted us with him, from the hateful stain of the suttee. But it is not merely on account of the many thousands that have been thus rescued from their death, that his memory has caused to rejoice, but for the abolition for ever of a heinous system of cruelty and inhumanity that corrupted society to its core and the impunity of which was for such a length of time a stain upon our annals.

It is when I appreciate the present juncture you will understand the cause and I am sure appreciate the objects that it has in view. Nevertheless I trust that I do not offend you when I venture to allude to the two memorable precedents, I ask what we compare with the tremendous resistance my beloved friend Lord Auckland in a time of recent events which such vigour of statesmanship, and decision of policy could have so easily soiled and baffled the wily and tortuous policy of the most grasping and ambitious power on earth, and fixed I hope for ever, the proper boundaries of our Indian empire? But more congenial to the object of our meeting here, is that nobleman's cordial, energetic, liberal and wise encouragement of the arts that give scope and energy to industry, and consolidate the resources of peace. I could say much more on this head, but I refrain. It is recollect to have been said by a celebrated statesman, remarkable for his political sagacity, who is now numbered with the dead that were the English to quit India to-morrow, they would leave behind them no trace of their sway, no monument of beneficent rule. With the advantage of having witnessed and considered so many momentous events which even his penetrating genius could not foresee and of having a more intimate knowledge of India and its resources than he could possibly be possessed of, I hope it is no disrespect to the memory of Sir Burke to call his false vaticination. On the contrary, we may anticipate a future of much glory and good for India and our native country in connection with it. And when we shall be called upon to extinguish our stewardship at this most magnificent empire, the most splendid gem of the British diadem, and when it shall please the British people to restore that empire to its original owners, no longer to be a subject of our dominion, but to be a prosperous country, teeming with millions of happy and civilised inhabitants, and in a position of such military and naval resources, as to be a power to be reckoned with, and the freedom of superintending, to point to a monument of British sway, more enduring than the pyramids of Egypt, and more sublime than the imperial trophies of the Caesars.

Mr. Longueville Clarke, the Secretary of the Metcalfe Building Committee, then returned thanks in his usual eloquent manner; we have, however, only been able to catch the following thoughts of what was said by him—

Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master.—I have been deputed by the Chairman and the Committee of the Metcalfe Hall, to express to you their thanks, for the favor you have conferred by performing this ceremony, and I must now add, for the honor you have done them in the address which you have delivered. I have also to express the high gratification they derive from having so distinguished a Company assembled. We have here the Ruler of our vast Indian Empire, to whose munificent gift we are indebted for the ground on which this edifice will be erected. We have here the Ladies of his family, and the Ladies of Calcutta to whom I may say, that while you, Sir, have laid for us the corner stone of our building, their presence has been like a carved and beautiful capital, and conferred on the ceremony its grace and ornament. But gratifying to the Committee as the circumstances are, under which this building has so auspiciously commenced, I feel assured, that you, Sir, will participate in their satisfaction, when you reflect on the part you have had to perform, in a work, whose origin and object is entirely masonic. When I allude that its origin is masonic, I mean that it is founded on masonic principles. This building is erected as a testimonial of the gratitude and love which the people of India, entertained for Sir Charles Metcalfe. It was not masonry, but true, masonic qualities which had won for that great statesman, his high esteem. He belonged not to our craft yet the very names of our Indian lodges, and which I now see on our banners around me, are descriptive of his splendid characteristics.

Well might he be called "A Star in the East," whose "Industry will conquer," "Courage with Humanity," "Independence with Philanthropy," and "True Friendship," are among his most distinguished attributes. He had not been instructed in the principles of our craft, but nature had endowed him with the ethics of masonry. Thus far, Sir, I say, that the origin of this building is not masonic, but that its object is truly masonic there cannot be a doubt. Within these walls we shall have the Meetings of the Agricultural Society and a Public Library. You, Sir, have already expended so much and so well, on the benefit, which there must confer on the community, that I will not at this late hour detain the company by attempting to repeat, and certainly weakening your excellent observations, but this I will add, that both these institutions must be productive of great masonic objects. Nature has done much for India, a fertile soil, a vivifying climate, a dense population, all materials, which when worked up by talent, science and experience, must tend to the relief of the distressed, and the prosperity of all. You then, Sir, have tried the corner-stone of an edifice, the origin and object of which are connected with the principles of an order of which you are so distinguished an ornament. To the Noble Earl, to the Ladies who have honored us with their presence, and to you, Sir, who have performed this ceremony, the thanks of the Committee are due, and I feel that I have as inadequately expressed them, as I know they are sincerely affected.

The brethren then re-formed and retired to the Middle Hall, in the same order that they had observed in coming from it, and, being assembled in the large hall, on the ground floor, were dismissed after a short but feeling address from the Provincial, Grand Master (of Bengal).

At eight the brethren of the East assembled again, in palace of a sumptuous banquet, but what further took place it is not necessary for us to record. — Hurkara, December 27, 1840.

MASONRY—"TRUE FRIENDSHIP."

At Lodge True Friendship on the night of the 15th instant, upwards of thirty of the Masonic fraternity, including several of the principal dignitaries of the craft in India assembled, to initiate a candidate, and enrolled several other brethren as members of the Lodge. After work the brethren adjourned to the refreshing room, and the evening was spent as True Friendship must always spend it. Several excellent songs, were sung and Brother A. H. E. Boileau, who, as we have already said, has a song or a jest ready for every occasion, favored the brethren with the following

MASTER MASON'S SONG

Written for Lodge "Industry and Perseverance"

As "Come cross that starting tear away"

Come fill your glasses, Brethren all,
For time is on the wing,
And while we meet in festive hall
Freemasonry we'll sing
A Master Mason claims your eye
To list his roundelay,
And let your chorus ring full clear Whenever you hear him say "Come fill your glasses, &c."

Life's chequered pavement while we tread,
In sickness or in health,
Oh! let us view its pattern spread
Of poverty and wealth
It's variegated surface still of Murthus be understood,
That he is mixed at Heaven's deficiency—who With evil and with good high will,
"Then fill your glasses, that which has been your glasses, &c."

We'll strive that ladder to ascend
Whose steps are only three,
But which in heavenly mansions end,
Faith, Hope, and Charity

We've Faith in youth in manhood Hope
Those mansions bright to see,
And age has always ample scope
To practice Charity
"Then fill your glasses, &c."

When, placed on high before our eyes,
The beehive meets our view,
It shows that "Industry" we prize
And "Perseverance" too
It on our banner prints I can see
To be our rallying sign,
And though displayed by human hands
Its moral is divine.

Though lightly now the moments pass
In our banquets converse blithe
Remember still time's warning glass
And all destroying scythe,
Remember that life is all too short,
And flies too quickly by
To waste our days in ribald sport
Or revel but Masonry.

Let's make no haste in getting rid
Of our that lightly fly,
For so, that Masonry is hid
From one all seeing eye
Thus Perseverance should guide our hand
And Prudence should bring Obedience to her strict command
While Masonry we sing.
Then fill your glasses, Brethren all,
For time is on the wing,
And while we meet in festive hall
Freemasonry we'll sing

THE DURMO SUBHA.

A grand meeting of all the Members of the Dhurmo Subha was held yesterday at a house in Simlah, in pursuance of a requisition circulated by Rajah Kalikrishen Bhattacharjee, Baboo Anukulchandra Dey and Mohar Chunder Dutt, to consider the propriety of dissolving all connection with Kajah Madankant Bahadur and the worthy secretary of the Subha, and electing new office-bearers to fill their places. Since the formation of this unholy and unconstitutional association, no meeting except on one or two occasions, was so numerously attended, and we may add, so ably conducted. We have been informed that nearly five hundred Hindoos of all ranks assembled on the present occasion. It appears from this and other symptoms that the reformation of Hindustani life by the social efforts and intercourse of the members of respectable caste, through the intervention of Rajah Rulghat, Bahadur, has thrown the whole Hindu community into a state of excitement, which is not likely to subside, until the Sahas, stripped of its unlawful authority, ceases to exist, and its insignificance and nothingness. If we carefully look around us and study the movements of the nation, society in the spontaneous growth of liberal principles and enlightened sentiments, we cannot fail to perceive that the period is fast approaching when this wholly oppressive—this anti social criteria—this impetration of intolerance and persecution—shall be at once annihilated. As men having eyes to see, ears to hear, and senses to discriminate, cannot long be deceived and eternally chained down in ignorance and superstition, we can, to morally enough conclude that the onward progress of reformation which has already begun in this country, will sweep away the lagging and antiquated lumber of Hinduism. However the leading Members of the Sahas may endeavor, by all the shreds and riches of intolerant bigotry, to keep up a rickety existence, it will soon share the ignominious fate that inevitably awaits it. Vox populi vox dei demands its immediate abolition, its own Mem-

In noticing the proceedings of yesterday's meeting, we had almost forgotten to state that a paper to be called the Dharmo Pintha is henceforward to be published under the auspices of the Sabha, perhaps in the faint hope of procuring it dotage and repairing the injuries it has sustained by party dissensions. But the child, like its mother, must die a natural death.

Consequantly 3 to 1 on him found no takers; Crowe, however, will occur at times on the turf, and it is not unusual to be one. Pirate lead off and was soon three lengths ahead of Ah Pacha, who was about the same distance from Haronet, and so they ran until they came in—Pirate doing the mile in capital time 1.53.

Mr White's bla h Blackball, 8st 2lbs..... 2

The great betting was on the match—and Blackball's stable was so confident, that 3 to 2 and 2 to 1 were freely betted on him at the stand. Some few undaunted spirits, however, putting a bold face on the matter would stand by Sweetlips, and a gal as the event proved, picked the win, for Blackball never came nearer his antagonist than one length. He was beaten without a struggle in 3.30.

Mr Hickey's br m Brown Bess, 11st, 11lbs.

The interest of the morning was in this Race, and a very pretty Race it was. Fortitude and Q in the corner picked a snipe the field. Q with Paragon took the first hurdle in gallant style, the others following in a lump. All together over the second, when Minimus and Black Diamond went away from the others, taking the leaps neck and neck. The turn home was too sharp for the black and he was thrown out. Q and Paragon then ran up to Minimus but Q too much fancying the corner, swerved from the due course, and out the tug, and cartilage on the side, while the humanity of Paragon's rider would not allow him to expend two little children who came on the way just at the moment they should not, so Minimus kept his lead and won the cup and the 10 G. M. after a very recommendable fashion in fact.

Mr Grey's bc Jonathan Wild, by Humphrey, out of Leopots, Dam,..... 2

Coming to the fore, the horses were not seen till they reached the half mile post, when they were seen to be running at a head of the others. At the end of the race, however, Harkaway was made to take the lead, and to come in first by some length. Last half mile in 1m. 5s.

Second Race.—Plate of 50 gold mohurs given by Shah Ibrahim for Arabs purchased of him subsequent to the 8th February, 1840. Calcutta weight for age. Round the course. Entrance 10 gold mohurs.

Mr Allright's gr a h Zigr, 9-1 3lbs (Ross) 1
Mr Currie's b a h Ali Pacha, 8-1 10lbs 2
Mr Smith's b a h Jericho, 8-1 10lbs 3

A good start, Zigr going away with the lead from the T. Ali Pacha made a struggle to catch him, after passing the post but could not beat him, Zigr winning by some lengths in 3m 35s. Jericho up where.

Third Race.—Plate of 50 gold mohurs, given by Syed Yaseen for Arabs purchased of him subsequent to the 8th February, 1840. Calcutta weight for age. Round the course. Entrance 10 gold mohurs.

Mr Currie's b a h Locomotive, 9-1 5lbs 2

A very pretty race throughout, the che-nut taking the lead, the others holding about a couple of lengths behind till the turn home, when Rowanree was shook off—and Locomotive made a push to head Kazalbash but whip and spur could only bring him into a bad second. Time 3m 30s.

Fourth Race.—A Plate of 50 gold mohurs, given by Mahomed Kopy Khan, for all Arabs purchased from him since the 1st July, 1840. Calcutta weight for age. Round the course. Entrance 10 gold mohurs.

Mr White's gr a h Athlone, 8-1 13lb, walked over.

Fifth Race.—Sweepstakes of 100 gold mohurs each. Half forfeit for all Arabs, 8-1 7lbs each. Two miles. To close 1st May, and same by 2 p.m. the day before the race. Four subscribers.

Mr Allright's br a h Sweetlips.....(Ross) 1
Mr White's gr a h Fieschi..... 2
Mr Roberts's gr a h Cornucopia..... 3

This was the race of the morning—as it brought out the great winner of last year to contend against two known clippers—and a beautiful race it was. In the Lottery, Fieschi sold for 22, Cornucopia for 20, and Sweetlips for 13; at the stand Fieschi was backed to win, though some said he was not up to his mark of last season. All together from the post to the stand when Fieschi went away with Corrie on his quarter, leading to the mile, Ross holding Sweetlips two or three lengths behind—and so they ran, Fieschi and Corrie racing it against each other, to the sudden turning. Here Sweetlips closed up, and it was any body's race. Fieschi, Corrie, Sweetlips, reentered from all parts of the stand as they came flying round the corner; "the old horse has it," "Not Not," "Sweetlips," "Sweetlips," as Ross was seen to let him out pating Fieschi at the distance, and bringing him in a beautiful winner in 3m. 57s.—two seconds more than Fieschi beat The Exile in last year.

With a few exceptions, the horses were not seen till they reached the half mile post, when they were seen to be running at a head of the others. At the end of the race, however, Harkaway was made to take the lead, and to come in first by some length. Last half mile in 1m. 5s.

There was also considerable interest taken in this Sweepstakes for the Maidens; Destourel having rather the call, but Nonplus and Chusan had both backed. Destourel went away at a staggering pace from the post, and seemed as if he was to have a half a mile way to the last, for Chusan held with the champions to the hospital corner, two lengths behind, but Ross here went up to the grey, and the pace became tremendous, both together at turn home, peck and peck as they could go to the distance when Chusan showed in front winning a most excellent race in the slap up time of 2m. 54s. Think of that, Master Brook, for Maidens.

Seventh Race.—The Old Maids' Stakes of 30 gold mohurs each, P. P. for Arabs that have been injured for three seasons (the present included) and have never won before October, 1840, 8-1 7lbs each, 1½ miles. To close on the 1st May, and name the day before the race by 2 p.m. Four subscribers.

Most unfortunately Desjournel broke down in the first quarter, of this Sweepstakes would have afforded a much prettier race than it did, whatever might have been the result. As it was, Cendower went away with the lead, and Feachi could never come up him with during the race, which was run in 4m. 58s. All must regret the accident to M. White's stable, not only on account of the honest owner himself, but the injury it will probably cause to the sport of the whole meeting.

Third Race.—A purse of 50 gold mohurs from the fund added to a sweepstake of 50 gold mohurs each. Half forfeit, for maiden country-bred horses. Calcutta weight for age. R. C. to close on 1st May, and name the day preceding the race by 2 p. m. Three subscribers.

Chusen the favorite at odds, but it was by no manner of means an easy thing. Kishi Chikan jumped off with the lead, but soon gave way to the rattling pace of Jober, who led with Chusen on his quarter to the Sudder, Chusen then pushed his nose first, and so they came neck and neck up the straight-run home, both working from the distance ly, and making a capital race of it. This was by far the prettiest race we have had during the meeting. At the ordinary Mr White was backed at even to win—2 and 3 to 1 offered against Cameronian. All came off well together from the post, the pace rather slow at first. At the Stand Sans Souci and Athlone went away with the lead to the 1/4 mile post—when Walmar joined them, leaving Ross on Cameronian to bide his time about four or five lengths behind, and so they ran to the mile. Here the pace mended, and Ross began to creep up, Athlone taking first place, with Walmar on his quarter, Sans Souci being beaten off—nearer and nearer went Ross, gaining inch by inch upon Walmar, as the running increased to the goal. At the Sudder the was about half a length behind, the other two close together. At the turn home, Ross had closed, and the race was most interesting. All three brought to the whip, and up they come neck and neck to the distance, when Athlone gave way leaving the other two to rate it home head to head, whip and spur falling on both—scarcely a nose between them till Ross lifted his horse in front by a neck—in admirable style indeed. Time 4m 1s.

Thanks to Radamadub and thanks to the Handicappers, we had another capital race. Only two nags were to run on the original terms, so by mutual consent the race was altered, and seldom has there been better sport in consequence. There was scarce a favorite among them, perhaps Frolic and Pirate had rather the call. In a 200 gold mohur lottery, the former sold for 39; the latter for 26, Corriemonie 21, Fieschi 17 and the others only a pointer two less. The word given, and off they went scoring from the post—one or the other to get the lead, which little tussle ended in Corriemonie, Bedouin and Snowball, taking first rank in close order, Frolic, Fieschi and Zigri astern together about three lengths then came Deuce Ace, then Pirate—and so they passed the 1/4 mile post—the pace then became severe, and the rear horses closed up, and the mile corner showed them all in a cluster. But Bedouin then gave in Corriemonie and Snowball went rather a beat again, but only for a few seconds, the rest were soon with them, Fieschi taking second place; in which order they flew past the goal and Sudder corner, where Zigri and Pirate dropped astern. Frolic gave way at the turn home—the others rating it neck and neck to the distance—when Hall set vigorously to work, and out old Fieschi came, a gallant leader—to such a goodly host, winning a most interesting race, amid very general acclamations. Time 3m. 44s. The riding throughout, particularly of Frampton on Corriemonie, was much admired.

MORADABAD MEETING, 1840.

Of the horses nominated for the "Original" Steeple Chase, there only remained two on the evening of the 14th that would start on the 16th, and of these one would merely have run to prevent any other horse walking over the course. The owners of these horses therefore kindly consented that the Purse should be given in any way which was agreeable to the majority of the subscribers, and the consequence was that instead of a heavy one-sided affair, we had some very pretty sport as follows, on the 16th afternoon.

1st Race.—A Purse of 700 rupees for all horses Gentleman Riders; added to a Sweepstake of two gold mohurs. Post entrances: to be run over any line of country selected by the Stewards. The last horse to pay the stake of the second horse.

The line of country selected was about 2 miles, with 12 fences, of which were 4 Walls and 2 Posts and Rails. The run in and out was over the same ground, a fine soft Turf. Wilhelmus lead to the first jump and refused; most of the others following her example, Mr. Money went at and broke the wall, the mare getting away from him on the other side she was caught and he mounted, caught the rest at the 2d fence, (for they had most of them got through the gap he had made,) and there took the lead and was never headed; on his return he was again buried at the Post and Rail, and here the Dolphin was close upon him, but he came down on the wrong side of the Rail. Both Riders got up and Mr. Money made play over the last wall and came in a Winner in 7 minutes. Mr. Hicks a good second and the three last horses, not having ridden over all the fences, were distanced.

2d Race.—On Tuesday the 17th. A Purse of 400 Rupees for all horses, Gentleman Riders; added to a Sweepstake of 1 G M Post Entrances: half mile heats over the Moradabad Race Course.

SKY RACES AT UASHUNGABAD.

I send you an account of some Sky Races we had two or three days before our last party marched for Banton, if you think them worth being 'placed.' At any rate they afforded me lots of fun, just as much as if not more than if they had been first rate and for thousands instead of tens.

Monday, 9th November, 1840.

First Race—This was for a handsome gold mounted Jockey Whip, which came out after the gentlemen who ordered it had gone home and it was proposed we should have a run for it, hence this race and all the following.

The course was made this year, and is a very fair one two miles, less 165 yards, and a great comfort during the races as it is good after the heaviest falls, and no other place off the main road at, the soil being black cotton grounds, full of holes, and there of no common depth.

The Whip value 4 Rs for all Arab and Country (not horse), now at the station, excepting Captain H—n's bat and (Captain H—n's) (lieut), once round the course, 2 miles each 1 men mile. No horses to carry less than 9st. 7lbs 10 lbs entrance.

Major E—y's g a h Sir Augustus, and Mr C—n's The Pet.....	dr

At the word, The Discarded jumped off, held well together, followed by Fieschi, Roaring Bob, Hadje and the Killidar, the latter, however, soon went to the front of the last lot, and at the turn up the hill beyond the first half mile, run up to the white horse and went a little ahead for a length or two, when these two ruted it together to the turn at the half mile from home Roaring Bob and Hadje bare came up with the Killidar; The Discarded making strong running, three or four lengths ahead, maintained his place, and won by a good margin. The other three, the other three, the second place, took and took the whole time. Fieschi was told out by the pace at the first mile and pulled back. This should have disqualified him, for the hurdle, but he was allowed to take his chance. The Pet and Sir Augustus, went wrong and were drawn.

Second Race—A Sweepstakes for all Galloways, 14 hands and under, 10st 7lbs each gentleman rider, 1 mile each; a gold mohur entrance.

These were two brutes that were supposed would pull up at the wrong post like 'Mr Garland's' nag, from which the chestnut took his name, he however, did not deserve it, (running an honest race from the application of a good pair of spurs well put in) but would have been more appropriate for the other nag who bolted at the half mile post, though he had it his own way to that point.

Fourth Race—Poney Stakes, ten rupees each:

Major L—y's c p Charley, yellow and black, (Mr S—m,) 9st 7lbs.....	2

Vivian and the bay jumped away together and ran neck and neck the first quarter mile, when the bay lost his bridle or rather the curb bit, Vivian went to the front, never was headed, and won easy. Charley got a bad start, but came up in the flat, and looked like winning at the distance.

Fifth Race—A Hurdle Race, for all horses (with the exception of those excluded in the first race) one mile with four leaps of three and a half feet high, a gold mohur each, no horse to carry less than 10st.

2 Capt S—t's g c b h The Killidar, puce and black (Capt McL—y) 11st 2lbs.....	2
3 Mr T—n's c a h Fieschi, purple and scarlet, (owner) 10st 2lbs.....	3
4 Mr B—n's g a g Sir Samford, scarlet and blue (Mr C—n) 10st 2lbs.....	dist

All off together. The first Hurdle was about sixty yards from the start. Fieschi and the Discarded making for the same Hurdle, the rider of the latter was obliged to pull his horse to the left in doing which lost his stirrup (a 5lb saddle) screwed him over without it, took a pull on the other side and got all right to a twinkling, and sailed steadily along after, Fieschi, followed by the Killidar, who was third over the fence, the Chief shed found and was distanced in consequence of his rider neglecting to take him back. At the 1/2 mile Fieschi came to the whip and the Discarded went up and took the lead, the Killidar closing in the flat, both went over the second Hurdle together in beautiful style, running neck and neck to the third, thus the latter relapsed and was taken back. He & his friends took it together, they having come up in the mean time, the whole tried to shy the last horse, his rider however screwed him at it, when he made a splendid jump for the rear rank, winning, easy. Killidar a good second, after which a tango and a foot race.

The Discarded was cast from Regt. L. C. and sold for sixteen rupees, was bought by his present owner for fifty Hyderabad in July 1836, is an excellent Indian horse, ditto in double and single harness, a first-rate parade and hog hunter, so much for so much for causing committee.

SECOND DAY, TUESDAY, 10th Nov. 1840.

First Race—A Sweepstakes of one gold mohur each, one mile.

Capt S—t's g c b b. The Killidar, puce and black (Capt H—y) 10st. 1
Mr C—n's g a h. Roaring Bob, scarlet and blue (Mr G—n) 9st 7lbs. 2
Mr T—r's c a h Fieschi, purple and scarlet, (owner) 9st 3lbs. 3

All off at score, the Killidar soon took the lead, never was headed, and won easy by a length.

Second Race—Match for 1 mile, 10st each.

Mr S—m's c gal. Whisker, yellow and black, (Captain H—y), 1
Mr C—n's b gal. Frisky Tim, checked jacket and cap, (Mr T—r), 2

Messrs C and T not being satisfied with the race between these two varmint, yesterday determined to try it again this morning, and after half a dozen false starts, the black was got off, took the lead, and kept it to the distance, evidently shewing that the owner and jockey were right in their opinion of his speed, but the chestnut well held together from the start was worked up to the front and won with difficulty by half a length.

Third Race—A Pony match for one mile, catch weight.

Major E—y's c b pony Charley, blue and white, (Capt H—y) 9st 13lbs.
Mr T—r's b pony Catch me if you can, (owner) 9st 8lbs. dist

The little bay was evidently the fastest, and not having Vivian to take him along, his wind was in him to this point. The extra weight also told on Charley, though he can go at the same pace for a month, and he was two lengths in the rear; when within four of home the bay belted, nearly knocking over the judge.

The sport concluded with a foot race. Tents were pitched on the course, and breakfast, dinner, &c. &c., each day, which were attended by the whole community, ladies included, and every thing went off with the greatest conviviality. I fear our cattle are now too few to have a second meeting, which was in contemplation.

I am, dear Mr. Editor, your faithfully, newly destroyed by mildew and white spots. The contents (it was submitted) were clearly guilty of breach of duty, and were liable to make good the loss.

WHIP AND SPURS.

Several witnesses were called for the plaintiff. It was proved that the five cases in question were "hurled" through the air, and the books more or less eaten by white ants and quite unsaleable. The books were afterwards sent to Taffeb and Co. and fetched about 540 rupees, and by Public Auction. The invoice prices of the whole damaged books amounted to about Co.'s Rs. 1,450.

The Advocate-General (with whom were Messrs. Clarke and Marlon) addressed the Court for the defence.

The witnesses for the defence proved that at the time when the cases arrived, the shelves of Pittar Lalley and Co.'s premises were so crowded with books (chiefly Mr. Parbury's) that there was no room for the publications contained in these cases. That the godown in which they were kept was a perfectly dry godown, and that cases of musical boxes and jewellery belonging to Pittar and Co. themselves, were kept in the same place. That the rest of the boxes and their contents were uninjured, and that there must have been some fault in the original packing of the five cases to which the accident had happened. With respect to the value of the damaged books, it was said by one of the witnesses that the greater part were "half sold off" books, and that the invoice price was more than double the real value, so that the price fetched by auction was nearly equivalent to their full value.

The Court were of opinion upon the evidence that the verdict must be for the plaintiff. The damages they calculated by taking the invoice prices, and deducting therefrom the commission agreed upon (twenty per cent.) and the net proceeds of the sale by auction. This gave a balance of Co.'s Rs. 651.

Verdict accordingly.

[Hurry, December 8, 1840.]

TUESDAY DECEMBER 7, 1840.

ADJOURNED SITTINGS.

C. REED LEFUSE RAJAH BEJOY GOVIND SINGH.

It was announced that Mr C Morton surviving trustee, (appointed in July last, under the compromise between the parties) do pay into court the sum of Rs. 182 100 (less Rs. 688), or that he do hold the same until further order.

In October last, a power was executed by Mr Reed to Mr E D Barwell and Mr Morton to receive the monies in question, pursuant to the terms of compromise of 1st July, and to hold the same, until they should be satisfied. (and should so certify) that the Khudier Dewahdy Adawlut would pay, under a court decree of the Privy Council bearing date the 11th of July 1839, the refund of a certain sum of Rs. 1,66,487 mentioned in the Privy Council's decree, and upon the trustees being satisfied thereof, and certifying the same they were to pay over the money to Mr Reed.

On the 9th November Mr Barwell died. No provision was made for the death of either co-trustee, and Mr Reed refused to appoint a new trustee.

The Advocate-General, in support of the motion, contended that as the money was paid over to the two Trustees, and upon a power executed to them jointly, the power could not be acted upon by one alone, upon the death of the other. He had no objection to Mr Motion being sole Trustee, but it was submitted that he could not act. The power was at an end.

SIR R H STON—You ask as to alter, without consent orders of court made by consent! Without the consent, of the parties, we cannot entertain a motion to substitute one Trustee for another.

The Advocate-General. Then we shall be driven to file a bill in equity for an injunction.

Mr Leith contra, was stopped by the court.

The Court said they could make no order; but they allowed the motion to stand over, at the request of the Advocate-General, in order to endeavour to effect some arrangement by consent.

DECEMBER 8, 1840.

4TH SESSIONS.

Before the opening of the Sessions, this morning, a few motions in civil cases were taken, and some time after Sir John Peter Grant, who is to preside during the present sessions, took his seat. The grand jury were next empanelled, and on Mr J G Gordon, of the Union Bank, being called, that gentleman represented to the Court, that as Secretary to the Union Bank, and in the absence of the Deputy Secretary, who is indisposed, his service on the grand Jury would tend to the suspension of all business at the Bank, and lead, consequently, to great public inconvenience.

Sir John Peter Grant, after a brief consultation with the Chief Justice, informed Mr Gordon, that the case was one of considerable difficulty, and that if the Court were to grant his application, it would be pressed with similar applications. The absence of the Deputy Secretary, however, was a circumstance that could be favorably viewed by the Court, and as the Union Bank was a private establishment, it was only on the ground of the Deputy Secretary's absence that the Court would exempt Mr Gordon from the present grand jury.

Sir John Peter Grant next proceeded to charge the Grand Jury—the following being the substance of what he said:

Gentlemen of the Grand Jury.—I am sorry to find there has been a mistake on the part of the undersheriff in regard to the time of your attendance in Court this morning. I stated twelve as the time of attendance, but I find that you were summoned to be in attendance at eleven.

I cannot congratulate you on the state of the present Calendar—either in regard to the particularly small number or character of cases. The number is only somewhat small, but there are cases of the greatest consequence, demanding the most serious attention and deliberation. I hope they will not occupy any unusual space of time, but I am sure you will accord to them the space of time and attention which they may require.

There are several cases of burglary, theft, petty larceny and the like; two cases of poisoning with intent to murder, though death, did not ensue, and one case of murder.

On burglary, I shall say a few words. Most of you are aware that in the first place breaking and entering a dwelling house, however slight the fastening the party broken is burglary, and also having entered a house without breaking yet to escape by breaking is like burglary. With regard to the intent to enter a house with intent to commit felony would constitute burglary. In reference to the out office of a house, Sir John Peter Grant stated, that though this was a doubtful point formerly, it has been determined by a late act of the legislature, which defines that no building can be considered part of a house, unless it communicates with it immediately or be connected by an enclosed or covered passage. I shall make no other observations on this head, continued his Lordship, excepting that what was formerly disputed as to the extent of the hours of night, has been fixed from nine o'clock in the evening to six o'clock in the morning.

On the cases of stealing and so forth of an ordinary nature his Lordship said nothing.

His Lordship then went on to remark on the poisoning cases. There were two cases he said of poisoning, an offence though very atrocious yet not usual here. These cases had happened on different occasions and under different circumstances, there being no connection between them. His Lordship then entered into some very judicious observations on the circumstance generally attending the commission of this description of crimes at home, and the frequency with which they are committed to what it is in this country. In reference to the present cases, there was not only the circumstance of their unusual occurrence, but the cause or motive why they were committed being unknown would form ingredients of improbability; but these circumstances and the like should not weigh against evidence—they should not get more weight than they deserve.

On the case of murder, I shall say a few words more. The unhappy condition and the miserable profession of the object of the murder, who was a prostitute, have caused great difficulty in bringing evidence to attach the commission of the crime to any particular party. It is evident, however, though not free from doubt, and they ought to be weighed and considered with circumstantial evidence.

There is a case of UNLAWFUL IMPRISONMENT. His Lordship in reference to this case only explained the circumstances that constitute the description of misdemeanor in question, namely, that any confinement, whether it be in a private house a public prison, or forcible detention in the street, in the absence of magisterial or lawfully delegated authority, constitutes unlawful imprisonment.

Adverting to the advantages that result from the system of Grand Juries, and of the great use they are to society, His Lordship concluded his charge.

No Petty Jury was called on, nor, any criminal cases taken to day, in consequence of there remaining some civil cases to be taken, which business was commenced with on the charge being delivered to the Grand Jury.

The Court will open to-day (Wednesday) precisely at 11 o'clock.—Harkara, December, 9, 1840.

DECEMBER 9, 1840.

(Before Sir John Peter Grant.)

Mittoo Lall and Heera, Charged with stealing at the Macheo Bazar, on 2d September last, a box, containing Various articles of wearing apparel and jewellery, valued at about 30 rupees, the property of a woman, named Buanoo, were severally found guilty, and sentenced to be imprisoned and kept at hard labour in the House of Correction the term of 12 calendar months.

Tarachand charged with feloniously stealing from the house of his master Sheehpader Paul, in Shaum Hazir, gold ornaments and cash, value rupees 730, was found guilty, sentence deferred until the last day of the Sessions.

Sheedulram Ghose, charged with stealing from the dwelling of Rajkissen Bhanerjee, in Choolah, gold ornaments, shawls, wearing apparel and silver coin valued at rupees 540, was found not guilty, and discharged.

Court sits at 11 o'clock this day.—Hukuru, December 10, 1840.

DECEMBER 10, 1840.

On the Petty Jury being called this morning, five individuals did not answer to their names, who were in consequence fined 50 rupees each. The names of the parties are Peter, Francis O'Leary, Vincent Kees, D. E. Walloch, John Spence, and Abraham Ross.

Of the Criminal Cases the following was, what was taken to day

DECEMBER 15 1840

The Grand Jury sat to day and among the presentments was the Burra-bazaar murder case in which a true bill has been found against the prisoner Ootum. The false imprisonment case and Mrs East's case will be considered by the Grand Jury to-morrow

Of the criminal trials the following were taken --

Caullgo—charged with stealing from the dwelling house of Bunnoo Raur in Goorahmah, gold ornaments value 48 rupees, was found guilty. Sentence pronounced to the last day of Sessions.

Kadarbux—a youth of about 10 years of age was charged, with feloniously stealing from the dwelling of "No true bill" against Abdool; Pateet Dutt and Gossyn Doss, for robbery from a gadown.—Hurkaru, December 16, 1840.

DECEMBER 16, 1840.

The Grand Jury this day received their discharged. A true bill was presented in the false imprisonment case. In the case of Mrs. Fast it went by default, and no true bill was found by the Grand Jury in consequence of the prosecutors Donald Campbell Mackey and Dinoo Rundo Panerjee having kept away and forfeited their recognizances.

One of the poisoning cases came on to-day, but owing to the lateness of the hour at which the court broke up, (near 6 o'clock) the details of the trial are unavoidably postponed. The prisoner, Mahomedally, was found guilty.—Hurkaru, December 17, 1840.

DECEMBER 16, 1840.

Isuruchunder Kurr, who only a short time ago was released from confinement, was charged with having on the 16th October swindled two pieces of Lung Cloth, value 18 rupees and one piece of Dooriah, value 4 rupees, belonging to the prosecutor Hyder Ally. The prisoner was tried this day, found guilty by the jury, and sentenced to seven years' transportation.

The prisoner, after receiving his sentence, intimated to the court that it had not frightened him, as seven years would soon be over and he would return.

THE POISON CASE.

Mahomed Ally, was indicted with having administered poison to Muneer, Pattanoo, Cutchloo, Fyzully and Meeajun, with intent to murder. The prisoner being arraigned pleaded "not guilty." The trial proceeded as far as regarded the poison being administered to Muneer only.

Muneer, sworn—I am coachman in Mr Grey's employ who is a house builder and lives near the Cathedral. About a month and a half ago, it was on a Thursday, that I took some food. Near six o'clock on that morning, a saddle horse was got ready and the syce of that horse by name Pattanoo, I requested to get some victuals prepared for me. Pattanoo and Fyzully messed with me, but it being the time of our fast the latter ate no victuals in the day time. Pattanoo began to cook immediately as Mr. Grey went out, which was about 6 o'clock. By my master's orders the carriages were taken out to be cleaned, in which I engaged and at 8 or 9 o'clock Pattanoo came and told me that the victuals were ready. No person ever engaged in cooking my victuals, but Pattanoo. Besides myself there is another coachman in Mr. Grey's service, and there are twenty other syces, among the latter there were Kutchaloo, Meeajun, Fyzully and the prisoner. The victuals prepared by Pattanoo, I did not go to eat till about 11 o'clock. In the place where the carriages are kept, I and Pattanoo began to eat out of the same plate, which had been brought by Pattanoo. I could not eat my full as I began to feel a sensation as if my tongue was being twisted, and I also found a disagreeable smell to the victuals which consisted of rice and whur dal, the bad smell seemed to proceed from the dal. In consequence I left off eating, but Pattanoo continued. I then began to reel and felt giddy. Pattanoo was similarly affected. I remarked to Pattanoo that the dal appeared to be very badly cooked, I took the sediments of the dal in the pot and showed it to another syce, I showed the dal to the durwan also. I went to Kutchaloo and found him in an exhausted state as he had been vomiting. I then went to Fyzully and found him too in the same state. The circumstance of myself and four syces being unwell, was intimated to our master, who sent the dal with a letter to Bathgate's dispensary where a liquid medicine was given to me; on drinking which all of us began to recover. Five of us were then put into a karanchie and taken to the College Hospital. The dal was likewise taken. From the treatment I received at the Hospital I gradually recovered.

Pattanoo, sworn—I am a syce in the service of Mr Grey. I remember the circumstances detailed by the last witness the coachman. At about 6 o'clock on the morning of the day in question, I commenced cooking [his witness then repeated the chief particulars as above stated]. The pots were taken down from the fire after the victuals were cooked and kept in the usual place. The rice and dal were cooked in separate pots which were kept covered. During the afternoon the victuals were preparing I never lost sight of the pots into which no body could have thrown anything without my seeing it. During this time I saw the prisoner occasionally. After the cooking was over and the pots had been placed down, I only once from a distance saw the prisoner enter the cooking places that morning. Whilst I was cooking I saw Fyzully, Kutchaloo and Meeajun similarly engaged in cooking with myself. And after I had done cooking they asked me to give them a little of the dal I had cooked. I prepared the dal with nothing but the ordinary ingredients. There was no dhye (or as it is called tyre) put into the dal. (The witness here gave a succinct description of the preparation, appearance and properties of dhye). I took a small quantity of the dal with rice in plates and the coachman and myself sat to eat together. After eating I felt indisposed and then went to Bathgate's dispensary, and eventually to the College Hospital where I recovered.

Questioned by the Prisoner—I never know you to have engaged in any quarrel or cruelty—but I know you to be very intimate with Badal coachman.

By the Jury.—The pot in which the dal was cooked was an earthen one which I washed before I commenced cooking, and also washed the plates into which the dal and rice were taken out.

Kutchaloo, sworn—I am Mr Grey's syce. Muneer and Pattanoo messed together, and myself and Meeajun mess together, I cook. On the morning in question I cooked victuals for myself and messmate. On that overstated I found it to be a tarry, sticky, some curry in the former, and remaining. The curry was kept in a earthen pot. Besides the curries I cooked, I ate some dal and so did my menials. At breakfast. The dal I got from Pattanoo. Immediately after eating the dal I took ill. It had a disagreeable taste and smell. At about 10 o'clock I went into the cooking place where the prisoner came in. I saw him take off the lid from the pot which contained the dal, which he began to stir with a ladle. At this I was led to ask him what he put into the dal, to which he answered that he had put in some dhya (tyre). At the time I asked Pattanoo for dal I was aware that the prisoner had said that he put tyre into it, but I did not suspect anything. (The witness then detailed the effects of the dal upon him and stated about having been taken to the College Hospital, &c.)

Meesjaud, sworn—I am in the same service with the last witness. On the day in question I ate with Kutchaloo out of the same plate into which Pattanoo had given us some dal. I saw the prisoner in the cooking place on that morning at about half after nine. At that time Pattanoo, Kutchaloo, Fuzally were not there. The prisoner had a leaf in one hand, and with the other I saw him stirring up the dal. I asked him what he had put into the dal when he answered that he had put in some tyre. He was stirring the dal belonging to Pattanoo. I saw him put in something of a white color, but I cannot say what it was actually. I partook of the dal given to us by Pattanoo, and fell ill immediately after (this witness then corroborated the remainder of the story.)

Examined by the Jury—I could not distinguish whether the article put into the dal by the prisoner was a liquid or a powder, I did not examine the leaf the prisoner had in his hand, as he took it out with him.

Fuzally, sworn—When the affair in question happened I was a syce in Mr Grey's service. On that morning I ate some dal and rice, the former was cooked by Pattanoo, and the latter by myself. I got the dal by asking it from Pattanoo. On eating the dal I found a disagreeable smell and taste, and got sick. I, with the others were then taken to Bathgate's dispensary, and afterwards to the College Hospital.

Kurream, sworn—I am a syce of Mr Grey's. I have heard what has been related by the preceding witnesses. I went out with my master, and on returning to the house I saw the coachman, Muneer, and four of my fellow sycas vomiting, and in a state almost insensible.

Badol Khan, sworn—I am a coachman of Mr Grey's. Muneer is also a coachman in Mr Grey's service. I drove out Mr Grey on the day in question and returned a little before one I was in the house 9 o'clock when my master went out, I eat my meals in my house and know nothing of the cooking among the sycas in the establishment. On my return I saw Muneer Fuzally, Pattanoo, and Kutchaloo, vomiting sick and laid up. At that time I did not see Meesjaud, but shortly he came and then I saw him. Him also, I saw vomiting when I returned with my master. I did not see the prisoner.

Questioned by the Prisoner—I did not give you any ingredient to be put into the dal.

James Bhatia, sworn—I am a Surgeon by profession and assistant to Messrs Bathgate and Co. About a month ago five servants of Mr Grey were brought to the shop. They complained of a burning pain in the stomach. They mentioned that they had vomited.

administration of medicine in the treatment of him, an article given effect to the case of poisoning. After taking the emetic they went out of the shop, and I saw two of them vomiting. I examined the dal that was brought and found it to contain a white powder, which having tasted, proved to be white arsenic. White arsenic is a deadly poison. I suppose there was about a scruple of it in the bottom of the pot, which contained the dal. A person might take about the eighth of a grain without its producing death. It is my opinion that there was enough of arsenic in the pot to poison several persons. I do not remember of any particulars of the sulphate of zinc preventing mortality in a person who had been poisoned with arsenic.

William Brook O'Shaughnessy, sworn—I am a Medical Doctor and a Professor of Chemistry at the Medical College. I was not at the hospital when Mr. Grey's servants were brought. In consequence of some information received from Mr Siddons, I went to the laboratory of the hospital, when an earthen vessel covered and sealed was pointed out to me, as well as an open vessel containing a fluid. I examined the contents of the former, and found they consisted of rice, dal and ghee, and at the bottom of the vessel was a considerable quantity of a white powder substance, which, on being by several processes, I found to be white arsenic. That article is a deadly poison, and there was in the pot a sufficient quantity to poison many persons. There are many cases on record in which emetics have saved persons who were poisoned. A large quantity may be swallowed, and still a person may recover by the administration of emetics. In this matter there is no doubt among the profession.

The sulphate of zinc I would recommend to be given in such a case in preference to any other. Taking a poisonous substance with food tends to retard its action, and I have no doubt that the time the emetic was given, was opportune enough to save life as in the present case. I examined the open vessel of liquid substance, and detected arsenic in it also, though the quantity was small. White arsenic is a substance well known among the native population, and may be procured in all the bazars. The native doctors use it for medical purposes. I would not venture to give more than the eighth part of a grain at a time.

Frederick George Siddons, sworn—I belong to the Medical College, and am an assistant to Professor O'Shaughnessy in the Chemical Department. I recollect the coachman and four sycas having been brought to the hospital about 5 o'clock in the evening of a Thursday. Mr. McCann and Mr. Grey came with them. From their symptoms I supposed them to be poisoned, and therefore gave each of them twenty grains of the sulphate of zinc. They brought with them an earthen vessel with what appeared to be a dal, and a bottle containing medicine. I sealed the vessel of dal and placed it in a room to which no one has access but myself. The following morning I pointed it out to Professor O'Shaughnessy, whom I saw taste its contents. I had the vomit sent into a gurnah, and this also was pointed out to professor O'Shaughnessy.

John Grey, sworn—I am a house builder. I have heard the evidence given by several of my servants, and other witnesses in this case, which is all true.

James Joseph McCann, sworn.—This witness stated the circumstance of the prisoner being taken into custody, and other particulars corroborative of points elicited by the above evidence.

Charles Knowles Robison, sworn—I am a magistrate of the town of Calcutta. The prisoner was examined by me. These depositions are all in my hand I writing. The prisoner was not brought before me in the usual course, but I went to Mr. Grey's that day at 2 o'clock, and learnt the particulars of the case. I then gave orders to Mr. Mc'Ann to act in the matter. As the chief witnesses were at the hospital, I was induced to examine the prisoner by interrogating him, though not without warning him of the accusation against him. What he said to me was deliberately and voluntarily.

Charles Fernando Leal, sworn.—I am interpreter to the last witness. I interpreted in this case faithfully and correctly to the best of my knowledge.

The prisoner then made his defence which was to the effect, that the coachman Badul Khan gave him some musnah to put into the dal, which he did. He then called the following witnesses

Binamdee, sworn.—I am a coachman to Cook and Co.

Examined by the Prisoner.—About 10 o'clock of the evening of the day, the prisoner had been taken into custody. Badul Khan returned from the hospital to the house of the prisoner's mother and said, "Mother, I am come from the hospital, two of the men are doing well, and three are very ill. But please God the five men will recover, but I have been at fault in giving the thing into your son's hand. Mahomed Ally will also come back safe please God; you are my mother, dissuade him from using my name. As long as he remains in prison I will allow you five rupees a month, but let not my name be made known." This was said by Badul Khan in a supplicating manner.

Rajit Sircar, sworn.—I deal in boats.

By the Prisoner.—I know nothing of Badul Khan or his affairs, but the prisoner I knew to belong to the same village with myself.

Korry Sircar, examined by the Prisoner.—I am a sirdar to Mr. John Peter Grant. You are a native of my village, but I do not know how you have deputed yourself in Calcutta.

Muneer, re-examined.—I never had any quarrel with the prisoner or any of the servants of the establishment.

Here the trial on both sides ended, and His Lordship proceeded to sum up the evidence, which having done, the examination of the prisoner taken before the Magistrate. The substance of which embodied the confessions that the prisoner had received a white powder from Badul Khan, which he did put into the dal.

The Jury then retired, and in about ten minutes returned a verdict of guilty, recommending the prisoner to the mercy of the Court, on the belief that he was instigated.

The Court observed to the Jury that their verdict was a very proper one, and their recommendation of mercy would be taken into consideration as far as it is consistent with the ends of justice. That this was the only notice the Court could take of the recommendation as the prisoner having been instigated was no extenuation of the crime of which he was convicted. The sentence, however, has been postponed to the last day of the Sessions.

DECEMBER 17, 1840.

On the opening of the Court this-morning, His Lordship intimated that the sittings had been adjourned to Thursday the 24th instant at 10 o'clock. Of the criminal cases the following were taken.

[HURKAR, Dec 22, 1840.]

TRIAL FOR MURDER.

Sumbhoo Sing and Modab Doss were arraigned for the murder of Doss Monee, on the 29th November by strangulation. The prisoners pleaded not guilty.

Punchanund Chacherbutty, sworn.—I reside in Simlah, were also rented the deceased Doss Monee, whom I knew, having been a tenant of her's. We lived under one roof, but in separate rooms, which had separate equences without internal communication. She lived alone and maintained herself by sifting rice. I never went into Doss Monee's room. From what I can guess, she was about fifty to fifty-five years of age. The rooms

I have mentioned opened into the compound, which was surrounded by a hedge having one main entrance. The building has a veranda enclosed by rail, which in some measure would prevent the interior of the room being looked into from the compound, though from the main entrance it would not be possible to see into the room. The compound is about five or six cubits wide, measuring from the veranda. There was no gate or door to the compound, but a mere open door-way. I remember the death of Doss Monee. I cannot think of the date, but it was on a Sunday evening a little after dusk, that Doss Monee came from abroad and enquired of me if I was asleep. I then heard her open the door, and I believe she went into her room. I felt asleep and know nothing of what transpired till the next morning, when I was awake by several women calling out for Doss Monee. This was about sunrise. A little after these women made a clamour as to having received no answer from Doss Monee. I next heard them say that there was an aperture in the door way and then heard them exclaim, why is Doss Monee was lying close to the door. About this time a man named Gorouchurn and others came to the spot, and some called for a chowkedar. At this time I went out and peeping into the deceased's room, and being old and impaired in sight, all I could see was Doss Monee's head. Shortly after Shuutidhar chowkedar arrived and opened the deceased's door, when I saw her corpse lying on the floor, near the door. The corpse was lying on one side with the upper part of the body bare. When the gentlemen came and took out the body, I observed the throat and belly swollen. I am not aware if Doss Monee possessed any property.

Gulam Mastapha, sworn.—I am a nab of Simlah thanah. In consequence of information, I proceeded to the house of Doss Monee. On opening the door, I found her lying dead on the floor quite uncovered. I found nail marks on both sides of her neck. The throat and belly were swollen. Intelligence was then sent to the Superintendent of Police. The corpse was next removed to the College Hospital.

James Joseph McCann, sworn.—I went to the house of the deceased on the morning in question, and observed some marks of violence on both sides the back of the body. The marks appeared to me to have been caused by pressure on the throat. The belly appeared to be very much swollen.

J. Maxton, sworn.—I am Police Surgeon. I remember a body being brought to the Medical College Hospital which was pointed out to me. It was on the 30th November. I examined the body, and found the features of the face a little swollen, as also the blood-vessels and muscles of the neck. The abdomen was very much distended. There were several bruises on the face and about the neck. The bruises appeared to have been made by fingers or nails because the marks corresponded with the ends of human fingers and nails. I opened the body and found the blood vessels of the brain full, with considerable effusion of blood at the base of the cranium. The tube that leads down from the mouth and cranium was nearly filled with half masticated rice, as also the wind pipe. The stomach was enormously distended. The rest of the organs were in a natural state. From the signs external and internal I found on the body, I believe the person died from strangulation. I have no doubt on the subject. I saw no cloth or any thing else wrapped round the neck nor any marks of there having been any. The strangulation, I believe to have been effected by pressure on the wind pipe and blood vessels of the neck with the hand. I should suppose and believe, the half-masticated rice in the wind-pipe could not have been there naturally, but by some violence exercised on the neck of the deceased while eating. The rice in the stomach I found corresponding with what I found in the wind pipe. By consulting my notes I find that the arteries of the heart were nearly empty, which was caused by determination of blood to the head.

Gorouchurn, sworn.—I am a native doctor. I know Doss Monee who I know is dead. She died on a Sunday night twenty-three or twenty-four days ago. I knew it on next morning. I live near the spot, and early on Monday morning after I had awaked, I heard some women whose occupation along with that of the deceased was to sell rice, calling out to Doss Monee by her name. They received no answer. I came out of my house and finding the women calling for a chowkedar, I called Shuutidhar chowkedar.

Shuutidhar chowkedar, sworn.—On a Monday morning, I first discovered the death of Doss Monee having gone to her house in consequence of being called by the last witness. I saw her lying on the floor, and gave the information to the thanah. The body was eventually removed to the Hospital.

Bulloram, sworn.—I knew the Doss Monee who is dead. About three years ago, she came to me and made two deposits of money with me. One sum of twenty rupees and another sum of twenty-seven. The twenty rupees she removed sometime after, in consequence of her house being burnt, and the twenty-seven rupees she took back in the month of last Muzg (January, February). She was in the constant habits of coming to my house, but I never knew her to be addicted to liquor or any intoxicating substances.

Sonaitun, sworn.—I keep a woolen's shop in Machonahbazar. I know the prisoners, and have seen them going about. I know a person also by the name of Teelucknath Roy. The last time he came to my shop was on a Sunday, about twenty-two or twenty-four days ago. I have seen him in company with the prisoners, but not very often. On the occasion in question he came to my shop about 3 or 4 in the afternoon.

Golabee, sworn.—I know the prisoners only slightly. I know Teelucknath Roy slightly also. I lived in Jorasanko. A Brahmin there came to my house. I saw Teelucknath Roy at the Coroner's Court; he used to visit my house in Jorasanko, and is the Brahmin I have spoken of. I once saw Teelucknath about twenty-four days ago with the prisoners, standing together at the head of the lane. They were talking together about chappa affair, (chappa means to pierce, squeeze, hile or rule; but Mr. Blackmore explained it to be "a cant term used by thieves to signify a robbery not by open violence but by silent or hidden means.")

Samdoss, sworn.—I am a peack of the Police. I know Fooloomare, who is a prostitute, living in Suranhatta. I went to her house on a Tuesday, about twenty-two days ago. Moscherm, an informer, went with me. We were sitting on the head of Guranhatta road, when Teelucknath Roy came there, and as he entered the house of Fooloomare, I went in and arrested him. I know the prisoners at the bar. On that Tuesday I saw the prisoner Sumboo at the Police, whom I had known before. On that day he had his chudder covering his head, and concealing almost all his face. I had placed a guard at Fooloomare's house, and Sumboo asked me why I had done so. There were two peahs then, into whose charge I delivered Sumboo. The other prisoner, Madub, I apprehended, on his being pointed out to me the next day at Jorabagan by Teelucknath. It was in the house of one Dossmoney. I knocked at the door, and asked for Madub, but receiving no answer, I entered the house and lifting up the curtain of a bed found Madub, the prisoner, within it. I took him into custody. On bringing him out I first observed a mark in the cavity of the collar bone, as if that part had been punched or scathed by something, a black mark, a shadow, was visible on the neck, one or two small black marks were about the mark to the neck, to which he answered that he was pressed, bitten him, and then again said that some had not had stopped there, and again said that as he was smoking he had fallen on that part.

Questioned by the prisoner Sambhu. — In consequence of the blow I received by Thelucknath, I stretched out

By the prisoner Madub. — You did make three or four statements about the mark in your neck. There were some through people present at the conversation, but I do not know their names, but I might have brought the one had I been ordered to do so. Mochesiam, the informer, and Kallanah do not, went with me.

By the Chief. — The chudder with the pots of blood I gave Mr. Metcalf, who gave it to one of the thanah people.

Gulloor pack, sworn — I know the last witness, with whom I proceeded to witness in connection about two or three days ago. Besides the last witness and myself, Mochesiam and Patoth went together for the purpose of taking Madub. When we got there, the door of the house was shut, the witness then introduced the prisoner (as detailed by the preceding witness, as far as related to him.)

Munegondeen, thanadar, sworn. I belong to the Santah Rajpala. I went to the house of Dossamonee on the 1st December. I saw within the house a chest the padlock of which was put in it, but lying in the room with the key.
On lifting the lid of the chest I found a brass loah, a silver pipe, brass candlestick, and other articles of the kind but nothing of value. Near the chest on the floor, were a covering and other little things in a confused state. I know Thelucknath with, whom I went to the house of Poochoomaree, on Guraahatta, on the 21 December, where I saw with the prisoner, but not Madub. I was in the same room with Sambhu, and got in the place a silver pipe, a loah, of brass and a metal cup. These things I took up, consequently of some information I received from Thelucknath. Ray. When Thelucknath gave information, the prisoner Sambhu was present, Thelucknath told me that the articles I brought away belonged to Dossamonee, who was dead. Upon this Sambhu remarked, that the property belonged to him.
Poochoomaree was also present, and first said, that Santah Rajpala had given the things to her, but this person leaving having done so, he said, that Sambhu gave the things to her. Afterward I went to the house of Sambhu (under Seal), and that of Dossamonee (not the deceased). I went to the latter place at the instance of Thelucknath. Madub was not there at that time, he was at the Police. There I found a metal tumbler, cup, etc., which I brought away. This chudder stained with blood was put in my charge by Mr. Metcalf.

Gaidonee questioned by the prisoner Sambhu. — I have been to the house of Poochoomaree to repair a chest. I never saw the property in the house. I was not interviewed by the Police people against giving evidence for a murderer.

Sambhu under Seal, sworn. — I am a money changer,
I never purchased any thing from any of the prisoners.
Questioned by the prisoner Sambhu. — On one occasion you pledged a pawn with me, and took away half a rupee. This is it, I believe.

A witness by the name of Rajee was here called, but did not answer.

Tharamonee, sworn — I sell rice and gain a livelihood by it. I live in Simlah. I know Dossamonee as we worked together. I had money transactions with her.

Lance pledged some articles with her and borrowed money from her and paid back. I saw her in the house of Sambhu. I did not receive the articles from her. I have often seen my things in the house. There were, namely, the loah, silver tumbler, and other property, and all were near to the residence of where I long to go. Only a few days before Dossamonee's death
I saw the articles.

This witness was asked a few questions, questions by the prisoner Sambhu.

The Queen's evidence was here called.

Thelucknath Ray, sworn — I am a Dalit of Simlah.
I know the prisoner, whom I knew before, but a few ten or fifteen days before the occurrence in question I became tolerably intimate with them. I came here a day from the Town Court. The acquaintance commenced by my seeing Sambhu in the house of his wife Sree, Poochoomaree, who is learning to play and dance from him. Here also I became a friend of Madub.
I continued to go there until was when on the Sunday in question, I went to her house at eleven o'clock.
The Sunday preceding the Tuesday of my being arrested. There were Sambhu, Madub, and Poochoomaree sitting and talking together. On my entering they stopped speaking, which induced me to suppose why they so suddenly terminated quiet, and what they were talking about. Poochoomaree answered, that I had no business to hear any thing about the conversation. I can very suggestive and pressed on them to finish the subject of the conversation. Sambhu at length said, that he could not bear his hardships longer, but was determined to do an act. I enquired what act he intended, a chappa affair. I asked what it was. He said, Sambhu replied, there is a woman who has property, we shall kill her and get it away. I then asked at what place, to which he answered it was at Simlah.
I expressed my surprise of killing, when Sambhu replied that some are killed but some are not. He next told me that I must accompany them. I said I never went on such an adventure, being the son of a Brahmin, and aided, I must go. Sambhu replied that since I had heard about the affair he would insist on my going. I was persuaded upon till I do not know how, but at length I yielded though I protested against taking any active part in it. Sambhu then said, that I would not have any thing to do excepting to keep watch while he (Sambhu) and Madub accomplished the deed. During this conversation, Madub and Poochoomaree were both present, they said nothing, but silently acquiesced.
On my leaving the house at that time, Sambhu and Madub, both enjoined me to come in the evening privately. After night fall, I went to the house of Poochoomaree when I saw all three, Poochoomaree, Sambhu and Madub sitting together. We were all together sitting and playing till nine or ten at night, when Sanbhu and Madub asked me to go with them. I demurred, saying, that they would commit murder. They replied, no, we shall not kill, but bind her and bring the property. We then set out together, and on arriving close to Dossamonee's house, in Simlah, they requested me to stand and keep watch. I began to pace up and down before the door of the deceased's room, in which a light was burning. The night was dark, I was pacing about ten or twelve cubits from the door. The prisoners having been some time within the house, I approached to see what they were doing. I peeped and saw both of them standing near the door of the deceased's room. I also observed a woman sitting something within the room about the middle of it. Whilst I was looking into the room, I saw Sambhu rush suddenly into it, and seize the woman with his hands by the throat. The woman fell down and appeared to be unable to make any noise whatever. She began to shake her legs and arms, when the prisoner Madub took hold of the legs of the woman under one arm, and her arms with the other, and with his weight fell upon her belly, keeping her down. At first I did not think she would die, but in course of about twenty minutes she seemed to move her arms and legs, and I discovered she was dead. At this I was very much alarmed, left the place and ran on till I came to the meeting of four roads at Gurahutta. Here I stood some time with my mind much confused. Shortly after I went to the house of Foolcoomaree where I saw Sumhoo and Madub sitting. On seeing me they began to upbraid me, adding, that if I were not a bish min, they would have run a knife through me for having run away instead of keeping watch. Some conversation took place as to the manner the property brought should be disposed of. The prisoners then proceeded out of the house to lodge the articles with Soobutchunder Seal. The things I saw on that occasion before they were taken away. Some small articles remained in the house of Foolcoomaree, which I saw in the house of Foolcoomaree. (The witness was further examined about the property at considerable length.)

Questioned by Sumhoo.—I did not give information at the spot, as I was alarmed and ran away. I was a partner with you, how could I make known the fact, besides if I betrayed you, I was afraid you would stab me. I have sworn by the Ganges, how can I tell a falsehood, and I came here under the impression that by speaking truth, I will save my life. I got no share of the property, you held out large promises, which induced me to join you. I was so persuaded by you that I think you know whether it is true. As I was, you made me your associate, it is not strange that you should tell me about the affair.

Questioned by Madub.—The prisoners are daily perpetrating such acts, and if chowkedars were vigilant, could they do so. I recognise the things, because I had seen them at Foolcoomaree's.

Foolcoomaree sworn.—I know the last witness, who would occasionally come to our house. I know the prisoners at the bar. (Here the Court warned the witness against answering to any question that may tend to criminate her.)

Questioned by Sumhoo.—Thelucknath used to visit her, you have not seen him. These things, the pawn butts, &c. you gave me, but I do not remember when.

The case for the prosecution terminated here.

The prisoner Sumhoo in his defence entered into a long story, the substance of which was that the whole was a conspiracy against him. The prisoner Madub called the following witness:

Monce, sworn.—I am a woman of the town.

Questioned by Madub.—Dowamonee (not the deceased, lives with me. Some of her things were taken away by the Police people. They belonged to her. These are the things, a metal cup, tumbler, lotah, &c.

His Lordship then at some length and in a very impressive manner charged the Jury, who retired, and in five minutes returned a verdict of guilty, against both the prisoners.

His Lordship then passed sentence on the prisoners, which was as follows:—Sumhoo and Madub, the most painful duty that can be imposed on any man is now imposed upon me. The Jury, after a most careful attention to your cases, and after hearing your evidence and defence have come to the conclusion to convict you of the crime with which you are charged. It remains on me to pass the last sentence of the law on both of you.

It is, that you both be taken to the place from whence you were brought here, and thence to the place of execution between the hours of six and eight in the forenoon of Thursday next the 24th instant and there to be hanged until you are dead. May the Almighty Lord God have mercy on you.

The Court did not break up before 8 o'clock at night

TRIAL OF MAJOR HENDERSON'S COOK.

This case came on to-day, the prisoner pleading not guilty.

The purport of Major Henderson's deposition was as follows: That on the day in question after he had returned home, he heard of some misconduct of the cook, and authorised his dismissal to Mrs Major Henderson. In the afternoon a pudding was served up. Mrs Henderson, on putting it into her mouth, exclaimed that it was "horrid." Major Henderson then put a small portion in his mouth about the size of half a nutmeg. At first he felt nothing, but on swallowing it, felt a quick acrid bitter. A portion of the pudding was sent up to the nurse, Mrs Welsh. The pudding was taken about six or seven in the evening, and nothing occurred from that time until Major Henderson went to bed when he was restless, and the following morning felt himself feverish. On returning from his ride in the morning he found Mrs Henderson extremely ill complaining of pain and vomiting. During the day I saw her vomiting two or three times. I saw the nurse likewise very ill about the same time. Dr Garden was sent for at seven or eight o'clock. Information was then given to the thannah people. It was reported to Major Henderson that the prisoner had come to the door and gone away, after which he directed enquiry to be made towards his dwelling. The prisoner was only one month in Major Henderson's service.

Eleanor Welsh sworn.—I am in the service of Major Henderson's family. The pudding was brought to me on the day in question, by one of the kitchen girls. On eating it, I found it taste bitter. I only took a mouthful, as it was very bitter. A message was immediately then given to me not to eat the pudding. About ten minutes after I ate the pudding, I felt sick and giddy, but did not vomit. I felt very unwell during the night, and had a severe pain in my chest. The next morning I rose at about five, still alive to the symptoms of the preceding night. An hour after I saw Mrs Henderson, who appeared to be very unwell and was vomiting. The instance was likewise ill, as she complained the whole night. Dr. Garden then came on.

The other evidence connected with the arrest of the prisoner, the detection of arsenic in the pudding, and other points was taken, and which it is not necessary to be given as the best part has already appeared in the papers.

His Lordship then summed up the evidence, and the verdict returned by the jury was "Not Guilty."

The PATENT IMPRISONMENT CASE has been transferred to the next Sessions.—Hawkuu, December 24, 1840.

THE ADJOURNED SITTINGS.

(Before Sir Edward Ryan and Sirth IV Seton)

The adjourned sittings were resumed this morning at 10 o'clock, when in the Marabore case some suggestions were put forth by the acting Advocate-General. These suggestions were received by the Court for consideration in giving the decree.

Lawrence Peel, Esq. was this-morning sworn in as Advocate-General of the East India Company. The learned gentleman took his seat at the head of the bar under a patent of precedence from the Queen.

The Advocate-General (Mr. Peel) having taken his seat, moved that Her Majesty's letters patent, granting him the right of pre-audience, might be filed in Court. In moving this, he wished to observe that he had learned that the right of precedence had been claimed by former Advocates-General virtue office, — in now claiming therefore the right of pre-audience by virtue of the letters patent, he hoped that he should be understood as not waiving any right or privilege incident to the office which he had the honour to hold.

SIR EDWARD RYAN. Her Majesty's letters patent of course give you precedence, Mr. Advocate-General, of themselves; and the Court entirely agree in considering the question whether the right is in itself to the Office, as altogether undetermined. It will be, therefore, an open question if ever hereafter circumstances should arise requiring the point to be decided.

Motion granted.

The Sessions' business was afterwards proceeded with

(Before Sir J P Grant)

The jail was delivered this-morning, and the following is what took place.

Thirachand, found guilty of stealing in a dwelling house property belonging to his master, was sentenced to confinement for two years, in the house of correction.

Sailoo Ghose, convicted of breaking into a dwelling house, and stealing therefrom, was sent to the House of Correction for two years with hard labour.

Deedyal Dhoore, convicted of stealing, was sentenced to confinement with hard labour in the house of Correction for one year.

Mungloo, for stealing from a dwelling house, was sent to the House of Correction for two years with hard labor.

Gonal Koormee, pleaded guilty of having stolen from a dwelling house, and was sentenced to two years' hard labour in the House of Correction.

Kistomohun Gosain, being convicted of burglary, was transported for seven years.

Kalon, having been found guilty of stealing from a dwelling house, was sent to the House of Correction for eighteen months.

Mahomed Ally, the man who had been found guilty of personation, received his sentence nearly as follows:—Mahomed Ally, you have been convicted, after a careful and long trial of the highest crime that can be committed, that of having administered poison with the intent to commit murder. Providentially the persons who had taken the poison received timely medical remedies and recovered. The jury, in finding you guilty, must have been acquainted, that you administered arsenic, knowing it to be poison. The excuse you afforded was, that you committed the crime at the suggestion, of one under whom you served, and that you were ignorant of the means put into your hands. Whether it was or was not so is a question which your own conscience must decide. The jury after great consideration have decided you guilty, by that decision, I am bound to abide. There are, however, considerations connected with your case, and I feel myself bound to consult my brethren and a subject, and it is determined by the Court, not to deprive you of life, but less than you require for life cannot be given. The two descriptions of poison, one of which was administered by you is well known amongst the natives of this country, and most undoubtedly we know that cases of their being administered have happened. I am hopeful, that the sentence on you may serve as a warning to others to prevent them from putting into things intended for the food of others, what they do not know of. If they do put poisonous things into the meals of others, they must answer for the consequences if it is not undergoing. The safety of us all depends on the execution of the law. Here no death occurred, and I am glad being saved from passing on you the sentence of death. The sentence of the Court is, that you be transported for the space of your natural life to the Eastern Coast of Marabon South of the Bay of Bengal.

D'Souza Chee ann, being found guilty of receiving property that was stolen was sentenced to confinement in the Common Jail for the space of twelve months.

Nabbon, for assaulting a Police Officer on the execution of his duty, was sentenced to confinement in the Common Jail for six months.

Two prisoners, at the head of whom was Mrs East, and against whom no true bill had been found by the Grand Jury, were in the usual form discharged from custody.

Sessions have been adjourned to next Monday at eleven o'clock, when the traversed case of perjury is expected to come on,—Harkaru, December 25, 1840.

INSOLVENT COURT.

(Before Sir H. W. Seton.)

THE MATTER OF ISAAC JACOB AND OTHERS.

This matter again came on this day, and examination to a great length were taken by counsel on both sides, when nothing farther than what has already appeared was elicited. Some discussion likewise ensued between Messrs. Prince and Morton, after which the matter having been put off to three months to allow time for the insolvents to produce the papers and documents connected with their affairs.—Hurkaru, December 5, 1840.

Dec. 5, 1840

(Before Sir H. W. Seton.)

THE MATTER OF MUHAMMAD ALLY.

The Insolvent was called and considered entitled to the benefit of the act.

THE MATTER OF AMI GHODIE MUHAMMAD.

This day was fixed for further hearing in this matter, but the Insolvent has been discharged by the detaining creditors.

THE MATTER OF GEORGE RICHARD RINDERSCHTECHER.

An affidavit was sworn to for against the Insolvent on account of his private and instabilities being an article of his business.

THE MATTER OF GEORGE RICHARD RINDERSCHTECHER.

On a former occasion the Advocate-General appeared on behalf of the Insolvent for his discharge, and for the payment of all claims to the benefit of the creditors, &c. The application was this day considered and granted.

THE MATTER OF PANGOVING DILL.

A proposal for settlement in this matter has been made, an application was consequently put into Court for enlargement of time to the 9th instant. Granted.

THE MATTER OF COTVIN AND COMPANY.

Application was made for leave to file accounts, and for a day to be fixed for the declaration of further dividend. The first part of the application was granted, and in regard to the latter, Saturday the 9th January next has been appointed.

THE MATTER OF CRUTTENDEN, MACKELON AND CO.

In this matter also application was made to leave to file accounts, and for the appointment of a day for further dividend to be declared.—Granted as above.—Hurkaru, December 7, 1840.

(Before Sir H. W. Seton.)

THE MATTER OF JOACHIM HAYWARD STOCQUELEN.

The insolvent was brought up to be discharged from custody.

Some objection appeared to the Court against the release of the insolvent on account of the usual notice of fourteen days not having been served in regard to the amended schedule.

The Advocate-General on behalf of the insolvent met this and other objections by various arguments intimating at the same time that the insolvent's discharge was of greater importance to his creditors than to him. It was in fact, for the benefit of the creditors, that his release should be granted. While he remained in prison, it was not merely a matter of personal inconvenience to the insolvent, but a risk to the creditors—inasmuch as it would debar him from applying with diligence and labour towards that which alone can benefit the creditors. The Advocate-General further intimated the Court, that the creditors were not opposed to the insolvent's discharge from custody.

The Court said, that with the consent of the detaining creditors the insolvent might go out to-day.

A few minutes elapsed, when the necessary certification of the consent of the detaining creditors, Mr. Rushen and Mr. Hilder was given by Mr. Streetell, on behalf of the latter, who said to his understated that his consent to the insolvent's discharge from custody should not prejudice his claim in the schedule.

An order was then made for the insolvent to attend Court on the 9th January, and that meantime he be discharged from custody with the consent of the detaining creditors.

THE MATTER OF WILLIAM CLARK AND OTHERS.

Mr W^m P. Downing intimated that the final settlement with the creditors had been made, accordingly the order Nisi to set aside the adjudication of insolvency was made absolute.

THE MATTER OF RINGOVING DILL.

Application was made in the matter for the enlargement of time until the next Court-day.—Granted.

THE MATTER OF JAMES CALDER AND OTHERS.

The Advocate-General appeared on behalf of Mr Laureletta and made an application for suitable dividends to be paid on sixty nine thousand rупees. The learned Advocate states, that Mr Laureletta when he joined the firm, brought into it a capital of seventeen thousand rупees. He left the firm in 1827, before his failure and that there was a sum of sixty nine thousand rupees credited to him in the books. A long time had elapsed that an application for the dividend on this amount had been made, and the Assignee, perhaps, would not consent to the dividends without an order from the Court.

The Assignee here explained, that a similar application like the one on behalf of Mr Lauretta had been made by Mr Roberts, but it could not be granted, because when Mr Roberts bankrupted himself from the firm it was in a state of insolvency; against the present application, the same grounds could be urged, as it was under the like circumstances that Mr Lauretta left the firm.

The Advocate-General replied, that the cases were not parallel as Mr Lauretta had left long before Mr Roberts.

After some conversation, an order Nisi for the 9th January, was made.

THE MATTER OF MICHAEL SCHLATTER.

The Advocate-General moved for the payment of seven and a half per cent, on the sum of twelve thousand rupees due to Carl Tappin and Co. This debt was originally due to Mr Sim and Co of the Union Bank by whom it was transferred to Carl Tappin and Co and hence the ground of the present application.—Order Nisi.

THE MATTER OF A. C. CAMPBELL.

In this matter an application had been made by the Assignee for an attachment against the insolvent on account of arrears of instalments.

Mr Shaw appeared on behalf of the insolvent, to shew cause against the attachment, and among other points, urged, that no service of the offer of the Court for the payment of instalments had been made to the insolvent nor had any personal demand been made.

The Advocate-General entered into the question at some length in favor of the attachment.

The Court then intimated that there appeared to be sufficient reason for the issue of the attachment, but that the question would receive farther consideration.—Hurkaru, December 21, 1840.

MISCELLANEA.

Calcutta.

MR. ANDREW'S DINNER.—St. Andrew's Dinner was attended by an unusually large company, and went off with great eclat.

THE METCALFE BUILDING.—The Grand Masonic procession that was to have marched on the 5th proximo, to perform the ceremony of laying the foundation stone, of the Metcalfe Building, had been unavoidably postponed to the 19th of the month.

MOVING THE RIVER.—We understand that Government have sanctioned the laying down of additional requisites for the shipping in the river—eleven fixed moorings at Cooley Bazar and twelve swinging moorings at the edge of the Suptara Sand. We trust this will prevent the recurrence of those serious accidents which we had to notice, as occurring during the strong tides on the nights of the 25th and 26th September last.

THE FRANCES WARDEN.—The hull, &c. of the wrecked ship Frances Warden as she lies on shore at Mud Point, was disposed of at the Exchange sale-rooms this day for the sum of 1,100 rupees. Her cargo now on board consists of 1,800 piculs of beetlenut, 600 ditto of black pepper, 400 ditto of rattans, and 200 baskets of patcha leaf—besides stores of every description—so we think the purchasers have got a cheap bargain, if there be any likelihood of any portion of the cargo being saved.

MR. SIMON'S WELL-EARNED PROMOT.—The Directors of the Bengal Bank, have promoted Mr McCann, the security and house Deputy Superintendent of the Police of Calcutta, with a very handsome gold watch, bearing an appropriate inscription, in token of their sense of his services in discovering several gangs of forgers. The Bank certainly owes much to Mr. McCann, for his activity and intelligence, which have resulted in the punishment of criminals—and alarmed future offenders; there is, yet, knowing where the system of forgery would have stopped, if indeed any period could have been put to its existence.

SIGNORA VENTURA'S BENEFIT CONCERT.—The Concert on the night of the 7th instant, was extremely well attended—some fashionable were present. The Signora was perfect in her parts of the six pieces, (Solos and Concerts) in which she sung. We scarce can venture to point to one as more beautiful than the rest—; perhaps she pleased most in the "Echo song," and the air "Su questa mia cecchi." Mr. Goodall excelled even his usual vocal execution on the Piano. "The Sea," by an Amateur, (his first appearance) was so well sung as to be loudly hailed. Mr. Linton and two well known Amateur Gentlemen gave their welcome assistance in the vocal parts. The Overtures and instrumental music generally were brilliantly performed—being under the guidance of Messrs. Linton and P. Delmar.

ACCIDENT ON THE RACE COURSE.—A Mr Barrett met a very serious accident on Thursday morning, near the Race Course; it appeared that he had gone there to witness the Race, and was seated upon a break, belonging to Cook and Co.. The animal attached to the break being a vicious one, commenced prancing and capering, and suddenly stopped off, Mr. Barrett fell out, and was run over by one of the wheels, and was severely hurt, and conveyed to the General Hospital in a state of insensibility.

ON DRT.—The rumored prospective declaration of war between the British and the French, appears, has struck a panic among the good inhabitants of Chander-nagore, some of the officials of which place are very seriously concerned about the matter. It is currently stated, that M. Perrier, the magistrate, overwhelmed with these apprehensions, has actually relinquished his judicial authority to join a mercantile establishment in Calcutta in the capacity of a clerk.

THE THUGGER AFFAIR.—An inquest sat on the 2d instant, on the body of an old woman who was found strangled in her house. The inquest was postponed to the 7th and did not conclude till late in the evening of the 8th. The enquiry has proved one of the most important, we have lately had, inasmuch as it has contributed to the disclosure of the striking fact, that the sympathy of the Thuggee system was practically with unvaried impunity in the heart of the city. At the coroner has made over the prisoners, three in number, one of whom has turned Queen's evidence, to take their trial in the present sessions, we refrain from giving the evidence of the case in full. The bare outlines, however, of the revolting affair are as follow:

The deceased was an old woman who lived in Simla and earned an honest livelihood by sifting rice. She was supposed to be worth a little property and this happened to be known to two of the prisoners, Madub and Sumbha. The unfortunate deceased was eating her dinner, when the murderers fell on her by surprise, one got hold of her by the throat with a deadly knife, while the second, held down her legs with one hand, and with the other took hold of her two hands and pieced hard on her belly. The poor old woman was soon overcome, and in a few seconds the vital spark was extinct. The villains then hid the house of whatever it contained. The next morning the old woman's body was discovered by the police with the marks of violence upon her, and by the next morning examination, she appeared to have been in the act of eating rice when killed. The verdict, as might be expected, was, wilful murder.

RETAINING OF CHINA.—One of the strongest justifications we have yet met with, that it is intended we shall hold the Island of Chusan for some time to come, appears in the fact, that Government have obtained from the Agri Horticultural Society a large supply of European and native seeds, which have been forwarded thither in the Cruiser. It is strong circumstantial evidence, admitting of no mistake, and we prefer the inference we have made to the only other which is attainable, namely, that we are actuated by the benevolent wish to benefit as well as conquer. Our Government is undoubtedly actuated by this motive, but we think that in the present instance an especial regard is also had to the future comfort and health of our troops.
The idea of a permanent occupation is further confirmed by the fact, that Major General Sir Hugh Gough is to proceed in China forthwith. He will embark, we believe, in the Cruiser.

SALE OF INDIGO FACTORIES.—An unsuccessful attempt was made this day to sell by auction, at Messrs. Bell & Co.'s several valuable Indigo concerns situated in the districts of Azimgurh and Hooghly. Two Mahatgung concerns, in Azimgurh, consisting of six factories, and having a cultivation of 3,600 biggas (one bigga equal to three of Bengal measurement) was taken in at 30,000 rupees. The Nisratnabad concern in the same district, consisting of five factories, and with a cultivation of 4,000 up country biggas, was bought up at a similar price. The Deularah concern, in the district of Hooghly, consisting of four factories with a cultivation of 4,500 biggas, fared a similar fate, the highest bid being only 11,500 rupees.

DAMPFING ASSOCIATION.—At a meeting of the Damfing Shareholders called by public advertisement, held at the Trades Hall, this day, 12th December.

PRESIDENT

Messrs. R. Walker, J. W. Grant, C. Campbell, S.
Smith, W. Bruce, W. Earle, J. W. Cragg, R. J.
Lanev, Major Garglin, Capt. Hartington, J. W. Payter, and H. M. Low.

Mr. Walker was unanimously called to the Chair.

The Chairman read the following Advertisement and Report:

ADVERTISEMENT.
WHEREAS I have been appointed by the Board of Directors of the Dampfing Association, to hold a public meeting on the 12th December, at 10 o'clock, to consider the expediency of doubling the capital of the Association, and of disposing of the Buildings and Lease by Public Auction, to the highest bidder, or above, an appropriate to be determined by the said meeting.

By order of the Committee,

HENRY M. LOW, Hon. Secy.

REPORT.

It is now about a year since the last Meeting was held.

The Shareholders are generally aware that the appeal then made as to increasing the Capital was unsuccessful.

Mr. Wilson opened the Hotel about the period contemplated in the last report, and considering the disadvantages incident to a new undertaking, the number of visitors has proved, that the main object in view, viz. that of providing accommodation for all persons resorting to the Sanatorium is fully attained.

It is the opinion, however, of these visitors, that a considerable additional outlay will be required to render the Hotel to all respects what it should be, for the convenience and comfort of private Families. The property is a valuable one, and considered by many to be worth the capital expended. But it is perhaps too small an affair for a Joint Stock Company; and in the circumstances previously reported, of a large debt due to the Secretary, your Committee has called this Meeting for the purpose stated in the advertisement.

As regards the progressive advancement of Dampfing and the approaches to it, your committee has had to add to the full report published by one of its Members a short time ago. Mr. Halkett is actively engaged in making the rail between Burdigha and Durgapore, and the Billigouze Line is expected to be opened on the 1st of February. Government has likewise sanctioned the usual dak establishment of servants, &c. for the chopper bungalows under construction, so that on or before the 1st of March, it is expected, there will be no difficulty in travelling the whole way from the Ganges to Pankabaree in wheeled carriages.
Your Committee has not neglected to propose to the Government a thorough repair of the old road by Barrasiet to Khabazghur, and from thence to Barham-pore. But this and some minor points are still under consideration of the Governor of Bengal.

J. W. GRANT, Chairman.

1. Moved by Mr. Latrey, and seconded by Mr.
Campbell.—That the Report now read be approved &c.
Carried nem. con.

2. Moved by Mr. Bruce, and seconded by Mr.
Earle.—That the apert price of the property be fixed at
Rs. 20,000 (rupees twenty thousand) Carried nem. con.

3. Moved by Mr. Campbell, and seconded by Mr.
Latrey.—That the details of carrying through the above resolution be remitted to the Committee. Carried nem.
con.

Thanks to the Chair were voted by acclamation, and the meeting separated.

MR. CURTIS.—Mr. John Curvin, it is said, has been suspended from the functions of Assay Master at the Calcutta Mint, and Dr. John Grant has been appointed to officiate in his room.

THE BONDED WAREHOUSE.—We are happy to understand that the advantage to be gained by putting goods in the Bonded Warehouse is now beginning to be generally felt—and this is manifested by the steady increase of business which has been going on in that department, and especially in the very considerable increase which has lately taken place, much more than could have been anticipated from the usual run of business during a corresponding period of former years.

INDIGO PLANTERS' MEETING.—It was resolved at the Meeting of Indigo Planters on the 12th instant, that another Meeting of the Association be held on the 28th to take into consideration the evils arising from certain branches of contract, and to suggest whatever may appear calculated to promote the adoption of some effectual remedy. In the meantime the communications received from the Chamber of Commerce will be laid on the table of the Association for the information of any member who may desire to peruse them.

MEETING TO EXAMINE RETURN COOLIES.—A meeting was held on the 10th instant, at the Town Hall, to enquire into the condition of the coolies at the Isle of France at which were present Messrs. D. McKellan, J. P. Grant, I. H. Colvin, James Young, of the civil service, W. F. Dawson, Esq. Capt. Redington, of the ship John Bingham, and Bahadur Ram-chand Dutt, but of 47 coolies arrived by the above named ship, 10 were examined. As a proof of the salubrity of the climate, out of 31 coolies, there were only 3 deaths during six years' service. Many of these men have brought back 300 rupees and all expire with it in wages, to return, provided they were allowed to make their own terms, thus showing beyond a doubt, that although they have been allowed to taste some of the sweets of their labours, they come too far north to be again cramped by their southern employers.

BABOO ROY COLLYNATH CHOWDRY.—When native gentility distinguishes him self from the great mass of his countrymen, by the noble purposes to which he applies his wealth, his memory deserves to be rescued from the oblivion of the grave. Baboo Roy Collynath Chowdry, whose many years set an example of wise management and noble spirit to his countrymen, died on Saturday last, December the 12th, at the age of 41. This amiable and intelligent individual, found at a school at Taki, where English, Bengallee and Persian were taught by competent instructors. At the same place he established a dispensary for the gratuitous distribution of medicine to the sick. A professional European (Mr. H. Cradley) was placed in charge of it. Amongst other public works the Baboo constructed a road from Buxar to Bagpore, and built inns for travellers, who obtained gratuitous refreshment. He was also a kind and generous friend to the poor and was also distinguished for the liberality of his opinions. He was one of the first influential natives to support Lord Bentinck's measures for the abolition of the Sottee and he was one of the founders of the Brama Sabha in which Ram Mohun Roy took so deep an interest. His mother, at the age of seventy, still survives in health and strength. He has left two daughters but the bulk of his property is divided between his four brothers. He has left one zemindary of the value of a lac of rupees to be devoted to the support of the public charities already mentioned.

Baboo Roy Collynath Chowdry, was conversant with the English, Sanscrit, Persian and Bengallee languages, and wrote poetry in the two latter. He translated the celebrated Bengallee work of Bharat Chunder into Persian. He was not only thus successful as a student, but distinguished himself in public by his eloquence as an orator.

BANK OF BENGAL.—At the appointment of two Directors for the Bank of Bengal, in the room of Messrs. J.

Colquhoun and J. Cowie, gone out by rotation, Messrs. Daniel Ainslie and James Church, were elected, without the slightest opposition.

THE FANCY SALE.—The Fancy Sale on the 16th instant, on behalf of the European Female Asylum, proved very successful, not only as regards the fineries which were various and beautiful, but with respect also to the attendance which was very numerous. There were about a dozen well arranged and well loaded tables exhibited, and the sale went off with considerable spirit. The Misses Edens honored the sale with their attendance.

DESERPTION OF ORISSA UPARRERS.—We understand that a great proportion of the Orissa Bearers,—at least three hundred of them, have suddenly left Calcutta—under the impression that the Government was going to press every description of labourer for military service up the country. They have, we hear taken the step with the greatest reluctance, as the harvest has not been so plentiful as to render a superabundance of population at all desirable in Cuttack, their usual place of residence; but their fears are stronger than their appetites—they would rather be put on a low regimen than stand the chance of being shot.

DR. JAMES GURNES, K. H.—We observe it stated in the Bombay Courier of the 5th instant, that Dr. James Gurnes, K. H., has been appointed Secretary to the Bombay Medical Board, vice Dr. Glen, promoted; and have reason to believe that he will shortly leave us to assume the duties of his new office.

SHERIFF OF CALCUTTA.—Mr. William Cuthbert Braden has been appointed Sheriff for 1841, and Mr. George Higgins Deputy Sheriff.

THE SCHOOL.—The managers of this institution met on the 20th instant, when their report and accounts were received and elections made. The funds have received in addition of fourteen hundred rupees this year. After the meeting an examination of the schools was held, when the result proved highly satisfactory to the examiners.

COURT MARTIAL OF A FIELD OFFICER.—We have heard it rumored, but we believe it flows from pretty good authority, that a junior Field Officer of Engineers now in the Superintendency Department, is soon to be arraigned before a court martial, at the Presidency, upon some very serious charges which have been preferred against him by another Field Officer of the corps, who, although his regimental senior, was for some period in an executive charge under him.

THE SECOND CAVALRY.—We understand that the Court of Enquiry, of which Colonel Denme was President, assembled at Calcutta to investigate the causes of the misconduct of the Second Cavalry, failed to elicit any thing more than that the men run away panic struck. No latent motives, if any such there be have yet been discovered, and the officers of the regiment are fully convinced that it was a case of pure, unmitigated cowardice.

SALE OF INDIGO FACTORIES.—The late Mr. R. H. Mathew's Indigo Factories, in the districts of Shahabad and Gyah, seemed to create much competition among planters generally—the attendance at Messrs. Jenkins, Low and Co's rooms was full, and the biddings spirited. The following lots sold, viz.

The Rhatas and Dearis works, consisting of 7 Factories, including balances for...	Co.'s Rs. 1,52,312
Bulleah works, consisting of 3 Factories	21,043
Dumwar , consisting of the Dumwar Factory	30,894
Doodangger , consisting of 3 Factories...	11,049

Co.'s Rs. 2,10,038

The remaining three, viz., Shergotty, Munfong and Balah works, were taken in, on account of the estate.

CHITRA AT DACCA.—The following is an Extract of a letter from Dacca, dated 5th December, 1840.—“Chofers is raging, with the greatest violence just now in this city and its environs, and the number of deaths cannot be less than fifty daily. A dysentery in this city, under the management of one of the Students of the Medical College, who have passed examination, would be a great desideratum.”

SERAMPORRE MURDER.—We hear with much regret, that a Suttie has taken place in the neighbourhood of Serampore, within the last six weeks. It appears that the Raja of Moradul, a Zemindary we believe in the south, died, on the last day of the festival of Juguthitree at Kidderpore, and his body was brought up to Mohesh, within a mile of Serampore, and burnt during the night. It is affirmed on the most credible testimony, that the young widow, sixteen years of age was burnt with him, by compulsion. Some of her relatives have brought the subject before the Magistrate of Hooghly, and every exertion has been made to ascertain the truth by personal investigation. We learn that although there is the strongest presumptive proof that a Suttie actually did take place, the unwillingness of the Natives to give evidence, deprives the Magistrate of the means of bringing home the offence to the offenders.

SCINDE.—KOTRA.—A letter dated “Camp near Kotra, Nov. 1,” informs us that the 25th N. I., which had been sent to watch the opening of the Moala pass to prevent the Beloochees from destroying the crops of grain and plundering the country, had arrived there on the 31st ultimo. The 25th, after having been routed by the right wing crossed from Lorkhana to Cullava, and four marches after their departure from the former place traversed the desert, having started at 7 o'clock in the evening and reached their halting place after a long and fatiguing march, at 8 o'clock next morning. About 12 o'clock at night a band of Beloochees, into whose territories they had just entered, came quickly down upon the advancing force under cover of some jungle and raising themselves among the baggage camels in the rear, actually succeeded in carrying off six of them before the officers were aware of any thing being amiss. A cry having now been raised by the camel men, Lieutenants Jackson and Phayre went ordered back with the grenadier company to search the jungle and they reached the encampment they had left four hours before, which was now about eight miles in the rear. The search, however, was fruitless; the camels were nowhere to be found, and the well mounted robbers were too rapid in their movements to be successfully pursued by Infantry. These were the first of the Beloochees which the 25th had fallen in with; “since then, (say our correspondent,) we have seen enough of them,” seldom showing themselves in the day time, they constantly hung on the line of march, and every where sacked and burnt the villages on the route, so that when our people arrived they found nothing but empty bizzars and desolated dwelling places. On one of these occasions some of Lord Keane's letters and despatches, which had been lately intercepted, were found in a dervish hamlet. One morning about 10 o'clock, when the camels were feeding about a mile from the camp, some 30 well mounted horsemen came down at full gallop, and before the alarm could be given, or any assistance afforded, having struck six and carried off two of the camels. About 25 of our people on hearing the shouts of the camel drivers rushed out and gave chase for three or four miles, but were unable to overtake the drepridators. A Sepoy who was a good marksman, managed to bring down one of the Beloochees he saw, but the rider escaped. The want of a few cavalry in all these cases prevented our troops from effecting any thing against their fleet, fearless, and well-mounted assailants. Aware of this, a couple of natives who had been engaged at Sukkur as keepers to the Artillery horses, made off with a pair of them one night while on guard. The one of them succeeded but the other having fallen from his horse in endeavouring to climb the trees was taken and is now in custody. The regiment was constantly harassed on its march by night alarms which compelled them to fall in and be prepared for immediate attack. On reaching Kotra they found that Major Boscawen had destined for them the service of 57 of the Poona Horse.—these are expected to be of the utmost benefit. Around Kotra the people are becoming more quiet—the chase is vent which Boscawen's people so lately administered to them having had a very beneficial effect.

We find that most of our correspondents concur in estimating the loss of the Beloochees in the Kotra affair at 178 to 150, as was mentioned by one of our correspondents, in stead of 50—the number given by another in the account of the affairs published in the Times of the 11th instant.

KELAT.—A despatch from General Nott at Kelat, announces the occupation of that city and fortresses by the force under his command on the 3d November, no resistance having been offered. The main body of the Bahooce army which, after their defeat at Dadur, by the troops under Major Boscawen of H. M. 40th had retreated into the hills around the Bala Pass, appears by intelligence from Sukkur to the 14th November to have dispersed from want of provisions, nor was any negotiating immediately expected.

A few further particulars of the murder of Lieut. Lovelace have also reached us. By the depositions of his servant, corroborated by those of some of the Beloochees who were made prisoners, it seems the unfortunate young man's throat was cut by one of the inferior chiefs when the retreat took place, in revenge for the death of a brother, killed the day before in an unsuccessful attack on the detachments of the Bombay regiments at Dadur.

AFGHANISTAN.—CABOOL.—A letter from Cabool of the 8th December announces the arrival, and surrender, to Sir William Macartney on that date of Mahommmed Aizul Khan, the eldest son of Dost Mahommmed Khan. It will be remembered that Dost Mahommmed had written to his son, immediately after his own surrender, desiring him to come into Cabool, and give himself up to the Envoy and Minister.

The Dost himself was to leave Cabool, with his brother and one of his wives almost immediately. His son was to proceed to Ghuzni for the purpose of recruiting the rest of the family branches of the family to Hindoostan.

THE CHARIKAR AFFAIR.—On the morning of the 2nd ultimo, an express arrived from Lieutenant Mordaunt, commanding the corps of “Kohistanee,” reporting a party of regular Infantry, as all his Kohistanee were preparing to start for Dost Mahommmed's camp. Lieut. Lang was instantly despatched with a company of the 27th Regt. to capture the small fort, where Lieut.

Maula was, and who is still there. At noon of the 29th, the whole force under Major General Sir R. S. S. marched to a fort called "Hing alam." Here intelligence was received that the Dost had left Najrow and come down into the Kohistan Valley. On the 30th and 31st, the force halted, and a strong reconnoitring party accompanied by Captain Sanders and Lieut. Broadfoot of Engineers, moved out to survey the country. On the 1st instant, all marched to Meer Musjid fort. Here intelligence reached them of the Dost having moved to Purwan Durrah, a small valley, through which runs a clear rapid stream and several small forts scattered amongst the orchards. It was now determined to march on Purwan Durrah the following morning, and the troops were directed to move as follows:

The advance guard, consisting of four companies of H. M. 13th Light Infantry, under Major Kershaw, Two six pounder guns under Lieut. Warburton, the two flank companies of the 37th Regt. N. I. and one company of the 27th Regt. N. I. under Lieut. Rind of the 37th Regt. The two squadrons of the 2d Light Cavalry and the Shah's 2d Horse, the whole being under the command of Lieut.-Colonel Salter. The remainder of the force followed in rear.

About day break the advance guard moved off, and one of our correspondents says, such a country as we traversed, I shall not forget in a hurry, the morning was a heavenly one, and the whole country, adorned as it is with yellow foliage with a bright autumn sun shining on its face, appeared as it were a shining mass of gold—but our road was difficult in the extreme, immense canals, ravines, deep water cuts and every possible obstacle that could present itself to our Army. We reached the Guorbud river between 8 and 9 A. M., here we had considerable difficulty in crossing the guns. This surmounted, we ascended the high land under the hills, and finding a fort occupied, and which had commenced firing on us, we formed in line and moved to this position, a short distance where the river issuing through the Purwan Pass, obliged us to re-form in column. By this time, the villagers were flocking towards us calling loudly for mercy, and entreating us to move on quickly and save their property from the hands of Dost Mahomed's Army, which was plundering them and preparing to decamp. Our Cavalry advanced, crossed the river and ascended the bank on the opposite side, Doctor Lord and Lieut. Broadfoot accompanied them, after considerable difficulty we crossed the guns which again stuck on the opposite bank, which was exceedingly steep. On our Cavalry reaching the top of the opposite bank, Dost Mahomed Khan, and an Army of some 4,000 Horse and Foot, were seen breaking cover from the town and fort, and making the best of their way to some heights on the right, which lay at the base of a high mountain. The scene now became most exciting. Dr. Lord proposed moving on the Cavalry and taking up a position on the enemy's flank, his request was acceded to, and Captain Anderson's Horse were ordered round to the left, to prevent the enemy turning our flank. The guns were now got up and had joined the front part of the advance. We then moved on, and orders were sent to recall the Cavalry—before however the order reached, the enemy had begun descending on them. Captain Fraser, who commanded the Regiment, gave front, and order the men to draw swords and advance to the charge. The 1st troop wavered, and the men began to fall back by eights and tens. The enemy were now close on them, and the Officers so completely occupied with the enemy, who were moving on them at a slow and determined pace, never anticipating being left to fight the Dost's army themselves, merely called out "come on! charge! come on!" Will it be believed, that the men, led as they were in this gallant, this noble manner by such officers as the 2d are blessed with, that the men went throes about, and cut like a flock of sheep, from a force far inferior to them in numbers. The 2d troop did stand better, but they never advanced, and the left squadron, though not the first to run, never attempted, nor made the slightest effort to support their gallant commanders, who they saw surrounded and engaged hand to hand with the enemy. The Afghan Cavalry were now fairly in our ranks cutting and slashing in all directions. Dost Mahomed led his men down the hill—was seen to take off his turban from his head and stand calling out to his brave followers. In the name of God and the Prophet fight, drive those Fringee Kafir, out of the country or I am a gone man." The Cavalry were now seen coming towards the column in full retreat, as hard as the horse could lay legs to the ground, loose horses flying in all directions, and the Dost's Cavalry pursuing them. Captain Fraser arrived on his horse, covered with blood—he had received a deep cut down his back, and his right hand hanging to a bit of skin, detailed the driver in a firm and collected manner, and was then taken to the rear. Captain Posenby was brought in, he had received a ball through his left arm, the top of his left thumb cut off, and a very severe scab cut across the face—cutting his right cheek bone, dividing his nose and extending across the left cheek. His sword, (a superb Prouer, made to order for Captain Fraser, nearly cut in two, and backed considerably. The enemy had cut his reins which rendered his horse quite unmanageable, and one blow which was aimed at his loins, cut his jacket and girth of his saddle. His charger was shot through the neck and both ears taken off. Nearly all the killed and wounded including the three Officers, were left on the field. Till within a few minutes of Captain Fraser's arrival, we were congratulating ourselves on the pluck of the enemy coming down, and seeing all the charging and flashing of Sabres, concluded that our Cavalry had it all their own way—but alas the enemy's high red banner seen flying in our rank, soon opened our eyes to expect another tale; the advanced guard now formed in line and our guns were drawn up in position to receive the enemy—but they passed in front of us at too great a distance, even for our guns to touch. After some delay the General ordered two companies of the 37th and the Cavalry to move round to the right and search for the missing officers—and directed two of Abbott's guns under Lieutenant Dawes, and the three companies under Lieut. Rind, to move to the left and attack the enemy, who were accumulating on a rocky hill on the flank—both detachments moved off, Lieutenant Dawes opened fire on the enemy with most admirable precision. The high red standard of the enemy was now carried up and planted on the top of the hill—thus the General thought rather too much of a good thing, and sent orders to Lieut. Rind to move up with his detachment and take the hill from the enemy. The companies moved off covered by the guns. The ascent was near to being impassable, and they were exposed to a heavy fire, but fortunately most of the shot passed over their heads, and in a short time the companies were up and in possession of one of the highest looking places I ever saw in my life. A grenadier of the 37th was saved by his breastplate. A havildar and three men were wounded. After diving off the enemy and holding the hill for half an hour, the companies were withdrawn. Lieutenant (Colonel) Salter returned with the bodies of his late Adjutant and Dr. Lord—the former without his head, both bodies were naked and much cut. Lieutenant Broadfoot was not found till night, when it was brought in also without a head.

The troops were now withdrawn, camp pitched, and we retired to rest all fully accoutred with the full prospect of having a precious warm night's work.

Day-break came without a shot being fired from our side. The enemy had decamped, and were said to have gone in the direction of Charikar.

Political Agent at Juepoor at defiance. The gallant Major Polster has been directed, in consequence, to proceed with the Sukhawatee Brigade under his command and with all haste to chastise the offenders. The principal individuals concerned in this out break are Kishnu Singh, Bichon Singh and Bhudro Singh, not to mention some of the Jodhpureans.

NEAR MAHOMED—Neor Mahomed, one of the Amers of Hyderabad, is hourly expected to end his days and be gathered to his fathers, being dangerously ill! On his death now amongst the Amers, it is supposed, will take place. They are all of them ill-disposed towards Mir Nusser Khan, the brother of Neor Mahomed, and Shere Mahomed, the Meer of Khympoor, is also his avowed enemy, and he is said to be assembling a force not far off. Nusser Khan, it is said, will show his teeth if he can gain the countenance and assistance of the British.

The quarrel will be about the property and lands of the men they expect, and apparently wish, to die. However, it is probable, we will hear, the report of it and may likely that Neor Mahomed is dead at this instant, for the last accounts of him were that the lower parts of his body had become cold.

DADUR—Our letters from Dadur and its vicinity reach from the 23rd of October to the 6th November direct, and the following is the summary of their contents. It would appear that on the 23rd instant the rebel force, headed by the young Khan of Kolat, emerged from the Balin Pass and pitched close to its entrance. On the following day, about 3 p.m., the whole force, amounting to about 2,000 Horse and Foot, marched out to the attack; for a long time they appeared to advance but slowly, when suddenly they hastened their approach and advancing close to our Camp, divided into two parties, one of which advanced along the front of the Camp, while the other proceeded to the right and rear of the breast works, where they were saluted by a fire of round shot which evidently told. Skinner's horse, who had most gallantly marched out to meet the enemy, was now threatened to be attacked by the party advancing in front, and they were immediately ordered to charge, which was most gallantly performed by them the squadron being led by Captain Macpherson, and 50 of the enemy, it appears from our information, were cut up before they retreated to their first position, while on our side, one Reasider, (an Officer highly respected by Colonel Skinner) was killed, and six Duffalies and 18 Sowars wounded. Nothing, it is said, could exceed the gallantry of Skinner's horse, as gallantly led on by Captain Macpherson, and their behaviour is a complete contrast to that of the troopers of the 2nd Cavalry. During this engagement, Captain Heath, of the 5th Bombay N. L., we believe, plied the enemy with round shot so beneficially, that they were obliged to retreat. At sunset, another attack was made, which was repulsed by a smart fire from the Store House of the Camp, and the enemy retreated with a loss of seven on their side, among whom was one of their chiefs.

On the 31st, the enemy again advanced on the camp as before, but were again received by well directed fire from Captain Heath's guns, which dispersed them with some loss. In the mean time, a body, about 1,000 strong, proceeded to the ~~down~~ of Dadur, which immediately opened its gates, while every assistance was given to the enemy by the towns people to scale the walls.

The Nalb, in charge of the town, did not make the least opposition and, eventually, after pillaging the town, the enemy retired to their encampment, having lost during the siege about 150 men. The loss on our side was, of Skinner's horse, one Reasider killed and 27 men wounded. Captain Macpherson and Cartwright are also seriously wounded. As stated in our former numbers captain Dorecayen was written, to hasten his approach, and by forced marches of twenty and twenty-five miles he was in sight of the enemy on the 31 instant, just in time to learn that the Balapores were descending en masse in the strength of 5 or 6,000 men, horse and foot. Not a moment's rest was allowed, the guns fired a few shots, and the Detachment, consisting of the right wing of the Queen's 10th, 35th, 36th, 38th B. I. and a Battalion of the Agency Horse, under Lieutenant Richardson, rushed to the attack, driving the enemy to the right about in most gallant style. There was no shrinking, Queen's and Company's troops, and irregular horse followed the brave example of their Officers, and drove, as we already have heard, the enemy into their encampment under a hill. This was enough—the word was given for pursuit, and horse and foot followed, close upon the track of the fugitives.

ATKABAZI-TAK-CAUL—We have news from Cabul to the 12th ult., which enables us to state with certainty, that we must have been misinformed regarding the Dhoat's escort, which, on the authority of a letter from Ferozepore, we assumed to be under the command of Sir R. Sale. The Dhoat left Cabul at 7 a.m. on the 12th, under the charge of Lieut. Nicholson—and we rather think that the escort is commanded by Colonel Wheeler. Sir Wiltoughby Cotton, who is coming down on medical furlough, accompanies the party. Sir R. Sale has assumed command—temporarily, we suppose—of the troops in Cabul, and Colonel Denne commands the garrison. The former is to receive the first class of the Dhoat's order—it has been erroneously stated that this honor was conferred upon him, for the Poonahwaria affair. On this occasion Shikoh Shah presented his sword to the General, but the royal pleasure was not shown in any more marked manner. There appears to be some hopes entertained that Capt. Frazer's hand may be saved (it has been somewhere stated that the arm was amputated) and it is possible that he may retain the use of the thumb and one finger. Capt. Pousinby's wound is not so deplorable as it was at first, though to be. The Azra Ukhbar says, that the troop of Horse Artillery form part of the Dhoat's escort to the Provinces, but we are inclined to think that the announcement is premature. They are spoken of at one time, but the most recent accounts mention Capt. Henderon's Horse and not Capt. Garbett's troops.

A single company of Gookhas has been sent to Chatekat—it is difficult to say for what purpose, unless to be cut to pieces.

Colonel Denne has been offered the 2nd class of the Dhoat's order—and Captain Garbett, of the Horse Artillery, has received the 3d. The former, most unquestionably, ought to have been offered the first class of the order, immediately after the Bamcan victory—the most decisive, the most gallant, and the most important victory, after that of Ghuznee, which has been gained by us throughout this campaign. In this ally, by the way, we have learnt that the Dhoat was wounded, but very slightly, a fragment of a shell having struck his thigh but caused nothing worse than a contusion. The Dhoat's own gun—"a large 16 pounder" as stated in Sir Wiltoughby Cotton's despatch—is turned out to be a one-pounder, and has been bought for 120 rupees by the artillery officers at Cabul, as a present to the Dhoat himself. The Dhoat, we hear, is sadly afraid of being sent to London!

Sir W. H. McNaghien, it is said, has written Government, intimating that it would be undesirable to send any more troops to Cabul, as the country is incapable of maintaining a larger force than is at present in it.

COL. SIR JOHN BURNES AND THE PUNJAB.—Our letters from the large magazine, the Panjab, reach to the 24th November. The British agents on the left bank of the River on the 19th October and on the same day wide horns of a good fire having been supplied for firing, and the 20th was a day of the following morning the Brigade continued its march to Sathapore, where it would have encamped the previous day, had the original intention been adhered to; but at the request of the Sikh Government, which the Brigade in every way respects, the Army avoided encamping near Lahore. Nothing material has happened as yet, but we learn that any thing but a friendly disposition has hitherto been evinced, and the Brigade has continually gone astray in consequence of wanting to inefficient guides. All is well, and the arrangements made by the Brigadier and his Officers are found to be very efficient.

AFGHANISTAN.—There are no stirring events to record from Cabool, but such as they are, we have received them from our kind correspondents. The Force under Major General Sir Robert Sale marched into the new cantonment at Cabool on the 21st instant, after a harassing and arduous campaign, in which 113 men have been killed or wounded, the whole loss amounting to 38, including four officers, Captain Canby, 6th Light Cavalry, Lieutenant Cuyper, 4th Light Cavalry, Lieutenant Broadbent, Engineers, and Dr. Lord. The troops had the disadvantage of finding their tracks only half finished, and the greater part of the British quarters only rising from the level of the ground; there appears to have been much unaccountable delay, we have before adverted to it, and we might, with great propriety, add a shameful disrespect of the commands of Officers and men in tolerating them exposed as they are, and will be, to the severity of a Cabool winter; the Government might easily find out where the fault lies, and have more than once been called upon to do so; this is not the way to gain the services of men, who have already borne up against an succession of hardships they did not bargain for, and the least the Government should do, is to see that their orders for the preservation of the health and comfort of their gallant followers be attended to;—others are well housed, and they should be so too.

Dist Mahomed Khan marched on the 12th instant escorted by the 1st Bengal European Regiment, Captain Gordon's troop of H. A. and the 21 Cavalry. The latter corps return to the provinces, their services being, for the future, dispensed with. Major General Sir W. Cotton moved on the same day escorted by two companies of the 27th N. I.; the inclemency of the weather made the march a slow one, but the royal presence and his escort arrived at Jellalabad on the 25th November; he is represented to be in very good spirits, agreeable, intelligent and fond of conversation, and gains golden opinions from all kinds of men in his "pigeons," his destination is not yet known.

As soon as Shah Soofiah can be provided upon to quit Cabool for Jellalabad, the wing of the 37th is to move on, and will occupy H. A.'s abutment in the Bala Bazar, the other wing will find quarters in the Bazar-e-Kut.

GENERAL DUFFY AND NUSSEER KHAN.—Nusser Khan has sustained a complete defeat at Khyber by a detachment of British Bombay troops (900 strong) under Colonel Marshall, and five hundred of the enemy are stated to have been slain, and about a hundred and thirty taken prisoner, among whom are several chiefs. On our side the loss has been but small, though there is one officer in the line killed. Whether the Khan is actually slain or not this report must completely sink him as an opponent, and convert him into a fugitive or a skulker without a chance of another rally.

INDIA.—From the Panjab the news is interesting. The Dowager Queen, has not only opposed the pretensions of Shah Soofiah, but opposed them successfully, and at the present time is settled quite at her ease upon the throne.

AFGHANISTAN.—The 27th November, since our last letter from Afghanistan, according to the 27th, which does not contain much news—for Cabul is no longer the great mart of the country—but ere by the means of a banner of interest. The Dhoon's march reached Jellalabad on the 24th, and was to have proceeded onto Peshawar on the 28th. The escort consisted of the European Regiment, the 48th, N. I., a Squadron of the 2d Cavalry, and two guns—the centre column of the 4th troop, 3d Brigade, under Lieutenant Mr. Mackenzie—Colonel Wheeler commanding the whole. The Dhoon is said to be a very tolerable spirit; and on the 25th having expressed a desire to be present at a merry meeting of the Kinghees, he was introduced to the mess of the European Regiment. There was a large party, the band, &c., and when the cloth was removed, Lieutenant Mackenzie went out and returned with the ex-Ameer, who sat several hours, listening to the music and the singing, apparently very well pleased. He smoked a Chirroot too, but did not seem particularly to relish its flavor. The officers paid him great attention, rising upon his entrance and again at his departure—indeed, from the accounts now before us, it appears, that all the officers of the escort not only treat him with the utmost respect but take the greatest pleasure in doing so, whereas many many could never be induced to show any marks of respect to the Shah, who generally did not return the salutes of those who did not endeavor to honor him. The Dhoon, on the other hand, is said to be extremely courteous and affable quite free from petty pride and haughtiness. Before he left Cabul, as we have already stated, he held a levee, which was well attended by our officers—"he was seated," writes a correspondent, "on a high chair, when we went in, and he immediately requested us to be seated—so we sat on the ground in a circle. We then entered into a lively conversation, Nicholson acting as interpreter. The ex-Ruler is a fine man with a very intelligent face—a high forehead marked with three deep furrows—very animated brown eyes and a well-shaped nose; but his mouth is not in keeping, and his nose of two front teeth gives it an unpleasant expression. His hair is grey, and his beard somewhat neglected. He is prematurely grey, but with the exception of the furrows on the brow, and a few crow's-feet about the eyes, his face is wrinkled." The remainder of the cavalry and horse artillery, which included from Cabul, were to have followed him to Jellalabad, and proceed down ward, in the course of the present month, with the Dhoon's family then on its way to Peshawar.

Madras.

SALE TRADING.—We understand that Government has authorized an intelligent native officer of the Ordnance department, with a party of officers and artificers, to be detached to Canara for the purpose of being employed on duties connected with the supply of salt under the forests in the vicinity of that place.

MAGNETIC OBSERVATIONS. We learn that Lieutenant Elliot and Lindow, the officers appointed to observe the magnetic observations at Singapore, have been directed, and under authority, to make a series of observations, not only at Singapore, but also at other places, at distances from the direction of the current of the sea, so that one of the observations should be made at a distance of 50 paces from the shore, and another two, each at a distance of 100 paces from the shore.

ANALYST.—The body of a Nalgue of the 11th Regiment, was found on the night of the 16th of November in a small tank in the compound of Captain Hobbins, the Superintendent of the garrison. The man came out of the hospital about ten days ago, and from the appearance of the body, it is evident that he had been in the water for some time. Court of Enquiry is now sitting to investigate the cause of his death. The spy who is thought to have murdered him, was known to have money about his person when he quitted the hospital, which has not yet been found.

An Ice ground is in a state of prostration, and if we may judge from the favourable state of the weather which is intensely cold during the night, the residents at the station will have a plentiful supply of this much desired luxury during the ensuing hot season.

CANNON. November 17.—The 9th Regt A.F. paid off in full dues on Saturday evening last, for the purpose of receiving the new colours of the corps. The colours are very handsome, having a Galleon in the centre, and underneath the words KHOOSKER VUTUKH. A statement of the service of the Regiment in Hindustan, was read to the men, who seem to be highly delighted with the whole ceremony, and especially with what was said of their gallantry in the field.

MR. GEN. SIR HUGH LOUGH.—We have just learned on good authority, that the Supreme Government have appointed the gallant Major General, Sir Hugh Lough, K.C.B. to command the Expedition in China, and have directed him, to proceed thither by the very first opportunity. This does not look as if the China business were likely to be speedily terminated.

DR. MURRAY.—We understand that Dr. Murray has received orders to proceed forthwith to Valencia and take charge of the office of Inspector General of H. M. Hospitals in India, in room of the late Dr. Macdonald.

PONAPPE PRIZE MONEY.—The Ponappe prize money will be distributed among the detachment commanded on the occasion by Lieutenant A. B. Dyer, as soon as certain official papers, expected to all next week, are returned by the President. The gallant commander will receive only one sixteenth of the amount instead of one eighth, as formerly mentioned by us.

As connected with the foregoing topic, we may add, that the whole of the property taken at Kunoo will at once be given up as prize property to the force then under command of Major General F. W. Wilson, &c., and may be estimated at about eight lakhs of rupees.

A SWAGHREE AMBASSADOR.—Thomas Sydney Smith, Esq., of the Madras Bar, has been between forty and fifty thousand rupees during his residence at Hyderabad, since October 1859. Had he remained at the President's court it is not likely that he would have realized any thing like this sum, even at the expiration of six or seven years.

CHINA. Nov. 23.—On the night of the 17th instant, an earthquake took place at this station. The fugitives, it is said, have proceeded towards Chowghat with the view of having the fourteenth ceremony solemnized in some one of the automatic churches about the place.

NOV. 23.—On the 9th whilst a gang of convicts were at work about three miles from the jail, a party of them attempted to make their escape, but without success. Three of them were wounded in the attempt (all about wounds), three very severely for not giving up, having received deep flesh cuts, and two slightly.

MAHARAJA. Nov. 23.—An old Marathi man was hanged at this station on the 18th instant for having killed his wife, whom he suspected of adultery, but could not prove the fact. He murdered her with a dagger. He was detained in the jail the two days immediately preceding his execution.

MAHARAJA. Nov. 23.—The Superintendent, Cingapore, Lally, returned yesterday from his annual tour, which has proved a very satisfactory one. The rice holding is in a most promising state as regards the crop, and an abundant harvest is anticipated, and of course a full treasury.

The road through Coorg to Mangalore is a most dangerous undertaking, winding as it is, over precipitous and impassable, running along the edge of precipitous cliffs, and disintegrating into yellow till it again meets level country. The construction of this work has devolved upon the officer commanding the detachment in support. He has no European assistance of any kind, except the occasional aid of a sapper sergeant who is in charge of stores.

MAHARAJA. Nov. 20.—It is expected that poor Buzgers will leave for Madras about the middle of next month, in company with the European sick. Through the kindness of the gentleman who has all along been his most staunch friend, he will be enabled to go under comparatively comfortable circumstances, with his mind much relieved, as to the future prospects of his children, some arrangement having been made for their being properly taken care of on their arrival at the Presidency.

ACCIDENTS IN THE COAST.—On the morning of the 18th instant, the sea was so high, as to preclude all intercourse with the shipping in the road. The Captain of the Heliance made the attempt in an accommodation boat, but notwithstanding the exertions of the men, she drifted towards the fort and was compelled to retreat. Her passengers. A common boat also went off with three native carpenters, and was upset and dashed to pieces. One poor man was drowned, and another who was engaged to fix up some cabins in one of the ships, being unable to swim, struggled long in the water, and but for the boaters must have been drowned. As it was, when brought on shore, life was almost extinct.

Bombay.

ANALYST.—On the 10th of November, Ahmedabad was visited by a severe earthquake. A person there at the time, writes, "At about 20 minutes before two o'clock, we were visited with a severe shock of an earthquake. I was in bed, awake at the time. It seemed to me to travel, as it were from the N. W. to the S. E. First a hollow rumbling, crashing noise was heard, and immediately the bed began to shake, and all the doors and windows, and pillars on the boxes in the room—the sensation it left in the mind was awful. I shall not soon forget it. Fortunately it has proved harmless so far as I have heard. A like earthquake occurred in this place some 20 years ago, but from all accounts much more severe. No other news the weather just now is most delightful—and grain of all sorts plentiful and cheap."

LIBERALITY OF A PARRER.—Among the men of the Parer population the building of an abode of "Dharma," or "Law of Silence," has become a duty, and a large subscription, amounting to Rupees 5000 was raised for the purpose among the people of this city, both rich and poor, both men, and women, and children.

the Box of Postel-lee, at some distance from, and quite out of sight of land, on the 6th, August, on the latter morning, anchors were weighed, and the Wellesley, Pol-gue and Pulader having been sent out to act as an advance squadron, the remainder of the fleet anchored in lat 38° 55' 20" N and long 118° 07' 10" E, the distance from the land, which was but just visible from the Wellesley's mainmast, being then about 15 miles. The Modeste, Salade and Pulader anchored 5 miles off shore, and the Wellesley's anchorage they had 8 fathoms water at high tide which fell to 7 at ebb.

On the 10th a letter having been prepared by the interpreter, purporting to be from the Admiral to the principal Mandarin of the place, announcing the object of his visit with the fleet, and expressing a wish that an accredited person should be sent off to receive at his hands the letter addressed by H. M. Government to the court of Peking a flotilla of boats, armed, but with the arms concealed, was sent on shore towards the mouth of Peiho, to endeavour to obtain a conference, and ascertain the state of things through the medium of the Admiral's letter. On either side of the river a fort was observed, built on mud banks both in a dilapidated and indefensible condition the parapets being in places ruinous, and having but few guns, and those apparently almost unserviceable. On the walls of these forts, however, as the boats neared them, great bustle was observed, flags were being hoisted up and placed at intervals along the parapets, and other hostile-looking demonstration going on, and remembering the treachery acted at Amoy, under similar circumstances, it was thought advisable to endeavour to get hold of a native to carry a letter on shore and await the result. From the extreme terror, however of the few people whom they encountered in making boats, this was found impracticable, and the boats proceeded onwards to "try the general ship," when a boat with two Mandarins was observed sailing out towards them, a flag of truce was then waved to them, and they at once came along side, and entered into conversation with Mr. Munro. They immediately agreed to take the Admiral's letter on shore explaining that the Viceroy of Petchel-lee, Ke-Shen, was at Taku a few miles distant, and to him they would apply to obtain an answer. They intimated that the boats had better anchor where they were, or to return to their ships, in which they would forward the letter by a messenger. The boats desired to anchor at about 100 paces from the shore, but the boats refused to do so, and the distance of a mile from the shore while the two Mandarins then set off on horse back into the interior, and after a considerable delay, which the boats were on the point of returning, a new dignity was seen approaching the bank, and it was then arranged that, as from the hostile nature of the bank it was more than sufficient to land, the Mandarins should go on board, and the others of the boats visit him there—the latter had previously been invited to come on shore, and with a hypothesis in the fort, but had been obliged to decline by the above unexplained reason. The Mandarin in the junk delivered only a most discouraging answer, saying that he had not time to write a proper reply, but that he would send one on the morrow with an accredited person to receive the letter for Peking. The injustice of this was fully made out by the unaccountable, though the terms he made use of were not disrespectful. He did not, however, rise from his seat or in any way salute the officers when they came on board, and after directing the messenger sent, that they had any thing to say they might better say it then. Another opportunity was given to the river were to the effect that by the end of the two forts, that there were about 100 soldiers and 100 men in or about them, but that a good many Manjarins, with different stations, some 20, 30, and exceeding 100, were present, and were, as it were, evenly sent down for the occasion, as there were no other dwellings than a few miserable huts on the banks of the river seen. A body of men were observed busily engaged in throwing up an earthen breastwork, extending the fort on the south bank of the river in an elevated sort of platform, which was flanked by a ditch extending into the river, and on which, at a subsequent visit, a very respectable-looking, brass, field-piece, on a proper wheel carriage, were observed mounted, and the impression is that these must have been the best guns presented by Lord Macartney to the Emperor when he visited the capital, and which now, by a strange coincidence or rule in human affairs, have been turned toward upon the doors or "tribunes." From all that was witnessed, it appeared very evident that the visit of this fleet had taken them quite by surprise, and that the Mandarins were at the forts, and the semblance of warlike preparations going on at the mouth of the river were merely the results of an endeavour according to their usual mode, to throw a cloak over the nakedness and poverty of their defences. The boats returned to the squadron on the afternoon, and on the following morning a Mandarin came off to the Wellesley, with a letter from the Shen to the Admiral stating that he was willing and ready to receive the letter of H. M. Ministers and transmit it to Peking for the Imperial inspection and pleasure, which he said it would require a period of ten days to enable him to receive and forward to the Admiral. He explained that the Governors of the Ningpo and Amoy provinces being of inferior rank, had not the power to exercise a discretion with regard to letters for the Imperial court, and hence their refusal to receive that of H. M. Government at both places; but that he, Ke-Shen being of higher rank could take upon himself to engage to forward it, and did so accordingly. Owing to the distance from shore and the lightness of the wind which rendered it necessary to make use of the steamer for the conveyance of the letter, some delay here intervened, and the letter was not finally dispatched to Peking until the 15th, from which date, according to the calculation of Ke-Shen a period of ten days was allowed by the Plenipotentiaries, for the consideration of the Imperial court, and for the transmission of the answer. The Mandarin who was sent on board the Wellesley is described as a remarkably intelligent and apparently well-disposed sort of man, of a warm sort of A. B. C. to Ke-Shen, and a cavalry soldier, and afforded much amusement by his description and ideas of things. He asserted that the civilians were anxious for a peaceful settlement of the question, but that the military were all for war—wanted distinction—to gain batons, &c. &c. On first coming on board he could not altogether control the effect produced upon him by the formidable appearance of the men and 10 war decks, and when subsequently the men and 10 war decks, and their long lines of 33 pounders, surrounded by the imposing paraphernalia of war, were exhibited to him, he continued to keep his feelings under control, and manifested neither surprise nor admiration. After this arrangement had been entered into with Ke-Shen, the fleet broke up to cruise, under the command of the Wellesley, to the islands in the H. and E. of the anchorage, in quest of water, and stored, under orders to re-embark on the 28th, on which day the dispatch communicating the pleasure of H. M. Majesty was to be considered. Two or three of the ships sighted the great wall of Peking at a distance, but about the long and fat, logged by the Wellesley, when the Wellesley proceeded to the coast in 1810, and the Wellesley proceeded to the coast in 1810, where a good deal of stock was obtained, a very interesting discovery made at a place called Boatmen, however, in the 19th and 20th centuries, and long after, had been found in the same place. Some specimens were brought away, but unfortunately lost in the ship's hold. I had an opportunity of seeing some of the small portions, and found the physical characters discernible in them. I should pronounce the coal anthracite; it burns without flame, and is exceedingly brittle. All the pieces brought here having been reduced to small fragments by the mere force of holding and occasionally handling, it has a splendent lustre somewhat resembling that of graphite, and its fracture, so far as can be discerned, is conchoidal. Mr. Clarke (late of the H. C. China Service) was formerly on board the Blonde, during her cruise, and through his interpretation a few data were elicited concerning its site, cost, &c. The point appears to be situated at the distance of 15 miles only inland from a point which a large boat can approach by means of an inlet of the sea; but the quantity produced at present but small, the demand being limited to a place called Kai chow, about sixty to seventy miles N. of Foochow, to which about twenty cargoes of thirty to forty tons each, are annually shipped. The price at the shipping place (two on board) is 140 cash per meal of 133 lbs. or about 12s. 6d. per ton, and at Kachow it is sold for 320 cash the meal. Further considerations of the value which may be attached to the discovery of anthracite coal in this remote region, will be more suitable to another place, as connected with the information collected of the geology of the general coast of China and Tartary in the course of the last few months. I may mention en passant that millet, barley and wheat were observed growing in the fields, and herds of a pretty fair description, donkeys and goats in abundance; but no sheep were seen, also quail, snipe, plovers and foxes. The people appeared to be principally emigrants from the opposite coast of China; no towns or military posts were seen. On the 27th the squadron had again assembled at the former anchorage, and no junk from the shore being seen orders were issued to prepare for offensive operations, as a channel had been found by which it was considered that the Moderate which can be made to draw somewhat less than 12 feet of water, could enter the Peiho, as the Malignant steamer, drawing 14 feet 2 inches had already passed by it clear of the great sand-bank which partially closes up the river's mouth. She was run on to anchor close to the passage, with her boats in readiness to be prepared to cross and attack the forts on the following morning; in the mean time all the boats of the squadron were prepared for service, hoisted out, and all the available men told off for a land expedition, forming a body of 7 to 800 men, including 150 marines. Early in the morning, however, the shore squadron signalled "a Mandarin junk standing out toward the fleet," and a damper was consequently at once thrown upon the hopes and ardour of the would-be invaders. The junk was brought along side, the A. D. O. made his appearance on board the Wellington, produced the expected letter to a Ke-Shen, stated that he had come out on the day preceding according to appointment; but seeing no ships at the anchorage, had returned for the night, and all again became couleur de rose. The letter stated that the Imperial pleasure had been received; but that as there were many difficulties and difficulties in the question, which might be explained by personal conference, he would propose that one of the Plenipotentiaries should favor him with a visit on shore, where in his tent a discussion due to the importance of the subject might conveniently take place. The terms and expressions in the use of by Ke-Shen were, I understand, perfectly courteous and respectful, and in praising that Capt. Elliot would be the visitor, he explained that according to the customs of his country he could not conscientiously with the dignity of his position (which was the only one he considered) accept of a private visit, and that he would be obliged to the visitor to pay a visit of ceremony to a foreign dignitary, and that he concluded the same course would operate to respect a chief of Shin (the Plenipotentiary) rank, and especially of the military, from leaving their vessel for the same purpose, and nevertheless, as Capt. Elliot he was aware was thoroughly acquainted with the manners and customs of the Chinese, and would acknowledge the importance of a conference, he trusted that he would in this case waive ceremony and accede to his proposal. On leaving the Wellington the "barbarian Elliot," whose letters had been indorsed with the Chinese word "pin," would have been spurned by the underlings of Lin, and inferior Commissioner, into whose august presence he would never have been permitted to come, respectfully urged by the third dignitary of the state, to meet him on the shore of the central Siwery station and tried with him as with an equal. The plan was of course at once adopted, and on the following morning the 30th August, 8 boats having been well manned and the arm chest carefully stored and overhauled, pulled in towards the river, conveying Capt. Elliot, Mr. Morrison the interpreter, and a plenipotentiary spruikling of officers of all arms in full uniform. As the boats neared the bar, a boat with two Mandarins pulled out to escort them in, and while one was sent back to a gig to prepare for the landing, the other went into Captain Elliot's barge, and accompanied him to the shore, where it was soon perceived that the Chinese, with their accustomed industry, had taken advantage of the time elapsed since the last visit of the boats, to effect great changes and improvements. Both forts had been considerably repaired and strengthened the breast works and ditch on the N. bank had been completed and armed with muskets and high pieces; flanking ditches had been dug to make the approach to the fort more difficult, and long lines of tents behind the newly thrown up works, on the opposite side of the river, and near the town in the distance, now made their appearance: in them it was estimated there might have been about 2000 troops, though but few were seen on the walls of the fort, and about the tents which had been erected for the reception of the unwelcome visitors. On a higher part of the mud flat, which extended between the fort on the S. bank of the river and the water's edge, an enclosure had been made of a rectangular form by erecting high connaughts, and in the included space was a miniature of unpretending size and appearance, occupied by the Ke-Shen a suite of breakfast tents, and a few here and there for attendants; the enclosure had been drained by canals cut round it, and a bridge of boats planked over, stretched from its edge into the river, affording a dry means of passage into "the pleasure." On reaching Elliot, followed by his "staff," being introduced into the tent of Ke-Shen, the latter rose from his seat and courteously proffered the salutation of a bow, and of bowing, and "chin chinning" with the hands joined, to all; he then requested them to adjourn to the adjoining suite of tents, to partake of a repast consisting of "all the delicacies of the season," abundance of excellent mutton, pork, sweetmeats, bread, tea, and lib, &c. &c., begging, however Capt. Elliot remain, who accordingly, with Mr. Morrison, took seats in the tent and ordered himself to the more serious part of the day's performance, in a conference which lasted between 2 and 3 hours. Of what passed during the interview but little of course can be positively known to the world; I can only therefore detail to you the remarks made by the qualification of having been "given to understand" their general conversation. Capt. Elliot on some points had produced before Ke-Shen a fac simile of a map of the great wall of Great Britain, to show the similarity with which the P'ing-poo makes were placed,

He invited him to exhibit a similar proof of delegated power. He then replied that not having expected such demand he had come prepared to produce such proof of his identity, but on Capt. K.'s explaining that in the event of another meeting for the purpose of making conclusive arrangements taking place, it would be necessary that their mutual understanding should be maintained by the possession on both sides of such an instrument, he at once admitted the reasonableness of the demand, and expressed his unwillingness to comply with it. He then entered into the general question, and said the Emperor's wish was that things should at once return to their previous state and the trade be again carried on as of old, avoiding war, from which loss alone could result to both parties. That a high commissioner, (himself he believed) would be immediately despatched to Canton whether the English were invited to repair. That all arrangements and restrictions to proper order might be made upon the spot which had been the scene of the disturbances and of the misconduct of Lin, who "had exceeded his orders and should be punished," or it is reported, "given up to our mercy." Kō-shen intimated, I am told, with great attention and keen interest, to explanations made to him of the present actual hearing of the Suez silver question appearing to engender deeply upon the fact advanced that at the time being, in consequence of the great price of opium, and the impossibility of preventing its sale along the coast for specie alone, a far greater amount of silver was being drained out of the country than during the time of open trade, when their teas and silks tended most materially, by barter to check its stream. He asked whether the British Government were prepared or disposed to put an end to their side to the opium trade, and doubtless was made to understand for the first time, the impossibility of altogether preventing its export from India by any means we could legitimately use. And many more things he said and listened on which I was not at all length the conclusion broke up, Kō-shen promising that for the better and more explicit information of the Admiral, and for the satisfaction and convenience (for reference to their Government) of the Plenipotentiaries, he would on the following day send off a letter embodying the views of the Emperor and the measures which the Celestial Government proposed to adopt under existing circumstances. Throughout the whole conference it was remarked that he invariably made use of terms, the most correct and respectful, both in speaking of our Sovereign and the British nation, applying always the same terms expressive of rank and dignity when the occasion called for an allusion to the former, as when speaking of the Celestial Emperor. In and about the forts, and encampments also upon the occasion of this interview, no displaying of colours, marching of soldiers, sounding of drums, or any illustration of the national homing were witnessed; but all seemed to address themselves to the business on hand as one of an ordinary business importance. Many attempts were made by the party on the "outside" to penetrate into the fort and see how matters looked in the enemy's defence, but they were invariably resisted and the only information obtained, was as to the number of tents visible and of guns mounted, of these latter 15 heavy pieces (including the 6 European looking brass guns supposed to have been Lord McCartney's present) and which were mounted on a sort of earthen cavalier, without parapet, and about 20 ball-pieces were counted, so that a couple of broadsides from the Maltese would have decided the affair as far as the works—so to call them—were concerned. The party at length took leave of Kō-shen, returned to the boats and pulled back to the fleet, and soon after a welcome supply of live stock, consisting of 20 bullocks, 20 sheep, and 398 cows with oil, flour, &c. &c. was sent off. On the following day the promised statement was brought on board the Maltese, and after consideration of its contents and of the substance of what was brought forward by Kō-shen at the interview on the 30th, a letter was sent back by the Plenipotentiaries, stating that as no definite answer had been given to the proposals and demands of His Britannic Majesty's Ministers, and as the arrangement proposed appeared to hold out but a vague promise of concession on the part of the court of Peking, they must, unless some decided pledge should be given to them that the Celestial Government were prepared to authorize their future commissioner at Canton to accede to certain terms, and carry out the measures contingent upon them, put an end to the negotiation and proceed, according to their orders in carry on the war. This peremptory communication produced a prompt rejoinder from Kō-shen, entreating the Plenipotentiaries to delay yet a little while their final decision, and to allow him time to make another reference to Peking, from which he did not doubt that an answer in all respects satisfactory would speedily be returned. This was acceded to, and a period of 6 days—subsequently extended, at the urgent request of Kō-shen to 10 was allowed, during which part of the squadron again started in various directions to cruise, and the Admiral in the steamer paid a visit to the great "lion of the north." The wall, the description of which by those who were fortunate enough to accompany H. B. is abundantly interesting. The steamer was able to approach within about 2 miles of the coast on which its eastern terminus rested, a distance which admitted of a minute examination of a great extent of its range: it was seen to run along the summit of a range of hills parallel to and about 5 or 6 miles distant from the coast, and descending the northern extreme feebly entered the flat which intervened between it and the sea, close to which it terminated in a square fort of some extent having a gateway—that of Tartary—in its northern wall high towers were seen at intervals projecting somewhat from, along the whole line, and . . . served in that part, part of which afforded a sort of sectional view that the wall had parapet on either verge—exterior and interior. The position of the fort on the shore was determined by observations on board the steamer to be in lat 40° 4' N. and long 121° 2' E. Tents and soldiers were seen inside the fort, and also a small encampment on the Tartary side near the gate, most likely posted there "pour l'occasion."

The final despatch was brought out to the Wellington by the A. D. C. on the 1st September, containing a copy of the instructions of the Chinese Government to Kō-shen and a letter from him to the Plenipotentiaries communicating the same. An answer was immediately prepared, and sent on the following morning by the steamer by the A. D. C. who, I understand, urgently begged the Admiral to delay his departure until Kō-shen could have time to write one more rejoinder: this however was refused, and on the same day the whole fleet got under weigh and stood towards a small group of islands near the entrance of the bay, off one of which (Pō K'ang) the ships anchored and a party went on shore and procured some stock. Whilst wandering about Mr. Morrison found a proclamation posted on a wall, which appeared to be one of many circulated by the Governor of the province since the arrival of the expedition at Chusan. It referred to the capture of that island by the British troops, and stated the imperial pleasure had been received, directing that along the whole coast preparations should be made to resist them—that where there were fortifications they should be strengthened, and where there were none, works should be erected; that if at any town or village on the coast there should be few or no soldiers, the strong and vigorous young men should be ready, and the rich in arms and money sent to be employed by the authorities in furtherance of the national object of defence. There is a town on the main land, a few hours sail from these islands, called Tungshu-ho, hitherto accounted a place of some importance and strength, from which a junk was sent off to the fleet with a man, a sort of mandarin, on board, who spoke some English. He brought the compliments of the Governor of the place, who was anxious to conciliate the strangers and supply them with what they wanted, and proved to be a person formerly employed in an English house at Canton, a colonnade or head Dubush, during the troublous times of '39 so that he was thoroughly acquainted with all the particulars of the momentous quarrel "Elliot versus Lin." He gave much interesting information regarding the present state of the country, and the means to which the Chinese Government are resorting to defend its coasts against the incursions of the barbarians. He stated that they considered the Yang-tze Keang (river) by far the most valuable point or channel of attack in the Empire, and that great exertions were in consequence being made to collect troops and make preparations for resistance in and about Nankin and the towns on the river; it was given out that 50,000 men had been assembled in the province but that without doubt the major part were "paper soldiers," i. e. men mustered and retained on paper, but wanting in the body, and that the remainder must be but poorly armed and without artillery. Speaking of Peking he said, that it was a much poorer place and contained much fewer fine buildings, the Imperial and other palaces excepted, than Canton, upon which town an attack had been expected, and great many troops collected in its neighbourhood. Through this individual a communication was opened with the town of Lung chow, and the Modore having been sent in to make observations, great civility was shown on the part of the authorities, Capt. Eyres having passed the night on shore near an encampment of troops in a tent which they pitched for him and where the main fire waited upon him.

The town appears to be of considerable extent and surrounded by a wall rather of older one angle at which was washed by the having rich soundings. Use is that the Mother and have blown up with in half of the rampart.

"Captain Elliot went over on the 2d., to the A. S. Straits Street, to the mouth of the Ning-po river, and had an interview at Chiao at Chi ho with "E." the Chinese at war who arrived in Ning po from Peking, a short time since. Whatever may have taken place at the conference, the result seems plain, that Captain Anson's demand for surrender is refused, and as nothing whatever has been done by the Plenipotentiaries since, and as the whole of the troops are getting into winter quarters in the town and suburb, with all despatch, it appears that 'bear and forbear' is still to be the order of the day, though all on our side. It is said that the authorities (our Capt. Elliot says), declare that not one individual (not even the unfortunate Mrs. Noble) should be given up until the British troops have evacuated Chinin, and a strange sort of fact told,—by taking all the commanders of the 29 sugar junks now lying in the harbor," over to Ning po and proposing to exchange them, guns and all, if necessary, for then presentment with an ensign, and it only furnishes additional matter for regret that these attempts should have been made, to gain and end by a peaceful and circumstantious sort of means, which we are not ready and resolve to follow up by proceedings more worthy of the nation's name. It is more than probable that any of hostile measures carried out against the town of Ning-po just now, would wantonly interfere with an interest the most important of the stream which is to lead us—not to honor and glory, but to optimum compensation—restoration of trade, &c., but such is the case, it is surely most unwise and ill-advised to repeat a demand already repeated and humbly urged, and to support it by the use of force as I cannot even call it—of the and Makomed Shaw, if not in the least intention exists of enforcing it, in the event of an apparently insulting refusal.

· Captain Behne, with the Conway and Algerine, returned to this bay on the 1st after a successful and profitable cruise up the Yang-tze-kang, which he explored to within about 50 Miles of the junction of the great canal, turning in long. 126° 26' and lat 31° 40', at which point the river was 7 to 8 miles broad, and had a 6 fathom channel 1½ to 2 mile in width, with every appearance of its continuing. The town of Nankin is situated about 12 miles from the South bank of the Yang-tze keeping about 50 miles west of the junction of the canal (according to Barrow.

The Admiral and Captain Elliot are expected (according to the last letters from the fleet at Chusan) on the 28th at Macao.

The 37th Regt. Madras N. I., with the detachment of Volunteers are encamped on a small island called San Chow, a few miles N. and W. of Lantau at the mouth of the Cap-sing moon—they were healthy.

The Columbia with the Head-Quarters of the 37th had, however, not been heard of up to the 18th October, and fears were entertained for her safety.

Provisions and supplies of all sorts continued plentiful at Macao, and since the receipt of the Imperial edict, a less hostile feeling had been perceived at the Bogue forts and at the Barrier. H. M. S. Calliope, 28, had arrived from Vulgarisa, and her commander, Cap. Herbert, 29 senior, had assumed command. Lin had left Canton on his way to Peking two days, so when the last accounts received at Macao left the former town, and it is said that Ke-shen had arrived in the neighbourhood, but had not yet made his public entry, for which great preparations had been made.

The Sylph passed at sea near the entrance to the Straits, the French frigate, Magicienne, bound to Macao, and also left at Singapore the armed Steamer Nemore which was to sail from Singapore--economizing fuel--to join the Admiral on the 31d or 4th.

The same letter also adds that, "It is ascertained that the demands made by the British Commissioners on the Chinese Government, do not include any request for the repayment of the 20,000 chests of Opium delivered over to (Capt. Elliot."

A letter of 12th October says—"Some circumstances, and some conversations of the Admiral at Chusan, convince me his views of the conference at or near Canton are not for final settlement—that probably in endeavour to get out on amicable terms, the fears of the season, and continuous final adjustment next spring near Peking."

IMPERIAL EDICT.—On the 9th day of the 9th moon of the 20th year of Tanukwang, (Oct 4: 1840) the governor of Canton opened the following despatch from the piny council.

On the 22d day of the 8th moon (September 17) the following Imperial Edict was received.

"Truly because the English, Barbarians came to Tientsin and presented a document of complaints: and I perceiving that (in style) was respectful and obedient craving with the utmost degree of earnestness for the despatch of imperial labour and kindness, it was right for me to order Keshen to prepare with greatest attention and give a perspicuous edict, disallowing—or forbidding—(the English to cause) any disturbance or confusion; but to allow them to go to Canton, and thence to knock he if and state their complaints; and if really any just causes of complaint appeared, the said great minister should enquire in their behalf make and transmit a report, and beg for the imperial favour.

It is authenticated that formerly Keshen reported, saying, that the said Barbarians heard and received the (imperial) instructions and commands.

Now the whole of the English squadron have already moved their helms and returned to the southward after having made a report saying—"that along the whole coast hostilities should cease on both sides, and that they dare not produce causes of disturbance, but if they were attacked, then their power and strength would make it difficult for them to refrain from returning the blow. And one-half of the Tinghai troops also may be first withdrawn. Such are the words."

The said Barbarians for their former (for late) disobedient and insolent conduct, which although it has been caused by excitement, is deserving of that indignation which sets the hair on end and raises the cap from the head—ought to have been immediately exterminated (had they continued it.)

At present Tientsin in Fuhkeen, Tientsin in Chaka ang, Paoshan and Sungming in Keungsoo all sea port towns, have successively with their thundering cannon attacked the Barbarian ships, and crushed their daring spirit; and the said foreigners having already assented—or expressed their desire to come and represent (their complaints) and beg for (imperial) favour;—certainly the causes of what has passed must be searched to the bottom.

To-day I have directed Keshen to assume the rank and power of an imperial envoy (qumchue) and to travel post-haste to Canton to enquire into and manage the circumstances of the business; after his arrival there he must certainly manage and settle every thing securely.

Yet I am apprehensive that the governors and lieutenant-governors of the maritime provinces may be ignorant of the present state of circumstances. I therefore especially order F. Lepo, &c. to send a five-hundred-league-a-day-proclamation, that all may accordingly obey and that it may be seen at all important places; and that they may acknowledge the truth in God's eye, and waiting off. If one or more sails of those barbarian ships are anchored at sea, it is not necessary to open fire upon them; but it is of importance to keep a strict guard, and not to be the first to attack; but the severest and most secret arrangements must be established; there must not be the least appearance of disorder or remissness: this is of the utmost importance;

To order that to-day Keshen's original document with the English Barbarians' rough draft (to keep not a respectful term) with the said Barbarians' reply be copied and sent to F. Lepo to be by him examined;—and let these orders be forwarded at the rate of 500 leagues a day, that all may know them.

WRECK OF THE CORONET YOUNG.—During the whole of last week it has been blowing hard from the Eastward, and on Monday last the 20th, at night, the Colonel Young, broke from her anchor in the roads, and went on shore on the N. W. side of the Tupa Island. As will be seen from Mr. Jones' card the greatest part of the valuable cargo has been saved; the hull almost entirely under water, but it is hoped that she may be floated again in moderate weather, and that the damage she has sustained will not prove very great. It has been blowing very hard during the last week in the China sea; H. M. S. Hypocrite on her way from Manila, encountered very severe weather and had all her boats carried away; the Thetis, transport, is reported to be outside with loss of masts; the Sphinx, transport, has by reason of weather been obliged to put into the Caping-moon, as also the Kabel, 11, Spanish, bound from Manila for Chusan with stores.

Letters have been received from Chusan, to the 24th of October, and from Macao to the 4th of November. At Chusan matters were improving, the Chinese were daily returning to the town, and a larger supply of provisions was daily supplied, than had been received up to the date of our last advice. A truce had been declared between the Chinese and English, pending the Canton negotiations. Admiral Elliot was to leave Chusan for Canton in the first week in November. Trade was at a stand still at Macao, and every thing else in statu quo.

We have received our own correspondent's letter, dated Chusan 20th October, and though it contains little additional news, yet the details it gives are sufficiently interesting, to warrant our giving it a conspicuous place, by inserting it in our editorial columns;—

Tientsin (Chusan, Oct 17, 1840)—"Nothing of interest has occurred since the departure of the Cruiser with the last government mail. The views, too, of the Admiral, and the opinions of the favoured few who are behind the scenes, are kept so secret, that nothing but vague reports, and, now and then, the surmise of some knowing one ever reach the ears of the profane vulgar. It was believed for some time, that the admiral has given up his intention of going to Canton, and that the Chinese delegates would come here to settle the terms of a treaty. There was probably no further ground for this report, than an utter denial to the Wallerley and other vessels to subside, and there is no doubt, that the Admiral will sail for Canton on or about the 25th instant. The McKillop is now ready for sea, having even taken in her lower-deck guns, and some 68 pounds brought out of the Leander. She will carry the Admiral. The other men-of-war which are to go to Macao, are the Blanchet, Volage, Algerine, Matte and Madagascar, &c. The Wallerley will winter here. The Tamag and Albatross steamers, are to return to the Yang-tse-kung, and finish the important survey commenced by the former vessel. The entrance to the great river has been discovered, and the Colony has been apprised of 100 miles above it. The connection of the river with the great canal was not discovered, but the survey was necessarily hasty, as the time was limited, and thirty six weeks were consumed in finding the mouth of the river. There is no doubt, that all the desired information will be obtained on this second trip. The channel, although intricate and deep, and appeared to deepen as the Chingay ascended. The Chinese are said to be much dismayed by the achievement of this important service. The coast is said to have been every where placed in a state of defence, every village having some apology at least for a fortification. This, however, the only warlike appearance in the horizon. Several officers have obtained private leave of absence, which certainly looks rather peculiar. The "season" at Chusan is over, and our fashionable are leaving us. Two Marquises started last week, and a Viscount goes to day, and there has not been a single arrival of note, excepting the last importation of commissariat bullocks. As far as regards the health of the troops, no improvement has yet taken place, although the weather is much more salubrious. The thermometer is now at 60 in the morning, and the air dry and bracing. Still the fever and dysentery continue, and the men, worn out by repeated attacks, die off very fast. The Volunteers have lost upwards of one hundred men, the 20th nearly 70 and the other corps about the same proportion. The Sappers and Miners, however, have only buried two of their number. Nothing as yet has been done to ameliorate the wretched condition of the troops, although the admiral talks of sending detachments to Manila and Macao for change of air. Unfortunately this taking will do no valid in good, if, like on other occasions at Chusan it ends only in talking. However, the Admiral has been inspecting some of the military hospitals, which look humanely like. After being an eye witness at the disease and misery they contain, he cannot well refuse to do something for the troops. We are all heartily sick of Chusan, but our residence here will have at least one good effect, not one of us will grumble far at least ten years after a return to Birmah, even at a half batta station. We are but a few days for fresh provisions, and the troops have beef twice a day. The Pygmalion which the Haughty transport has been dispatched to the Northward for more bullocks. Captain Anstuther, Lieut Douglas, R.N. the captain and crew of the Kite, but, with the captain's wife and child, are all prisoners at Ning-po. There is also a party of marines. The Kite was taken while a large party were foraging on shore. The prisoners have been kindly treated, and suffered to make known their wants to their friends here. The Chinese at first refused to deliver them up until we left Chusan, but it is now understood, that they are to be forwarded to Canton and there set at liberty. There is a report, that Capt. Noble, of the Kite, is not among the prisoners, having been killed when his vessel was boarded, but this requires confirmation. An army of 5,000 foot, and 2,000 horse is said to be assembled at Ning-po.

October 20. — I wrote you a hurried letter the other day, when we received two hours' notice, that the mail vessel about to be closed. The vessel does not sail until this evening, and I write you a few more lines to give you any items of intelligence which I may have omitted in my letter. It was settled some days ago, that twelve of the ships in harbour were to be paid up and discharged, but this has since been countermanded, and they are to be retained at least for the present. The reason probably is, that more invalids are to be sent away than was at first contemplated, although some attribute the counter-orders to intelligence of an important voyage said to have been received yesterday from Ning-po. A ship was received by the Admiral, but there is no reason to believe, that it contained anything momentous, or likely to induce the Government to take up more shipping. The Clifton has been dispatched south for the accommodation of troops, and is about to sail direct for Bombay. An invading force has been sitting for some time, and medical certificates have been granted to several officers. A considerable number of men are to be landed and sent to Calcutta, with the view of being exchanged by the coast there, and discharged as unfit for service. I dare say sixty men might be selected from the canteenman's mess, who will never again be fit for service, without including those who are dying in hospital. The Surgeons say, that there are at least thirty or forty of these poor fellows in such a hopeless state, that removal on boardship would now be of no service to them. It is not yet settled, what ships or how many are to take invalids; but one is talked of for Calcutta, and two for Manila. Seldom have regiments been in the lamentable state that those now at Chusan are in, especially the 26th. In all alone, there are 550 men sick, 80 buried, many dying, and more still utterly disabled. Still the authorities are only now talking of doing what ought to have been done weeks, if not months, ago. Certainly, there has been great sacrifice of life here, which might have been avoided by merely making use of ships that have been lying idle in harbour. There is a grant consent to be held to day, a meeting having been called by the Admiral of all the big-wigs and heads of departments in Chusan. It is to be hoped, that some decisive measures will be adopted—either to abandon this infernal island before the Military force is annihilated, or at least to send a large number of men to Manila, for a few weeks, to try the effect of a change of climate. It is said, that only the Isabella, Robertson and the Medusa, the two smallest transports, will be employed on this service; but this is too ridiculous for belief, for there are five or six large ships engaged. The Defiance, it is supposed, will carry invalids to Calcutta, but it is impossible, that she can contain them all. It has been in contemplation to form outposts on the island, and Col. Montgomery has been employed in selecting convenient stations. This might easily have been done some time ago, but there are so few effective men now, that the force cannot well be divided. If outposts are formed, it will probably be by the 18th Reg.

We hold the city of Tientsin by rather a frail tenure. It might be set on fire, on any dark night, in twenty different places at once, without a chance of the incen- fires being detected. There cannot be a doubt, that there are many conspirators in the city, who, having no property to lose, would willingly engage in such an act, on receiving the order from a mindless. There are patrols every night on the watch, but this must be more for the purpose of giving timely notice of a fire, than to prevent its occurrence; for, if he had double the number of men in the city, the Chinese might set it on fire every night for a week, if they were so inclined. The houses are almost entirely composed of wood, and in the event of a fire, we might think ourselves fortunate, if we escaped with our sick, ammunition, and provisions. The removal of the troops into the city has not been productive of further benefit than affording protection from the cold (which we now begin to feel,) and rendering the sick more comfortable or rather less uncomfortable, than they were in tents. The officers have been much more unobtrusively removed into the town as many as three and four unfortunate soldiers, living in the same house, being frequently attacked by the fashionable complaints at the same time. A man thinks himself extremely fortunate in England, if he and his servant have the agree on alternate days, and only grumbles when both are laid up together. The same agree is rather an awkward custom, but affords some amusement by the punks he plays. A friend of mine was occupied a whole morning in making some uncommonly fine soup for his dinner—just as it was ready his teeth began to chatter, and he was obliged to call in a friend to do the needful for the soup. It is too hard to laugh at so serious a subject, but we have nothing to laugh at but our miseries. If, had it we did not do so, we should lack amusement in Chusan.

What need we fiddles, funny songs, or sherry ?

While our own miseries can make us merry

Fiddles there are none attached to the expedition excepting one belonging to Lord Jocelyn, which he has taken away with him. No one sings "funny songs" here. We have all lost our voices—(not certainly, "from hollaring and singing of anthems," but from commiseration bread which sticks in our throats)—and sherry is twenty dollars per dozen. I trust however, that we shall all be at Calcutta again ere long, after having achieved all the objects of the expedition and, above all, secured a regular supply of their favorite beverage to the tea-drinking anility of old England. Then shall we have some consolation for the miseries of our sojourn here. For six months at least, we shall be privileged to draw the long bow, and tell long stories without interruption. I'll tell thee, Dirk, where I have been,

Where I the sweet things have seen,

O! things beyond compare!

The following advertisements put forth by Mr. James Innes, we have extracted from the Canton Register of the 3d of November, with which we were favored by a friend. Captain Elliot will do well not to test in person the correctness of the aim of Mr. Innes's "well practised rifle."

ADVERTISEMENT.—A threat in the Blue Book, held out by Captain Elliot to Viscount Palmerston (page 421), appears to me to involve the liberty of the subject, and as I am named, I feel it my duty to state the threat, and how it would most assuredly have been met.

"Whether he does so or not is matter which will need further interference or not as his conduct once affects the general safety of his own. But I have long since determined to incur the responsibility of apprehending his person, whenever I see reason to think, that his defiance of the authority of the Chinese government is dangerous to the safety of the community and public interests under my superintendence, and I depend, with confidence, on the support of H. M.'s government in all such emergencies."

Now any party coming to my mind for such a purpose, the officer leading the party (if possible, Captain Elliot himself) would have been shot through the head or heart, by a well practised rifle, and then the party allowed to perform their last duty.

On the contrary, if an order from the constituted authority, the Governor of Macao, was produced, instant obedience to it would have been granted, however procured by false pretences.

A British subject
JAMES INNES.

Macao, October 25th, 1840.

Egypt.

The following items of intelligence have been received from Egypt during the week.—War is raging in Egypt but the Overland communication has not been stopped by Mohammed Ali, though Admiral Sir John Lewis has detained the Mails at Malta. News has been received from Bagdad in 41 days, which states that the combined English and Austrian fleets, including 7 steamers, had taken Beyrout and Latakia on the coast of Syria, captured 8 or 10 Egyptian vessels of war, and St. Jean d'Acre, and had proceeded to join the naval forces at Alexandria, to enforce a rigid blockade. From Damascus, we learn, that on the 19th of September, 2 of the persecuted Jews had died in prison from ill treatment. On the 1st of October, however, 5 others who had been incarcerated were released. Since then Mr. Waring, the English Consul, had been put in confinement on the news of the taking of Beyrout arriving there, and the Syria mails had been stopped.

The mail stopped, by Sir John Lewis, at Malta, is to come forward via Tichrout and the Persian Gulf.

The Consuls Genl. of the four powers have left Alexandria and are on board the Squadron off the coast of Syria, Mohammed Ali was persuaded to defer for a time the sending his fleet to sea, to M. Cockeist the French Consul General.

The British Merchants are all at Alexandria under special protection from the Pacha and even Mr. Larkins the B. Consul had not left.

Some of the passengers who arrived from England with the mails to Malta came on to Alexandria, and were allowed to pass on through Egypt to Suez, by Mohammed Ali who is described as being still willing to afford every facility to the passage of the Indian Mails.

The Allied Forces have got possession of the whole coast of Syria. Ibrahim Pacha and Suliman Pacha had retreated.

Mohammed Ali has been formally deposed by the Sultan.

Alexandria was blockaded on the 6th October, but noon the remonstrance of the British Merchants and the Foreign Consul General's and Consuls, the blockade was postponed to the 14th; but on the 21st it was enforced with all rigour.

On the 25th of October a Steamer had reached Alexandria with a declaration from the French Government that that nation was preparing to give every assistance to Mohammed Ali.

Ibrahim Pacha was said to have been totally defeated in two battles and was obliged to fly alone on foot for his life.

An express of December 15, from Bombay, announces the arrival of the Victoria from the Red Sea, with the following important intelligence from Vixardix, under date November 19, from a source of which much reliance may be placed.

Mahomed Ali had, for some time, shown symptoms of dissatisfaction with the prospect of his affairs, on account particularly of the absence of the collective support on which he seems to have relied from France. On the 6th of November, he openly expressed this feeling in public Divan. On the next day, he received the intelligence of the fall after a bombardment of six hours, by the English of the important Fortress of St. Jean d'Acre, which added to his disquiet, and a courier was immediately despatched to Ibrahim Pacha directing him to evacuate the whole of Syria. This intention was shortly afterwards announced by Mahomed Ali, of giving up the Turkish Fleet, and complying with all the demands of the Sultan, on his being assured of continuance in the Government of Egypt.

The disposable crew of the ship and the artillerymen of the arsenal, were then incessantly occupied in dismantling the Fleet, which had been prepared to proceed to sea for employment against the naval forces of the Allies; on the completion of which, it is said, they are intended, in case of necessity, to man the batteries on shore, that all intention of resistance is described as being abandoned, unless Egypt itself should be attacked.

The arrival of a French Post office Steamer on the 15th of Novr., with the intelligence of a change of ministry in France (no further particulars are given in the latter) confirmed Mahomed Ali in his previous resolution.

The letter concludes with these words.

"The Oriental Steam Ship, arrived yesterday, November 18, and was readily admitted into Port. Mahomed Ali affording every facility for getting the Mails on shore, and appointing persons to escort them to Suez; and he has this evening reiterated his previous assurances, that in the event of either war or peace, every facility will continue to be given for the transmission of the Indian Mails through Egypt."

This Express from Bombay has brought only the letter of which the substance has been given above. The light packet may probably have passed the heavier express on the road.

Camp near Keel November 14, 1859.
To the right Honorable Lord ALBANY, G. G. S.
Governor General of India, &c. &c. &c.

My Lord.—In obedience to the joint instructions furnished to me by his excellency the commander in chief of the army of the Indus, and the E. Vay and Minister to his majesty Shah Shooja, under date C. S. 17th September 1859, despatching to me the story of deposing Mehrab Khan of Kelat, in consequence of the avowed hostility of that chief to the British nation during the present campaign, I have the honor to report that on my arrival at Quetta on the 21st ultimo, I communicated with Captain Bann, the political agent in Shool, and arranged with him the best means of giving effect to the orders I had received.

In consequence of the want of public carriers and the limited quantity of commissariat supplies at Quetta as well as the reported want of forage on the route to Kelat, I was obliged to dispatch to Kutch Gondawa, the whole of the cavalry and the greater portion of the artillery, taking with me only the troops noted in the margin, and leaving Quetta on the 3d instant.

Native Infantry
Bombay Engineers,

During the march the communication received from Mehrab Khan were so far from agreeing to the terms offered but he threatened resistance if the troops approached his capital. I therefore proceeded and I found at the village of Gunnee within eight miles of Kelat on the 12th instant.

As I found from the following particulars, a body of horse were gathered on the night of the 10th, which continued firing on the advance of guard commanded by Major Pennycook, he says 17th regiment, as the column advanced and the skirmishers then then commenced firing we were in sight of Kelat, rather less than a mile distant.

I now discovered that three heights on the north-west face of the fort in position to the north were covered with artillery with 3 guns, in position pointed by small parties of the Captain Pitt chief engineer immediately transmitted and having reported that nothing could be done until those heights were in our possession I directed some of our strongest troops to attack them and I particularly ordering the 1st with the fugitives to the gate in the southern face was accordingly ordered to keep up the communication between the fort and the heights.

To effect this object I detached a company from each of the European regiments from the advanced guard with Major Pennycook's 17th's regiment for the purpose of occupying the heights and embankments to the north-east of the fort, and two more companies the plan and orders being to take the fort and citadel, at the same time I ordered three companies under their respective commanders, officers Major and Captains of the Queen's Lancers and Colonel Leakey, his majesty's 17th regiment and Major Western 1st Bengal native infantry, the whole under the command of Brigadier Haumez, the commander of the regiment to follow three columns of assault under my own direction to move in support.

A hill being allotted to each column, Brigadier Stevenson commanding the artillery moved quickly forward in front towards the base of the heights, and when within the required range opened fire upon the infantry and guns, under cover of which the columns moved steadily on and commenced the ascent for the purpose of carrying the heights exposed to the fire of the enemy's guns, which had commenced while the columns of attack were forming.

Before the columns reached their respective summits of the hills, the enemy, overpowered by the superior and well directed fire of our artillery, had abandoned them, attempting to carry off the guns but which they were unable to do, at this moment, it appearing to me the opportunity offered for the troops to get in with the fugitives and if possible gain possession of the gate of the Fortress I detached orders to the Queen's royal and his majesty's 17th regiment to make a rush from the heights for this purpose, following myself to the summit of the nearest to observe the

GENERAL REGISTER.

Yours: at this moment the four companies on my left which had been detached to the gardens and plain, seeing the chance that offered of striking the hill moved rapidly forward from their respective points towards the gateway under a heavy and well-directed fire from the walls of the fort and citadel, which were thrown by the enemy.

The rain having been closed before the troops moving towards it could effect the descent of the hill, the position strengthened by the enemy driven from the heights, they were compelled to enter themselves as far as practicable behind some walls and ruined buildings to the right and left of it while Brigadier Stevenson having ascended the heights with the artillery opened two guns under the command of Lieut Forster, Bombay horse artillery, upon the defences above the gate and its vicinity, while the fire of two others commanded by Lieut Major Shah's artillery, was directed against the gate itself. The remaining two, with Lieutenant Creed, being sent round to the road on the left leading direct up to the gate, when within 200 to two hundred yards commenced fire for the purpose of compelling it blowing it open, and after a few rounds they succeeded in knocking in one of the gates; on observing this I rode down the hill towards the gate, pointing to it, then by announcing to the Troops it was open they instantly rose from their cover and rushed in, thus under the command of Major Pennycuik being the nearest, were the first to gain the gate which by that officer, the whole of the storming columns from the three regiments rapidly following and gaining an entrance as quick as it was possible to do so, under a heavy fire from the walls and from the interior the enemy making a most gallant and determined resistance, disputing every foot of ground up to the walls of the inner citadel.

At this time I directed the reserve column to be brought near the gate and within one company of the 17th regiment under Captain Darby to the western side of the Fort, followed by a portion of the 31st Bengal native infantry commanded by Major Western, conducted by Captain Outram, acting as my extra Aide-de-camp for the purpose of securing the heights under which the southern wall is situated and intercepting any of the garrison escaping from that side, having driven off the enemy from the heights above, the united detachments then descended to the gate of the port battery and forced it open before the garrison (who closed it as they saw the troops approach) had time to secure it.

When the party was detached by the western face I also sent two companies from the reserve of the 17th under Major Deahong, and two guns of the Shah's artillery under the command of Lieut Creed, Bombay artillery, by the Eastern to the Southern face for the purpose of blowing open the gate above alluded to, had it been necessary, as well as the gate of the inner citadel, the Infantry joining the other detachments making their way through the town in the direction of the Citadel.

After some delay the troops that held possession of the town at length succeeded in forcing an entrance into the citadel, where a desperate resistance was made by Mirab Khan at the head of his people, he himself with many of his principal chiefs being killed sword in hand, several others however kept up a fire upon our Troops from detached buildings difficult of access, and it was not until late in the afternoon, those that survived were induced to surrender themselves up on a promise of their lives being spared.

From every account, I have reason to believe the garrison consisted of upwards of two thousand fighting men, and that the son of Mirab Khan had been expected to join him from Nowaky with a further re-inforcement, the expected return will show the strength of the force under my command, present at the capture.

The defence of the fort as in the case of Cawnpore, far exceeded in strength what I had been led to suppose from previous report, and the towering height of the inner citadel was most formidable both in appearance and reality.

I lament to say that the loss of killed and wounded on our side has been severe, as will be seen by the accompanying return, that on the part of the enemy must have been great, but the exact number I have not been able to ascertain, several hundreds of prisoners were taken from whom the Political Agent has selected those he considers it necessary for the present to retain in confinement, the remainder have been liberated.

It is quite impossible for me sufficiently to express my admiration of the gallant and steady conduct of the officers and men upon this occasion, but the fact of less than an hour having elapsed from the formation of the columns for the attack to the period of the troops being within the fort, and this performed in the open day and in the face of an enemy so very superior in numbers, and so perfectly prepared for resistance, will I trust convince your Lordship how deserving the officers and troops are of my warmest thanks, and of the highest praise that can be bestowed.

To Brigadier Braungardt, commanding the storming column my best thanks are due, and he reports that Captain Willie acting assistant adjutant general, and Captain Gifford his Aide de Camp, ably assisted him and zealously performed their duties, also to Brigadier Stevenson commanding the battery, and Lieutenants Forster and Cowper, respectively in charge of the Bombay and Shah's artillery. I feel greatly indebted for the steady and scientific manner in which the service of dislodging the enemy from the heights and afterwards effecting an entrance into the fort, was performed. The benefit has brought to my notice the assistance received from Captain Mighlin his brigade major, Lieutenant Woodman, his aide de camp, and Lieutenant Creed, when in Battery yesterday.

To Lieutenant Colonel Croker, commanding her majesty's 17th regiment, Major Carruthers, commanding the Queen's royal, Major Western, commanding the Bengal 31st native infantry, I feel highly indebted for the manner in which they conducted their respective columns to the attack of the heights and afterwards to the assault of the town, as well as to Major Pennycuik of the 17th, who led the advance guard companies to the same point.

To Captain Peat, chief engineer, and to the officers and men of the engineer corps, my acknowledgments are due—to Major Neil Campbell, acting quarter master general of the Bombay army, to Captain Hogart, acting deputy adjutant general, and to Lieutenant Ramsay, acting assistant quarter master general my best thanks are due for the able assistance afforded me by their services.

It is with much pleasure I take this opportunity of acknowledging my obligations to Major Campbell for relieving me from the necessity of returning by the route by which the army advanced to Cabool which being entirely exhausted must have subjected the troops to great privations and the prospect to absolute starvation; the quarter master general took upon himself the responsibility of leading my column through the heart of the Ghilzes and Koroker countries, never hitherto traversed by Europeans, by which our route was considerably shortened, a sufficient obtained, and great additions made to our geographical knowledge of the country, besides great political advantages obtained in peaceably settling those districts.

To my Aide-de Camp, Captain Robinson, and Lieutenant Halket, as well as to Captain Outram, who volunteered his services on my personal staff, I received the utmost assistance, and to the latter officers I feel greatly indebted for the zeal and ability with which he has performed various duties that I have required of him upon other occasions as well as the present.

It is with much satisfaction I am able to state that the utmost cordiality has existed between the political authorities and myself, and the great assistance I have derived from Captain Bean in obtaining supplies.

After allowing time to make the necessary arrangements for continuing my march, I shall descend into Cashi Gumbaz by the Moons Pass, having received a favorable report of the practicability of taking guns that way.

I have deputed Captain Outram to take a duplicate of the despatch to the Hon'ble the Governor of Bombay, by the direct route from hence to Sonmaceo Bandar, the practicability or otherwise of which for the passage of troops, I consider it no object of importance to ascertain.

I have, &c.

Secret Department, Camp Panipat, November 18, 1839—Intelligence was this day received of the arrival, within the Peshawar territory, of His Excellency Lieutenant General Sir John Keane, K. C. B. and G. C. B., Commander in Chief of the army of the India, with a portion of that force on its return to the British Provinces.—The military operations under the direction of His Excellency having now been brought to a close, the Right Honble the Governor General has, on the part of the Government of India, to acquit himself of the gratifying duty of offering publicly his warmest thanks to His Excellency, and to the officers and men who have served under his command, for the soldier like spirit and conduct of all ranks, throughout the late campaign, and he again cordially congratulates them on the attainment of the great objects of mutual security and honour, for which the expedition was undertaken.

The plans of aggression, by which the British Empire in India was dangerously threatened, have, under Providence, been arrested—the Chiefs of Caboul and Candahar, who had joined in hostile designs against us, have been deprived of power, and the territories which they ruled, have been restored to the Government of a friendly monarch. The Amerees of Scinde have acknowledged the supremacy of the British Government, and placed themselves under its protection.—Their country will now be an network of defence, and the satisfaction of the Indus within their dominions, exempt from all duties, has been opened to commercial enterprise. With the Allied Government of the Sikhs the closest harmony has been maintained—and on the side of Herat, the British Alliance has been cordial, and a good understanding with a view to common safety, has been established with that power.

For these important results, the Governor General is proud to express the acknowledgments of the Government to the Army of the Indus, which alike by its valour, its discipline and cheerfulness under hard-labour and privations, and its satisfactory conduct to the inhabitants of the countries through which it passed, has earned respect for the British name, and has manifested, in Central Asia, a just impression of British energy and resources.

The Native and European soldiers have vied with each other in effect and endurance. A march of extraordinary length, through difficult and untried countries, has been within a few months successfully accomplished, and in the capture of the one strong-hold where resistance was attempted, a trophy of victory has been won, which will add a fresh lustre to the reputation of the Armies of India.

To Lieutenant General Sir John Keane, the commander in chief of the army, the Governor General would particularly declare his thanks for his direction of these honourable achievements—he would especially acknowledge the marked forbearance, and just appreciation of the views of the Government, which guided His Excellency in his intercourse with the Amerees of Scinde. His faith in the Government to be under the deepest obligations to His Excellency for the unshaken firmness of purpose with which he throughout the whole course of the operations, obstacles and discouragements were disregarded, and the prescribed objects of policy were pursued, and above all he would warmly applaud the decisive judgment with which the attack upon the fortress of Ghuznee was planned, and its capture effected—nor would he omit to remark upon that spirit of perfect co-operation with which His Excellency gave all support to the Political authorities with whom he was associated. Mr. Macnaghten, the envoy and Minister at the Court of Shah Shouja Ool Noor, and Colonel Pattinson, the resident in Scinde, have been chiefly enabled by the cordial good understanding which has throughout subsisted between them and His Excellency, to render the important services by which they have entitled themselves to the high appreciation of the Government, and His Lordship has much pleasure in noticing the feelings of satisfaction with which His Excellency regarded the valuable services of Lieutenant Colonel Sir Alexander Burnes who was politically attached to him in the advance upon Ghuznee.

The Governor General would follow His Excellency the commander in chief in acknowledging the manner in which Lieutenant Sir Willoughby Cotton, K. C. B. and K. C. I., exercised his command of the Bengal division throughout the campaign, and supported the honour of his country on the 31st July, and His Lordship would also offer the thanks of the Government to Major General Wilshire, C. B. commanding the 2d Infantry division, to Major General Thackwell, C. B. and K. C. I. commanding the cavalry division, to Brigadier Roberts, commanding the 1st Infantry Brigade, to Brigadier Stevenson commanding the artillery of the army, to Brigadier Scott commanding the Bombay cavalry brigade, and to Brigadier Perce, upon whom on the lamented death of the late Brigadier Arnold devolved the command of the Bengal cavalry brigade, as well as to the commanders of corps and detachments, with the officers and men under their respective commands, and to the Officers at the head of the several departments, with all of whom His Excellency the commander in chief has expressed his high satisfaction.

To Brigadier Bala, C. B., already honourably distinguished in the annals of Indian Warfare, who commanded the storming party at Ghuznee, to Lieutenant Colonel Denie, C. B., who led the advance on the same occasion, and to Captain George Thomson, of the Bengal Engineers, whose services in the capture of that fortress have been noticed in marked terms of commendation by His Excellency the commander in chief, and to Captain Peat, of the Bombay Engineers, and the other officers and men of the Bombay and Bengal Engineers under their command, the Governor General would especially tender the expression of his admiration of the gallantry and valour which they respectively displayed, in the execution of the important duties confided to them in that memorable operation.

In testimony of the services of the army of the Indus, the Governor General is pleased to resolve, that all the corps, European and native, in the service of the East India Company, which proceeded beyond the Bolan Pass, shall have on their regimental colours the word "Afghanistan," and such of them, as were employed in the reduction of the fortress of that name, the word "Ghuznee" in addition.

In behalf of the Queen's regiments, the Governor General will recommend to Her Majesty, through the proper channel, that the same distinction may be granted to them.

The Governor General would here notice with approbation the praiseworthy conduct during this expedition of the officers and men attached to the disciplined force of His Majesty Shah Shouja Ool Noor. His force was newly raised, and opportunities had not been afforded for its perfect organisation and instruction. Yet it shared honourably in the labours and difficulties of the campaign, and it had the good fortune, in repelling an attack made by the enemy in force on the day prior to the storming of Ghuznee, to be enabled to give promise of the excellent services which may hereafter be expected from it.

His Lordship has also much satisfaction in adding that the best acknowledgments of the Government are due to Lieutenant Colonel Wade, who was employed upon the Peshawar frontier, and who, gallantly supported by the officers and men of all ranks under him, and seconded by the cordial aid of the Sikh Government—an aid the more honourable because rendered at a painful crisis of its affairs,—opened the Khyber pass and overthrew the authority of the enemy in that quarter at the moment when the advance of the forces of the Shahzadah Tymeer could most conduce to the success of the general operations.

By command of the right honourable the Governor General of India.

T H MADDOCK,

Offy Secy. to the Govt. of India, with the Govr Genl

By order of the Commander of the Forces,

J. R. LUMLEY, Major-General,

Adjutant General of the Army,

BY THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.

Head quarters, Calcutta, December 7, 1840.—The commander in chief, being now for the third time enrolled in the Bengal army, cannot refrain from expressing the pains and satisfaction which he feels in being placed at the head of a body of Europeans well known to him whose labours he has occasionally shared, and whose high military qualities he has long respected and admired.

His excellency is indebted to the Bengal army for the proud eminence to which he has been thus early and most unexpectedly raised. To their discipline and valor he certainly owes his elevation. If now the soldiers of this army wish that he should remain at the head of his troops—he can materially contribute to that result, by displaying the qualities which he has and adorn the positions in which they may be placed. In peace, by a cheerful submission to the laws by a willing obedience to the rules of the service, and to the authority to every superior, whether a major general, or a non-com, and by an attentive and patient endurance at drill, of the field movements, and practices in ball firing by which great efforts are commonly produced, and in which his high efficiency is never attained without much reputation in war—by a steady enduring zeal, by a firm and willing obedience. When on duty, by vigilance unceasing by implicit confidence in their officers, and when the enemy may be at length approached, by resolution in gallantry and devotion in the state. It was by these qualities that the victories of Lake and of Chatterton were gained,

Sir J Nicolls will ever give a cheerful attention to the comfort and welfare of the Army as he has always done to their habits and ceremonies, even their prejudices - he will not, however, make any compromise with insubordination or disloyalty.

The commander in chief does not address himself to the Europeans in other ways this occasion—he knows what they can do when real energy is called for, or great intelligence required. Then he sends a few cables with the demand.

As, however, eight or ten years generally elapse before a candidate can expect to be placed in any common or a situation likely to lead to distinction, the Exchequer repeatedly reminds him to remember that the two annuities to his tutor are a complete knowledge, and easy colloquialness in the language of their men—and afterwards of persons in their sphere to higher positions. A perfect knowledge of their duty as company officers, is involving not only a perfect mastery of their own language, but a perfect acquaintance with the character of every man in their respective companies.

The record in this case often was questioned when it flowed with gas-sandy and lumens under the guidance of judgment, mindfully lead to reward and honor.

This order is to be translated (with the exception of the three preceding paragraphs) into the D'varagree language to every native (and company) at two successive parades, not to be kept by each as a record during his excellency's command.

The following officers are appointed to his excellency's personal staff:

Brevet Captain C. C. Chan, of the 55th regiment N. I., to be Prison Interceptor

Captain F E A Nipleton, of the 6th regiment N I to be Aide de Camp

Assistant Surgeon J. S. Logan, M. D., to be surgeon

His excellency Lieutenant General Sir Jasper Nicolls K C B is pleased to direct, that all reports, returns, and correspondence.

tative to the Hon'ble Community, shall be addressed to the assistant adjutant general of the army at the presidency, and the arrival of the adjutant general of the army, at head quarters.

The adjutant general of the army will join head quarters, by water, forthwith.

The quartermaster general and other remaining heads of departments, assistants, and office establishments will march to Alton and thence to proceed by water to the presidency, without delay.

Commanding officers of regiments will report, confidentially through the military secretary, for the information of his excellency the commander in chief, one Captain and two subalterns, whom they consider fit to attend in every respect to his said appointment as they may already have held, either general or regimental, and what Native Languages they can read, write, and speak.

Their general character will, of course, be taken into consideration, and certainly not so exclusively those whose manner is kind and conciliating towards the negroes.

His excellency deems this essential, and will appoint no officer to the head of the army, who does not feel that it is, in part, his duty, while applying the strictest discipline, to use every means in his power for the benefit of the sepoys, and for the comfort of all Natives under his authority.

The Commander in chief directs that officers will discontinue the daily practice of wearing coloured clothes at any time of the day, after their morning exercise.

The uniform of his corps, or of his staff appointment, full dress or undress, according to the place and duty, should be constantly worn, when not of their own banners or lines.

The honor of wearing it is most anxiously sought for by those people of our countrymen, and it should not be undervalued.

His excellency dispenses with the wearing of the sword in the Evening Ride.

Officers holding appointments of an unmix'd civil nature, are not required to conform to these rules.

In Bank Shares there has not been much doing, the value of Union Bank has fallen and stands at 300 to 310 rupees premium. It is possible the value will still higher as there are orders in town for investments in them.

Money, as was anticipated has become scarce and difficult to be had except at a high rate of interest. Ten per cent is common, twelve has been asked, but we have heard of no operations at that rate.

The estate of Ferguson and Co. is about to declare another dividend of two company's rupees per cent of 1000000, about the end of March next.

The Bank rates of discount remain unaltered.

BY THE DEPUTY-GOVERNOR

GENERAL DEPARTMENT, JANUARY, 1839.—Mr G. M. Berford reported his arrival as a writer on the Bengal establishment on the 3d instant.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT, DECEMBER 18, 1839.—The honorable the Deputy Governor of Bengal is pleased to grant to Mr. C. W. Fagan, from the 29th instant, one month's leave of absence in extension of the leave granted to him by the Right Honorable the Governor General for the North Western Provinces, on the 12th October last.

December 18.—Notice is hereby given that the Salaries and allowances of the civil and marine departments for December, instant, will be discharged by the exchequer and marine pay master, respectively, on or after Wednesday the 15th proximo.

The leave of absence granted to Mr George Alexander on the 30th October last, for six weeks, is extended from the 15th instant to the 1st proximo, or until the sailing of the "Futty Salaam," in which vessel he has taken his passage.

The honorable the Deputy Governor of Bengal has the satisfaction in publishing for general information, the following correspondence regarding the conditions and privileges under which officers of the Indian army or navy, in common with officers of her majesty's service are permitted to settle in her majesty's colonies of New South Wales, that of South Australia excepted.

By order of the honorable the Deputy Governor of Bengal.

H. T. PRINSEP, secy to the govt. of India

JAMES MELVILLE, Esq., East India House.

Sir,—I am directed by the Marquis of Normanby to transmit to you, for the information of the chairman and Court of Directors of the East India Company, the copy of a despatch of the 4th March, 1839, from the Governor of New South Wales requesting to be informed whether a remission in the purchase of land in that colony extends to officers of the company's late maritime service, and I am to request that you will state to the Court of Directors that H. M. Government, in acceding to the application of the court, for granting this indulgence to officers of the "Indian navy" intended to supply only to that portion of the navy which might be considered as analogous to the royal navy, and which would appear to be more properly designated as the "Bombay marine."

Lord Normanby therefore, proposes to convey instructions to this effect to the Governor for New South Wales.

With reference to the question proposed in the 3d paragraph of the Governor's despatch, the Court of Directors will perceive by the 5th section of the accompanying regulations that officers of the army or navy, who have quitted the service for the express purpose of settling in the colonies, are required to furnish the Governor with a certificate to that effect within a specified time.

This rule must of course apply to the Company's officers.

I am, &c.,

Executive Government House, Sydney, 11th March, 1839.

The Right Hon'ble LORD GLENELG, &c. &c.

MY LORD,—With reference to your Lordship's despatch of the 29th March 1837, No. 353, which grants to officers of the East India Company's maritime service, the same advantages in the Australian colonies, as are allowed to officers of the royal navy, I beg leave to report to your Lordship, that the following question have occurred in this colony in settling the claims of officers under these Regulations, and to request your Lordship's decision thereon.

1st Whether it be the intention of her majesty's Government to confer these advantages to the small body of East India officers, who belong to what is called the Bombay marine, and who are supposed to be engaged in services analogous to those of the royal navy, or to extend them to the whole body of officers, lately engaged in the East India Company's commercial service about 2ndly. In the latter case the way in which the relative ranks for officers are to be settled, and whether an officer who may have obtained the rank of commander of an Indiaman is to date his services from the time of his first embarkation or from that of his being rated either as a mate or as a commander.

3rdly Whether officers are required to make their applications within any limited period, from the time of their quitting the service as is the case with military officers in the Queen's service, who are required, not only to show that they left the army for the purpose of becoming settlers, but also to arrive in the colony within a year from the time of their having parted with their commissions.

The case on which these questions have arisen is that of Captain Edward Lambert Adams's claims to rank as a lieutenant colonel from the time at which he was sworn in to the command of a vessel, namely the 2d October 1822, but who first went to sea on the 27th March 1815.

I should observe that Captain Adams has been allowed, subject however to your Lordship's approval, a remission of £250 being that of a field officer of more than 22, but less than 25 years service 22d June, 1839. I enclose copies of the document 19th January, 1839, on which the claim of Captain Adams has been admitted.

Other claims of the same nature or from officers of the same service will in all probability, be shortly received, and it is on this account that I am desirous of being honored with your Lordship's commands.

I have, &c.

East India House, 23d June, 1839.

Gentlemen,—In reply to your letter of the 9th instant, requesting a certificate of the service of Captain Adams, made a commander in the Company's maritime service, I am commanded by the Court of Directors to state that Captain Edward Lambert Adams was first employed in the maritime service of the East India Company as midshipman on the 27th March 1815, that he performed seven voyages in that service in various grades, and succeeded to the rank of Commander in the year 1822, having been sworn as commander of the Kellie Castle on the 2d of October in that year. Captain Adams was granted a pension on the 5th October 1836, as compensation for loss of employment under the East India Company, in common with other commanders in accordance with the provisions of Act 3 and 4 William IV. Cap 85 Sec. 7.

I am, &c.

NEW SOUTH WALES.—To Wit

Edward Lambert Adams late commander in the honorable East India Company's maritime service, appeared before me, one of her majesty's justices of the peace for the colony of New South Wales, and made oath and said that his comparative rank in India as a commander with officers of her majesty's force on that station is that of lieutenant colonel from the date he was sworn in.

Information for the use of military and naval officers proposing to settle in the Australian colonies

1. Military and naval officers cannot receive free grants of land, but, in buying freehold land, they will be allowed a remission of the purchase money, according to the undermentioned scale:—

Field officers of 25 years' service and upwards, in the whole £700
Field officers of 20 years' service and less than 25, in the whole 250

GENERAL REGISTER.

Field officers of less than 20 years' service, in the whole... 200
 Captains of 20 years' service and upwards, in the whole... 300
 Captains of less than 20 years' service, in the whole... 150
 Subalterns of 20 years' service and upwards, in the whole... 150
 Subalterns of less than 20 years' service in the whole... 100

Regimental staff officers and medical officers of the army and navy will be deemed to come within the benefit of this rule, and also retired officers of the East India Company's service, both navy and military, on producing a certificate of their rank and length of service signed by competent authorities.

2. Officers of the army or navy, who propose to proceed to the colonies in order to take advantage of this indulgence, should provide the vessels with certificates from the office of the general commandant in chief of the master general and Board of Ordnance or of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, showing that their emigration has been sanctioned, and stating exactly their rank and length of service. No document from the office of the Secretary of State is necessary.

3. Officers on half-pay, residing in the colony where they propose to settle, may be admitted to the privileges of military and naval settlers, without referring to this country for testimonials provided they can satisfy the Governor that there is no objection to their being allowed the indulgence, and that their return to their rank and length of service is accurate, and provided if they belong to the navy, that they produce their letter of leave of absence from the Admiralty.

4. Military chaplains, commissariat officers and officers of any of the civil departments connected with the Army, cannot be allowed any privileges in the acquisition of crown land. Purveyance chaplains, undischarged, warrant officers of every description, and officers of any of the civil departments connected with the navy must also be considered as not qualified for these privileges, although members of these classes may have been admitted formerly and under a different state of circumstances.

5. Gentlemen who have ceased to belong to her majesty's service cannot be allowed the advantages which they were entitled while in the army or navy. It is not, however, proposed to object by this rule officers who desire to quit the service for the express purpose of settling in the colonies. It is only required, that when they resign their commissions, they should apply for a certificate from the general commandant in chief, or from the master general of the Ordnance, or from the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, that they do so with the view of emigrating, and such certificate, if produced to the Governor of any colony, with one year to run its date, but not otherwise, will be a sufficient warrant for allowing the bearer the same advantages as officers still in her majesty's service.

6. Medical officers of the army who have commuted their Half Pay, will be entitled to the same advantages in the purchase of land as subaltern officers who have sold their commissions for the purpose of emigrating.

7. Officers cannot be allowed advantages in the acquisition of land in any colony unless it be their intention to fix their residence in that colony. In order to ensure the observance of this rule, the title to lands obtained by officers who take advantage of the regulations existing in their favour will be withheld for two years from the date of sale.

Note. These regulations are not applicable to the colony of South Australia.

Downing Street, 1st August, 1839.

Information respecting the sale of crown lands in the Australian colonies.

1. Crown lands in New South Wales, Van Diemen's Land, and Western Australia, are disposed of only by sale at public auction in the colonies, at an upset price fixed by the Government.

2. On payment of the money a grant will be made in fee simple in the purchase at the nominal quit rent of a pepper-corn.

3. The land will generally be put up to sale in lots of one square mile or 640 acres.

4. Further details relating to the sale of the crown lands in the Australian colonies, must be procured at the office of the surveyor general in each respective province.

5. There are no crown lands in South Australia. Information respecting the sale of land in that province, may be procured at the office of the colonization commissioners, No. 6, Adelphi Terrace.

Sec. 5. When an application for a passport is made from the British colony of India, the applicant having been for some time afflicted with leprosy, the symptoms by which it is manifested, and which have existed as far as the applicant is concerned, and the necessity for his removal to some place other within the territory of India, in the East India Company's Colonies, or elsewhere, to be laid down in section 4, of the said Act, must be submitted to the Government of India. If satisfactory proof is made to the satisfaction of the Government of India, an application for an extension of the passport, if the passport is accompanied by a certificate from the medical officer by whom the applicant is attended, showing sufficient reason for the extension applied for, and such certificate is not disapproved and countersigned by a member of the medical board, the application will be rejected, leaving the applicant to the management of the East India Company, or other authority, as the case may be, to the required effect from the Government of India to the place of his temporary residence, or where he is apprehended such attendance and the period of his stay, and the certificate will be countersigned by the principal medical authority of the colony or country. When any of the medical authorities so neglected leave will be refused.

Sec. VI Civilian males above twenty years of age who are drafted into military service shall be entitled to the following benefits: In addition to the allowances provided for in the preceding articles, the following shall be granted: If the soldier receives 2 000 per month, one sixth for the first year and for the second year one-fourth. If the salary is not more than 2 000 per month, one eighth for the first year and one sixth for the second. But if the salary of office be not more than 2 000 per month no deduction shall be made for the first year, and if it be only one sixth more than the lowest rank deduction of a month would reduce the allowance below subsistence allowance, only the excess beyond 2 000 shall be deducted. For the second year the allowance shall become liable to the deduction of one eighth. An absent soldier shall in no case retain pay office or employment, nor be permitted to draw any portion of official salary for a longer period than two years, but a civil servant who may on account of sickness duly certified, obtain an extension of leave beyond two years will, if below the rank of a senior merchant be allowed to draw the subsistence allowance of a junior merchant, and if a senior merchant the subsistence allowance of his rank, but if he continue absent in disobedience of an order to return or without sufficient cause shown, his allowance shall be forfeited. The period of absence shall be computed from the date at which the absence shall, quit the limits of the territory subject to the presidency to which he may belong, to the date of his return within such limits, or if he shall proceed beyond such limits from the date of his embarking at any place or port in India; which is not more distant from his station than the ports of his own presidency, but if the place to which he shall proceed shall be within the territory subject to such presidency, his period of absence shall be computed from the date of his quitting his station to the date of his return thereto.

Sec VII Civil servants absent on leave on account of sickness, duly certified if they proceed to England without return air to their presidency, may as heretofore, apply to be admitted to furlough for the honorable seat of directors, and the furlough will in such cases take effect from the date of leaving their presidency, consequently the allowances of office that may have been drawn by themselves or by their agents, after their departure, must in that case be re-adjusted, and the difference refunded

Note.—This rule applies to all descriptions of leave on account of health excepting those granted under sec. XII.

Thus a second leave within the preliminary six days' leave allowed to a soldier who is compelled as forming part of the period of two years is taken before three years have elapsed must be treated from the first leave, and the duration will be made upon completion of the second term of service before a third leave can be granted. (Leave may be granted on the expiration of three years of consecutive service.)

Sec. VIII. Provided also, that if at any time the government of India shall deem it expedient to exclude any place or places within the limits above described from the operation of these provisions in the military department, it will draw the military pay and allowances of their rank while absent on leave under medical certificate, in the form and manner prescribed in general orders in the military department, and likewise one-half of the difference between such allowances and the civil pay of the officers to which they stand appointed.

Sec. X. Civil or Military servants holding civil appointments who may desire to avail themselves of the benefit of the Act 1 Vic. Cap. 47, and to draw their allowances while absent on account of sickness under the above rules, will be required to give security to such amount and form as may be fixed by the Government for the refund of any excess that may be drawn, either by the attendance in Europe on furlough or otherwise coming under retrenchment.

Sec. XI. The government of each presidency may grant to civil or military servants holding civil appointments leave of absence for one month in each year without deduction from the salaries and emoluments drawn by such servants. Such leave however will only be granted when the government is satisfied that no inconvenience will arise from the departure of the officer seeking it. No second leave can be granted under this rule until the completion of eleven months from the expiration of the last leave but servants not availing themselves of the indulgence in any one year may obtain, under the like conditions, leave of absence for two successive months, to commence at or after the expiration of 12 months from the termination of their former leave, and if two years elapse without enjoyment of the privilege, leave for three months may be likewise granted at the expiration of 31 months from the termination of the last preceding leave. But no leave shall be granted under this rule for any period exceeding three months. If an officer shall not return at the expiration of the period of leave granted him under this rule he shall if absent on private affairs, be subjected to the deduction of one third of his salary and allowances for the entire term of absence, and if he shall continue absent for more than one month beyond the term granted, his office shall become vacant. If this protracted absence be occasioned by sickness, the case must be determined under the provisions of Chapter II.

Sec. XII. The government of each presidency may on sufficient cause being shown, grant to a civil or military officer holding a civil office, special leave of absence on private affairs. Provided however that if any officer to whom such leave shall be granted shall be absent from his station for any period exceeding that to which under the last rule he may be entitled without deduction the absence of a civil servant shall for the period in excess draw no more than one-half of his salary and allowances, and if a military officer only so much of the salary and allowances of any civil office to which he may be appointed as added to the military pay and allowances which he may be entitled to draw shall equal one-half of the emoluments of such civil office. After an absence of three months (exclusive of any period which may be granted under Sec. XI) any office held by the absentee shall become vacant. No second leave under this rule can be granted until after the expiration of five years from the termination of the former leave, and the government is specially to report each case with all the attendant circumstances to the court of directors.

Officers not joining their station within the said periods respectively, shall forfeit their salary for the time delayed in excess of the above periods, and if such excess shall exceed one month, the office shall be vacated unless otherwise specially ordered by government.

Sec. XV. Upon the first appointment of any civil servant who shall be reported qualified for the public service by the examiners appointed by the government, to any civil situation, there shall be allowed for travelling expenses to the station an allowance at the rate of 8 annas per mile by the direct post road, according to the polymetrical table of the post office, the bill for which allowance will be presented by the civil auditor after the officer shall have joined the station. "Military Department
No 3 of 1839.

OUR GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA IN COUNCIL.

I forward to you the copy of a letter from lieutenant general Lord Ezzro Somerset, dated the 5th instant, and of the enclosures bringing to our notice that the arrangements are adopted and authorized for the promotion and employment of her majesty's lieutenant colonels serving in India who are senior as much to our officers promoted to be colonels and in general, have not been exactly under stood. It will be apparent on referring to our letters of the dates noted in the margin that those officers of her majesty's service who have been promoted to be local major generals are entitled to be appointed to brigades commands in Divisions whether their regiments may be serving in those divisions or not, "provided always that no interference be permitted with the commands on the general staff allotted to the major generals or brigadier generals and brigadiers of the Queen's and company forces respectively."

20th July, 1831, paras 1 to 9
10th Dec. 1837, para 8

2. In our letter of the 26th January 1836, we stated that, if it shall be found impracticable to make either of the arrangements then suggested for the employment of officers of her majesty's service who might be senior in a division to an officer appointed to the command of that division, it would "be indispensably necessary that the officers so situated should be called upon to condescend to the course they would have to take, and they must have the option of retiring from the country as they would do if promoted to be major generals on a general brevet and not appointed to serve on the staff." We have now to apprise you that local major generals so situated may continue to reside in India unaccompanied like major generals in our service, receiving the pay and halft of their regimental rank, but with the understanding that the brigade commands usually allotted to the Queen's service shall be given to the Queen's officers available for them at each presidency according to seniority.

We are, &c."

I, Adon, 11th September, 1839

With reference to the above letter the honorable the president in council is pleased to declare—

1 That local major generals of her majesty's service are eligible under the appointment of Government for employment as brigadiers, where Queen's troops are stationed, provided that such appointments shall not interfere with the commands on the general staff allotted to company's officers.

2 That the senior local major generals (of the regiments at each presidency) are in preference to be so employed.

3 That the brigadiers terms of serving shall be limited, as in the case of major general, to five years, and half the number of years which any officer may have served prior to the promulgation of this order, in command of a brigade, including any temporary command of a division, shall be deducted from that term.

4 That local major generals of her majesty's service who prefer remaining in India, in expectation of succeeding by seniority in brigade commands, may do so—selecting their residences within the presidency in which their regiments are serving, and receiving the pay and full halft of their regimental rank.

5 That local major generals of her majesty's service, must hereafter be held to be ineligible to retain the command of their respective regiments and must vacate their brigade commands on the departure of their regiments from India, or from one presidency to another.

6 That local major generals of her majesty's service who have served five years as brigadiers, are not, without special sanction, to remain in India in receipt of full halft, although the regiments in which they belong may still continue on the Indian Establishment.

7 That these rules shall have effect from the date of this general order.

PUBLIC DEPARTMENT, No. 37 of 1840
OUR GOVERNOR OF THE PROVINCE OF FORT WILLIAM IN BENGAL.

We forward No. in the packet copy of a letter, with enclosures, from James Stephens, Esq. of the colonial office, relating to the privileges with respect to settlement in certain colonies of the crown granted to officers of the Indian army and navy in connection with those of her majesty's service. You will observe that the advantages do not extend to the officers of our late mercantile maritime service, and it is further requisite to notice, that officers of the Indian army or navy, quitting the service for the express purpose of settling in the colonies, must provide themselves with a certificate of good conduct with the approval of section V. of the paper entitled "Information for the use of military and naval officers proposing to settle in the Australian colonies," and which must be produced to the governor of the colony, within one year of its date.

We are, &c.

London, 24th September, 1839.

Downing Street, 23d August, 1839

To JAMES MELVILLE, Esq., East India House.

Sir,—I am directed by the Marquis of Normandy to transmit to you, for the information of the Chairman and Court of Directors of the East India Company, the copy of a despatch from the Governor of New South Wales, requesting to be informed whether a remission in the purchase of land in that colony is to be allowed to officers of the company's maritime service, and I am to request that you will state to the court of directors that her majesty's government is in accordance to the application of the court for granting this indulgence to officers of the Indian navy, and also to apply only to that portion of the navy which might be considered as analogous to the royal navy, and which would appear to be more properly denominated the "Home navy."

I am, Sir, to request that you will convey instructions to this effect to the Governor of New South Wales. With reference to the question proposed in the 3d paragraph of the governor's despatch, the court of directors will persevere by the 9th section of the accompanying regulations, that officers of the army or navy who have quitted the service for the express purpose of settling in the colonies are required to furnish the Governor with a certificate of good conduct within a specified time.

This rule must of course apply to the company's officers.

I am, &c.

EXECUTIVE

Government House, Sydney 11th March, 1839

To THE RIGHT HONBLE LORD DUNSTON & Co. &c. My Lord,—With reference to your lordship's dispatch of the 24th March 1839, No. 282 which grants to officers of the East India Company's maritime service, the same advantages in the acquisition of land in the Australian colonies, as are allowed to officers of the royal navy, I beg leave to report to your lordship that the following question has occurred in this colony in settling the claims of officers under those regulations, and to request your lordship's decision thereon.

1st. Whether it be the intention of her majesty's government to confine these advantages to the small band of East India officers who belong to what is called the Bombay marine, and who are supposed to be engaged in services analogous to those of the royal navy, or to extend them to the whole body of officers lately engaged in the East India Company's commerce and service abroad.

2dly. In the latter case, the way in which the relative rank of officers are to be settled, and whether an officer who may have obtained the command of an Indiaman is to date his service from the time of his first embarkation or from that of his being rated, either as a mate or as commander.

3dly. Whether officers are to make their applications within any limited period from the time of their quitting the service, as is the case with military officers in the queen's service, who are required not only to show that they left the arms for the purpose of becoming settlers, but also to arrive in the colony, within a year from the time of their having parted with their commissions.

The case in which these questions have arisen, is that of Captain Edward Lambart Adams, claims to rank as a lieutenant colonel from the time at which he was sworn in to the command of a vessel, namely, the 2d October 1829, but who first went to sea on the 27th March 1835.

I should observe that Captain Adams has been allowed, subject however to your lordship's approval, a remission of £200 being that of a field officer of more than 20 but less than 25 years' service.

I enclose copies of the documents on which the claim of Captain Adams has been admitted.

Other claims of the same nature, or from officers of the same service, will in all probability be shortly received, and it is on this account that I am desirous of being informed with your lordship's commands.

I have, &c.

To ALFRED, CHRISTIANES KERR and Co.

GENTLEMEN,—In reply to your letter of the 8th instant, requesting a certificate of the service of Captain Adams, late a commander in the company's maritime service, I am commanded by the court of directors to state that Captain Edward Lambart Adams was first employed in the maritime service of the East India Company, and shipped on, on the 27th March 1835, that he performed service in consequence of a vacancy in the command of a vessel, and that he was promoted to the rank of commander in the season 1832, having been sworn in commander of the "Kallie Castle" on the 2d of October in that year. Captain Adams was granted a pension on the 1st October 1836, as compensation for loss of employment under the East India Company, in connection with other commutations, in accordance with the provisions of act 3 and 4 Wm. IV. cap. 86, Sec. 7.

I am, &c.

Regimental staff officers and medical officers of the army and navy will be deemed to come within the benefit of this rule, and also retired officers of the East India Company's service, both naval and military, on producing a certificate of their rank and length of service signed by competent authorities.

2. Officers of the army or navy who propose to proceed to the colonies in order to take advantage of these indulgences should provide themselves with certificates from the officers of the general commanding in Chief, or of the major general and head of ordinance, or of the lords commandants of the admiralty, stating that their emigration has been sanctioned, and stating exactly their rank and length of service. No document from the office of the secretary of state is necessary.

Officers on half pay, residing in the colony where they propose to settle, may be admitted to the privileges of full pay and naval settlers, without returning to this country for testimonials, provided they can satisfy the government that there is no objection to their being allowed the indulgence, and that their return of their rank and length of service is accurate, and provided, that if they belong to the navy, that they produce their letter of leave of absence from the admiralty.

5. Gentlemen who have claimed to belong to her majesty's service cannot be allowed the advantages to which they were entitled while in the army or navy. It is not however proposed to affect by this rule officers who desire to quit the service for the express purpose of settling in the colonies, it is only required, that when they resign their commissions, they should apply for a certificate from the general commanding in Chief, or from the major general of the ordinance, or from the lords commandants of the admiralty, that they do so with the view of emigrating, and such certificate, if produced to the governor of any colony, within one year from its date, but not otherwise will be a sufficient warrant for allowing the bearer the same advantages as officers still in her majesty's service.

6. Medical officers of the army who have commuted their half pay, will be entitled to the same advantages in the purchase of land as subaltern officers who have sold their commissions for the purpose of emigrating.

7. Officers cannot be allowed advantages in the acquisition of land in any colony unless they intend to reside in that colony. In order to ensure the observance of this rule, the sales of lands obtained by officers who take advantage of the remissions existing in their favor will be withdrawn for two years, from the date of sale.

REVIEW OF THE CALCUTTA MARKET.

(From the Bengal Hurkuru Price Current, March 7, 1840.)

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

INDIGO—Our market has been very quiet since the receipt of the Overland Mail,—nothing has been done for the European Markets, a purchase of A & Co 74 chests Belongberry at Rs. 22½ for the Gulf is the only transaction reported this week.

The arrival from France are discouraging, the consumption last year was of only 5,300 chests, and it was anticipated that this stock on the 15th July would consist of 12,000 chests to the same period last year. Owing to the state of things, the order which was received here for the purchase of 500 chests more, has been countermanded.

RAW SILK—A purchase of 25 mounds Jungbhypore for shipment to England is the only transaction of this article reported since our last, and prices remain without alteration.

SILK PUCK GOODS—Good Corbans are in demand and scarce—a parcel of 1,161 Pieces originally sent for shipment to England is the only purchase reported this week at steady price.

COTTON—A purchase of 100 Bales Jubbulpore is reported at our quota line.

SAFFRON—Operations for the English market are limited owing to the scarcity of the number—and there is hardly any thing doing for France and America. Our last quotations remain unaltered.

LAC—A few parcels of Shell Lac have been purchased for shipment to England and France at unaltered prices. Nothing doing in Lac Dye.

GRAIN—In fine Rice operations seem to have been suspended in consequence of the scarcity of draft weight tonnage. A few transactions in coarse Rice, and Grain are going on for the Mauritius at steady prices.

COLORED COTTONS—The same remark may be applied to these fabrics.

WHITE COTTONS—The intervention of Native Holidays has been the cause of a limited business in these. Light descriptions of goods are still saleable but not to a great extent, at steady prices.

WOOLLENS—The season for operation being out, there is hardly anything doing at present, we have, however, no change in prices to notice.

Horse Guards, October 11, 1839.

Sir,—I am directed by the General Commanding in Chief to acknowledge the receipt of General Sir Henry Fane's despatch of the 22d Inst. last, referring to the case of private John Brann of the 11th light infantry, and transmitting several papers regarding Charles Fitzgerald, a soldier of the 3d foot, who had been arraigned before a district court martial held at Veram in March last.

Lord Hill having deemed it his duty to refer those papers for the consideration of the judge advocate general, I have now the honor by his lordship's desire to transmit to you a copy of Sir George Grey's opinion on the case, which opinion conclusively shews, that unless a prisoner has notice, previous to his trial, his numerous offences cannot be brought against him, but if he receives such notice, the court is bound to receive and record such evidence, and it cannot be refused or withheld by the prosecutor.

I have the honor to be, Sir,
Your obedient humble servant,
FITZROY SOVERSET.

LIEUTENANT GENERAL SIR J. BYRNE NICOLLS, K. C. B.

Extract from a letter from Sir George Grey, judge advocate general, to the military secretary to the right honorable the general Commanding in Chief, dated judge advocate general's office, London, 2d October, 1839.

Having perused the dispatch from General Sir Henry Fane, with the other papers transmitted for my consideration in your lordship's letter of the 23d September, I request that you will communicate to the General Commanding in Chief my opinion with reference to a question raised by Sir Henry Fane, that whenever it shall have been proved to the satisfaction of a court martial, that the prisoner has previously to his trial, had notice of the intention to produce against him evidence of former convictions, the court is bound to receive and record such evidence, and that it cannot be refused or withheld by the prosecutor.

4. The attention of his excellency has also been drawn to the frequent submission of emergent incidents, which, in some cases, are inadmissible by regulation, and in others, without the existence of any circumstances that would justify the emergent demand. OFFICERS COMMANDING

Regiments of

Sir—In consideration of the length of time which must elapse before the special authority of the secretary of war for the issue of good conduct pay can be received by residents arriving at and to the Eastward of the Cape of Good Hope.

I have the honor to acquaint you, that when the commanding officer of a regiment or a unit of an armed force has accurately entered himself, by the inspection of the records of services, and of the regimental defaulter book, that the claimants for such rewards are properly entitled therein he may direct them to be provisionally issued, taking care, at the same time, to forward to this office, as usual, the prescribed statements of the claims, with the requisite vouchers, and in order that such further steps may be taken thereupon as this case may require.

I have the honor to be, &c.

Circular

Home Guards

To General Officers on the Staff

20th June 1939

Sir,—In transmitting to you, for your information and guidance, the accompanying copy of a circular I issue, which has been addressed to the commanding officers of regiments and depots throughout the army, I have the honor to direct your special attention to the instructions therein contained and to express Lord Hill's anxious hope that you will enforce the strictest observance thereof, upon the part of the commanding officers serving under your immediate orders from time to time.

His lordship depends chiefly upon the vigilant superintendence of the general officers for giving due effect to these last actions and more particularly for enforcing a system of uniformity in keeping the defaulter books, and in recording therein, the various offences which the soldier is apt to commit.

In your examination of the defaulter books, you will be pleased to pay the strictest attention to the keeping of the system of equanimity officers with each other, how these offences are dealt with and whether due discrimination and judgment are evinced in awarding punishment.

Lord Hill desires that your half yearly confidential report may contain a minute specification of the result of your examination of the defaulter books.

The more effectively to enable you to maintain that system of justice and uniformity which it has become so necessary to establish with a view to the provisions of the new good conduct warrant being rendered beneficial both to the interest of the soldier and to discipline of the army, Lord Hill earnestly recommends to you, to take opportunities of examining the defaulter books of the regiments and depots stationed at your headquarters even between the half yearly inspections, as often as your other duties will admit of your doing so.

I have the honor to be, Sir

Your most obedient humble servant,

(Signed)

JOHN MACDONALD, Adj. Genl.

Circular.

Home Guards, 17th June, 1939

To Officers commanding regiments and depots.

Sir,—I have Lord Hill's commands to direct your constant and careful attention to the following instructions which are rendered necessary by the good conduct warrant, dated the 9th ultimo.

The regimental records of conduct are heretofore, in consist of two only, viz. the troop or company defaulter book.—In the former all offences, of every shade and denomination which the soldier commits, are to be carefully and distinctly recorded, whereas the punishment may have been in the latter all offences are to be recorded which are considered by you as deserving of a more severe punishment than six days' drill, or a week's confinement to barracks, with the understanding that provision in the usage of the service the culprit shall, during such confinement, be distributed with the squad to which he belongs.

When the soldier is undergoing the punishment of confinement to barracks, he is to be drilled without exception, but when absent, being that of his days' drill without exception, he is to be drilled carrying his pack.

No punishment shall be in excess of one hour's time, and under no circumstances, nor upon any pretence whatsoever, shall to exceed four hours altogether in the same day.

You will observe that the most important alternative in the new warrant in which these instructions reside, is that in the 13th article whereby a considerable relaxation of the severity of the punishment is made, by giving to commanding officers the power of inflicting minor punishments, without necessarily depriving the soldier of his right to the good conduct pay.

The general commanding in chief and the secretary of war have taken the utmost pains in fixing the amount of punishment which is to constitute a regimental defaulter, so as to draw the line that while the attainment of the schedule of the warrant may be made more easy to the soldier, the discipline of the army may at the same time be maintained.

Lord Hill thinks it scarcely necessary to remind you that in estimating offences and disposing thereof, a commanding officer incurs a heavy responsibility. On the one hand he is bound to take heed, that he deprive the soldier, who looks to him for protection, of a permanent and substantial boon, by recording against him in the regimental defaulter book any of those trivial errors or faults which even men of good general character may sometimes commit and which, although necessarily subjecting him to some punishment, should not deprive him of the advantage of a good officer, who derive from his general good conduct.

On the other hand, he is equally bound to take heed, that by a too great desire to protect the soldier's interests from the just consequences of his misconduct, he (the commanding officer) abstain from recording in the regimental defaulter book not only those grave offences which satisfactorily show a soldier's character, but also those even of a trivial nature, when by repetition they amount to such frequent occurrences as to make him unworthy of receiving the rewards provided by his sovereign and his country for efficient and well conducted soldier.

Lord Hill relies upon all commanding officers exercising their best judgment in discriminating between the various offences, and the general officers charged with the inspection of the troops will be ordered to bestow time and attention upon the examination and comparison of the defaulter books, and to make a special report, to the general commanding in chief, of any instances in which they shall observe a want of uniformity in recording the offences or a want of thoughtful judgment in separating the trivial from the important.

It is to be understood that in transferring the culprit's name from the troop or company to the regimental defaulter book, it will not be necessary to transfer at the same time a record of his offences, but that those which may have actually occurred his being so transferred, but that the record of all his offences is to be carefully preserved in the first mentioned book, viz. the troop or company defaulter book, for the purpose of being referred to at a future period, if necessary.

Each defaulter book is to be carefully preserved, and neither is on any account to be lost or to be defaced or destroyed.

The troop or company defaulter book is to be kept by the captain or other officer commanding the troop or company, by whom alone is every entry to be made therein.

It will readily occur to commanding officers that some of the minor punishments which by the general regulations and orders of the army (rules 19 and 110) they are empowered to award, are of their own accord, such as—

Confinement to the black-hole for 48 hours

Confinement to the defaulter's room for a period not exceeding 7 days, during all duties and drills during that time.

Confinement to barracks for a period not exceeding two months taking all drills and duties during that time at the discretion of the commanding officer, are not affected by these instructions, it being however, understood, that when these punishments are inflicted to an extent that shall exceed those specified in the warrant, such infliction carries with it the duty of sending the culprit of being transferred to the regimental defaulter book.

In estimating the degree of severity which these respective punishments carry with them, it must be borne in mind, that three days' confinement in the defaulter's room with its accompanying drills is more severe than six days' ordinary confinement in barracks with drill etc., and that even 48 hours' confinement in the black hole carries with it more severity because more disgrace (as in the preceding case) than the punishment provided by the warrant.

Lord Hill is aware that these instructions might be extended in various other directions, but he thinks the above details sufficiently explanatory of his Lordship's views, in a case in which the attainment of these must ever depend upon the commanding officer's diligence in watching the conduct of the soldier, discretion and judgment in estimating it, and fidelity, regularity, uniformity and precision in recording it.

Officer Commanding

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your obedient humble servant,

JOHN MACDONALD, Adj. Genl.

MONEY MARKET

Hurkaru Office, Calcutta, 28th March, 1840.

The February Overland Mail came in on Thursday night, bringing intelligence to the 4th of the month. The money market was easier but the court of directors had reduced their rate of exchange to 1s. 11d. and private bills were 1s. 10d. per Company's rupee, shewing it was still in demand.

The Bank of England had reduced the rate of interest and discount to 5 per cent., and the court of directors have decided upon being guided by the Bank rates as terms of discount for bills against bonds in their favour. Our own market in consequence of the mail being expected before, has been rather dull, and we have no alteration of any description in notice.

The rates of Exchange continue as before, and we doubt not the reduction in the English rates will cause a corresponding fall here, above which securities remain unaltered.

BANK SHARES maintain previous prices without appearance of improvement. Both Banks, we understand, have large unemployed capital in hand.

MONEY is abundant, and readily procured at 7 and 8 per cent. on simple security.

(From the Bengal Hurkaru Price Current, March 28, 1840.)

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

INDIGO.—Our market has been very quiet this week, owing to the expected Overland Mail, which arrived on the evening of the 26th instant. The accounts from Home to the 4th February state, that a quarterly sale consisting of 6078 chests was held in January, it opened rather heavily, and progressed throughout without spirit, excepting now and then for a few good marks this was owing to a general expectation that prices would recede further from the level of the October rates, unless the demand improved and Importers showed some firmness in their prices—the ordinary kind bore the chief decline and the really perfect shipping descriptions suffered but little, and in several instances obtained the Oct. or prices. The demand for the Madras Indigo was limited.
 The following was the result of the prices obtained, compared with the result of the October rates.

 The quantity withdrawn during the progress of the sale was 2613 chests, and the quantity bought in was 2,100—thus leaving the quantity actually sold to 1,450 chests—total 6078.

RAW SILK.—A few parcels of the November Band, such as are available, continue to be purchased for the Home markets at usual prices.
 The accounts from home report an advance on this article.

MILK PISOR GOODS.—The demand for this article continues, but there are few available for purchase—and prices keep very high. Choppas and Bandanas are neglected, there being no enquiry for Europe or America.

ADVANCE from home state, that a few sales in Corahs were made at a reduction of 6d. per piece, and the deliveries were small. There was nothing doing in Choppas—but the deliveries of Bandanas were larger than for sometime past.

COTTON.—There is nothing doing in this staple, and prices remain without alteration.
 Accounts from home represent the market very quiet. The quotations were.

SALTETTER.—Our market for this article continues very dull, consequent on the scarcity of Dead Weight Tonnage. The few transactions reported are on American account, and prices show no particular change since our last.

Advices from Home state the article in a fair demand, and the prices of the finer qualities had advanced 6d., while the higher refraction remained firm.

SUGAR.—Purchases during the week have been of Barga or 34 quality Sugar, and Kassar for shipment to England. There is a demand for Sugar of these descriptions, but operations are not extensive owing to the scarcity of Tonnage. Our last quotations remain unaltered.

By the accounts from home, there was an increased demand for Bengal sugar, at advance of 1s. per cent. on the rate of the preceding month—the finer qualities were scarce.

LAC.—Our market for shell lac and lac dye continues dull, a few parcels for America being only transactions reported. Prices still keep very low.

GRAIN.—We have heard of no transaction in rice, the scarcity of dead weight tonnage having retarded operation. A few purchases of boot grain for the Mauritius are the only transactions reported since our last. The prices of the day exhibit a slight reduction from the rates of last week.

The advices from home state rice to have been in good demand in consequence of letters from this place, noticing a partial failure in the crop. Sales had begun made at 1s. per cent. advance, but had again receded 6d. per cent.

HIDES AND HORNS.—Of good descriptions continue to be enquired after, and parcels are taken up immediately on arrival. The prices of the day exhibit a slight change on dry buffalo hides and deer horns.

CHINTZES.—Sales of some single color sets are reported this week at unaltered prices. Our market for all descriptions of chintzes is at present very dull, owing to the absence of demand from the Upper Provinces.

GLAZED COTTONS.—Turkey red wills and plain red cambrics have been sold during the week at steady prices.

WHITE COTTONS.—Since the termination of the Hindoo Holydays last week, transactions in these fabrics have been very limited. Our market may be reported rather dull, as is generally the case at this time of the year.

N. B. The above sizes are applicable either to grenadier, to light infantry, or to battalion companies, although it will naturally happen, that some of the sizes will be chiefly, or entirely confined to the flank companies. Thus in the figured statement of coats, which is filled up as a specimen in page 58 of the clothing regulations, it is supposed, that there are none of the 3d and 4th sizes in the light company, and none of the 3d, 2d, 3d, 4th, 5th, and 6th sizes in the battalion companies.

An additional line must be added, for each additional size, which it may be necessary to include in the statement of coats required for battalion, grenadier, or light companies.

For men requiring coats varying from the measurements laid down in any one of the above columns, a remark to the following effect may be noted at the foot of the original statement: viz.

12 grenadier Sepoys, of the 1st size, require coats 44 inches round the chest.

15 grenadier Sepoys, of the 2d size, require coats 42½ inches round the chest.

10 light infantry Sepoys, of the 5th size, require their coats only 3½ inches round the waist.

The measures of men altogether exceeding the 1st size, or varying considerably from any of the twelve sizes, are to be given, as heretofore, on the back of the indent.

At a general court martial assembled at Cawnpore on Thursday the 9th of April, 1849, Captain (now Major) Charles Newbery, of the 8th regiment light cavalry, was arraigned on the following charges:—

Charge—First. "For having, in the years 1838 and 1839, when commanding the 1st regiment of cavalry, made auxiliary force, knowingly made false muster of men and horse in the following instances:—
"First instance. In having enrolled, as having been entertained on the 1st of April, and 1st and 3d of May 1838, four Sowars who never served in the regiment, and whose fictitious names were continued on the rolls to November 1839.

"Second instance. In having enrolled, as having been entertained as Sowars at various dates, between April 1838 and July 1839, fifteen boys incapable of performing the duties of Sowars, whose names were continued on the rolls until Captain (now Major) Newbery was ordered to discharge them on the 1st October 1839.

"Third instance. In having returned as present, on the 1st Oct. 1839, Jumadul Nabee Bux, who was then absent from the regiment." Fourth instance. In having returned as present, on the 1st October, 1st November and 1st December 1839, Sawai Kadambar Khan, who had died on the 1st of September of the same year.

Second Charge. "For having appropriated to his own use, a sum of uncertain amount, but not less than one thousand eight hundred and ninety-eight rupees, drawn on account of the four fictitious Sowars referred to in the first instance of the first charge.

Finding.—"The court having maturely weighed and considered all that has been adduced in support of the prosecution as well as what has been brought forward on the defence, is of opinion, that the prisoner Captain (now Major) Charles Newbery, of the 8th regiment light cavalry, is "Guilty of the first instance of the first charge.

"Guilty of the second instance of the first charge.
"Guilty of the third instance of the first charge.
"Guilty of the fourth instance of the first charge.
"Not guilty of the second charge.

Sentence.—"The court having found the prisoner guilty of the whole of the first charge, do sentence him, the said Captain (now Major) Charles Newbery, to be cashiered."

The finding upon the first charge, and the sentence thereon, approved and confirmed.

(Signed) J. NICOLLS, General,
Commander-in-Chief, East Indies.

21st May 1849.

Recommendation by the court.—"The court having discharged a painful duty, by awarding the sentence upon the prisoner for the articles of war, recommended by an earnest recommendation in his behalf most respectfully to solicit His Excellency's leniency towards the prisoner.

"The court grounds this recommendation on the firm conviction that justly as the prisoner has suffered from the strict path of duty he has been misled astray by an error in judgment, having his heart in a very honest way to the good of his corps, swayed by pecuniary considerations in relation to private emolument.

GENERAL REGISTER.

"The court begs further to address in behalf of the prisoner, the high character he has hitherto established as an officer, during a period of eighteen years' service; and it therefore ventures to express a fervent hope, that justice may be merged in mercy, and its appeal to his excellency's prerogative may not be made in vain."

Whereupon the court was instructed to reconsider their finding on the 21st charge, and assembled accordingly on the 7th May 1840.

Finding on the second charge.—"The court now finds the prisoner captain (now major) Charles Newbery, 9th regt. light cavalry, guilty of having drawn the sum of fourteen hundred and ninety-eight rupees, on account of the four tedious howers, but acquits him of having appropriated it to his own use; it having been shown, that the greater part has been expended for the purposes of the corps, and the remainder not being more than was lawfully to be required for the same object."

Sentence.—"The court having found the prisoner captain (now major) Charles Newbery, guilty of so much of the second charge, does sentence him to refund the whole of the fourteen hundred and ninety-eight rupees to the state."

Confirmed.

(Signed) J. NICOLLS, General,
Commander in Chief, East Indies.

21st May 1840.

Recommendation by the court.—"The court again begs respectfully to express upon his excellency its conviction, that the prisoner was not guided in his conduct by considerations of private advantage, but from a misguided zeal for the efficiency of his regiment, and under this feeling, begs to solicit his excellency's clemency in his behalf."

Remarks by His Exc. Tenancy the Commander in Chief.
The commander in chief is exceedingly sorry, that such a trial as this should have been called for: that a field officer should have been arraigned for making false musters, a crime which, carried to any extent, would sap the foundation of our strength; might be followed by similar frauds in all the inferior ranks; and which compromises that which officers cannot but consider, as most precious integrity of word and action.

Whatever provident, advantageous, or charitable purpose these false musters were intended to answer, major Newbery had no right so to use them. He must have known both the guilt and the penalty; but he risked his profession and character, rather than solicit brigadier Anquetin's consent to the adoption of any one of those measures, or his advice thereon.

The court has twice endeavoured to turn his excellency from the strict performance of his duty regarding this trial, to the recommendation of a court, most respectably composed, he yields, because he believes that no other officer of this army has ventured, for many years, to follow such a course, and because he now thinks, that no other officer will be rash enough to do it.

After such an example and warning it is almost unnecessary to say, that the law will be rigidly administered in future cases.

Major Newbery is to be released, and to return to his regiment refunding, according to the sentence, the sum of rupees one thousand, four hundred and ninety-eight (rupees 1,498) to the paymaster of Cawnpore.

March last, are, under instructions from government, to be borne on the list as ~~superintending~~ apothecaries while so employed.

26th May, 1840.—The Commander in Chief having had under consideration the inconveniences occasionally experienced from the operation of the General Orders of the 23rd June 1832, is pleased to reduce the period which an officer must serve before he shall be deemed eligible to be appointed a member of a general court martial, to two years; but His Excellency desires, that the alteration now authorized in the period of probation, may not be applied, under any circumstances, to members or superintending officers of courts of request, in regard to whom, and to young officers, the regulation of 1832 above quoted, is to be strictly acted upon.

REVIEW OF THE CALCUTTA MARKET.

Barkaru Office, 6th June, 1840.

The state of our Money Market has undergone no change during the week. Money continues abundant, and recent arrivals from China have added to our supply. But whether these funds will be thrown into the market for general purposes, or reserved for the specific object of opium speculation is not yet certain, as we understand persons belonging to chance speculators in this drug waver with respect to the re-investment.

Exchange.—Continues at the reduced rates of the past week. Treasury Bills at 1-10 to 1-10½. Bank Bills at 1-10½. Private Bills 10 months' date at 30½—6 months' date at 30—3 months' date at 1-11½, and 90 days' date at 1-11. We learn that some private Bills have sold in 2-05 bills per rupee at 10 months' date.

Government Papers.—Continues to be acquired after, 4 per cent. are falling, some changed hands at 4½ and 4 per cent, discount.

BANK SHARES.—Bank of Bengal Shares continue to rise in value. Old Shares stand quoted at 2. 50 to 2.50 premium, and new ones at 2 25 to 2 50. It is expected the Bank will pay a dividend of about 5½ or 6 per cent. per annum.

UNION BANK SHARES appear to be rallying, some Shares sold at 305 ½ the premium.

ASIA BANK SHARES remain unchanged.

Indigo.—Accounts from all the districts in the lower Bengal, Jessore, Dacca, and the Eastward complain of much rain but hitherto no harm has been done to the plants, a great deal depends on the rains we may have this month, as they appear to have set in already. In Tirhoot appearances are favorable, and it is expected that the produce will yield 5,000 to 10,000 mounds in excess of the last crop.

Raw Silk.—There is hardly any of good quality in the market, and although the advices from Home are not favorable, the article is still in good demand.

MILK PARCH GOOPS.—Coras continue to be acquired for, but few indeed of good qualities are obtainable—parchases are consequently small in amount, and prices still keep very high. Chappah and Baddens are not in demand, and the market for these fabrics has been influenced by the late accounts from Home.

COTTON.—There are some enquiries in the market for shipment to China, but we have heard of no actual transaction.

SALT-PATR.—The (un)age in the River, having within the last few days somewhat increased, has caused some enquiry in this article, and we may expect the demand to be supported by the last favorable accounts received from Home.

SUGAR.—is also in good enquiry, and prices are well supported.

LAC.—Some purchases of Shell Lac and Lac Dye.

GRAIN.—Market still inactive for operation for Europe and prices continue as last quoted. A few purchases of Moonghy Rice are reported for the Mauritius.

DRY GINGER.—Some purchases have been made this week at rather low prices.

INDIA AND HONOR.—Have been in extensive operation during the week principally for shipment to England.

SAFFLOWN.—A purchase for shipment to England.

BREITENUT, EASTERN.—Without sale.

CARDUENS, MALABAR.—Some sales are reported at a slight improvement in price.

COLORS YARN.—A few lots of Red Yarn have changed hands.

CLOTHES.—There has not been much doing in these fabrics during the week, and prices remain without alteration.

COTTON COTTONS.—Turkey Red Twills continue to be sold but to a limited extent and at a shade of reduction in price—Ginghams are quite neglected.

WHITE COTTONS.—Long Cloths have not been sold to a great extent during the week. Sales of Cambrics, Jaconets and Mells have been pretty large, but at no encouragement as to prices. In all other descriptions there is little doing.

WOOLLENS.—Of the coarse kinds continue to be acquiring office for the Upper Provinces at steady prices.

C. P. S.—The descriptions sought after, chiefly Sheetings and Bradders for the requirements of this class—there is little doing in other descriptions for the Upper Provinces. The variations of the day exhibit a further improvement throughout the assortments.

Charge—“ I charge captain John Owens, of her majesty's 57th regiment of foot, with scandalous and infamous conduct, such as is unbecoming the character of an officer and a gentleman, in the following instances:

“ First Instance. In having, at Cannanore, between the 1st of May 1837, and the 27th of March 1839, when being on terms of intimacy and friendship with Mr. Welman, a most scandalous and infamous report reflecting upon the character of my wife, Mrs. Sarah Bainbridge, without bringing the same in any way to my knowledge; by stating to brevet major Harvey Welman, captain Clarke Mariae Caldwell, and Lieutenant George Henry Hunt, that Lieutenant Andrew Timbrell Allan of the same regiment, had informed him, that he Lieutenant Andrew Timbrell Allan had had criminal connexion with my wife, Mrs. Sarah Bainbridge.”

“ Second Instance. In having, at Trichinopoly, on the 12th of August 1839, falsely declared, that he had never made the statement attributed to him in the first instance of the charge, to the said brevet major Harvey Welman, or to any other person or persons, that it was a damned lie, and that those who had accused him of doing so, were liars, (meaning the said brevet major Harvey Welman, captain Clarke Mariae Caldwell, and Lieutenant George Henry Hunt,) or words to the same effect.

“ Third Instance. In having, at Trichinopoly, on the 11th of October 1839, before a body of officers, assembled at a general court martial for the trial of the aforesaid Lieutenant Andrew Timbrell Allan, grossly perjured on his oath, by falsely stating, that the said Lieutenant Andrew Timbrell Allan had given him the information alluded to in the first instance of the charge, regarding my wife, Mrs. Sarah Bainbridge.”

H. M. 57th Regiment ”

Upon which charge the court came to the following decision:

Findings.—“ The court having most maturely weighed and considered the whole of the evidence brought forward in support of the prosecution, as well as what the prisoner, captain John Owens, has urged in his defence, is of opinion—

“ That the prisoner is not guilty of the first instance of the charge, and the court fully and honourably acquits him thereof.

“ That the prisoner is guilty of the second instance of the charge, with the exception of the words ‘ scandalous and infamous.’

GENERAL REGISTER

"That the prisoner is not guilty of the third instance of the charge, and the court fully and honorably acquits him thereof.

Sentence.—"The court having found the prisoner guilty to the extent above stated, doth sentence him, the said captain John Owens, of her majesty's 57th regiment of foot, to be reprimanded in such manner as the officer confirming those proceedings, may be pleased to direct.

Remarks by the Court.—"The court having necessarily found the prisoner guilty of the second instance of the charge, beg to submit that the prisoner seems to have erred through a mistaken notion, and having retracted and atoned for that error shortly afterwards, and which atonement was accepted by the parties concerned, the court are not inclined to attach that criminality to the act which the charge would seem to imply."

Confirmed,

(Signed) J. NICOLLS, General,
Commander in Chief, East Indies.

17th June, 1840.

REMARKS BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF.

The commander in chief in India having recommended that this trial should be held, it falls to his excellency to convey the reprimand which the court has sentenced.

Captain Owens has greatly erred in giving too easy credence, and too ready utterance to an injurious report; but these very common errors are light compared with his want of firmness and judgment in denying, so strenuously, even for a very short time, that he had done so. Captain Owens is hereby reprimanded—he is to return to his duty.

MONEY MARKET.

Hurkaru Office, 4th July, 1840.

The dullness of the week was intensified by the arrival of the Mal Overland Mail, bringing us intelligence to the 4th of the month. Commerce generally was not brisk nor very encouraging, yet it is satisfactory that the principal India staples were firm. Money was easy, and we may say very easy from the circumstances of the readiness, with which the large remittances of the previous mail have been added to by the very large receipts by the present one, viz. twenty four lacs of rupees. Our Money Market, we fear, will be completely glutted and perhaps tend to many improvident speculations. It cannot be expected that Exchange can maintain itself against a market so plentifully supplied with money, rates in the early part of the week showed a tendency to decline, and we are of opinion, that it will be down at least a farthing before another week.

GOVERNMENT PAPERS. These descriptions of investments are commanding better attention, the operations of the week show an improvement. Stock Paper had sold at 11.8 and 12 per cent premium, second 5 per cents, we have not heard whether these realized above previous quotations, but sales were effected at full prices, and 4 per cents are down at 3 rupees per cent. discount.

BANK SHARES. Keep at former rates. Bank of Bengal Shares have been acquired at, but Union Shares are quiet.

REVIEW OF THE CALCUTTA MARKET.

(From the Bengal Hurkaru Price Current, July 4, 1840.)

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

INDIGO.—Accounts from the Factories continue to be received the same as in the past week, and if the weather continues fair all over the country, as it has been for the last six or seven days, the Crop may be expected to yield a fair one. The accounts from Home by the Overland mail to the 4th May represent the market still discouraging, good consuming qualities were 3d. to 4d. lower, and inferior sorts especially Oude were difficult of sale even at a discount of 1d. to 2d. per lb.

RAW SILK.—Continues to be enquired after, but there is very little of exportable quality available for purchase, and prices remain as quoted in our last. Advice from Home quote this article at a shade of decline from previous prices, and report large importations from this place principally of second and inferior qualities.

SILK PRICE GOODS.—There is a fair demand for Corahs, but few indeed of fine qualities are obtainable—prices remain without alteration since our last. By the last accounts the market at Home was quiet, and imports from this place were considerable, chiefly of common qualities.

COTTON.—No transactions reported, and prices remain as quoted in our last. By the last accounts from London and Liverpool, Bengal Cotton was reported in good request at an advance of 1/4d. per lb.

SALTPEPER.—Continues to be enquired after principally for the English markets, but we have no change in prices to notice. The last accounts from Home represent the article in good demand at steady prices.

GENERAL REGISTER.

SILK.—Of fine quality is in good request, but there is little or none in the market available for purchase. We may report a slight improvement on our last week's quotations. The last arrivals from Home report a favorable market for this article at an advance on price of about 2s. 10 to 2s. 6d. per cwt.

LAC.—Rather large shipments of Shell Lac have lately been made to England at steady prices—in Lac Dye there is little doing at unaltered prices. By the last accounts from Home Shell Lac was reported rather better, whilst Lac Dye was lower.

GRAIN.—We are unable to report any transaction as yet in fine Rice for the Home market, shippers showing no disposition to ship at the present high rate of Freight. Purchases of Moonah Rice, Wheat and Gram are making for the Mauritius at steady prices. The accounts from Home represent the market for Rice steady at full former rates.

DRY GINSENG.—Several purchases have been made during the week for shipment to England at improved prices.

HIDES AND HORNS.—Are in good demand, and purchases continue to be made at full former prices.

LINSEED.—A few purchases have been made at steady prices. OPIMUM.—The following is the result of the Government sale which took place at the Exchange Rooms on 29th ultimo. The market has been very quiet since, and our quotations are nominal.—

CHINA, STRAITS AND COAST PRODUCE.

Operations under this head have been very small in amount, owing to limited importations particularly from China. The sales during the week consist of a small lot of Mac and Pepper at steady prices, Black Tin at a slight reduction, and Vermilion at a further advance on price.

EUROPE GOODS.

MOHA TWIST.—Sales continue to be made to a fair extent at steady prices, but the market is expected to be somewhat affected by recent importations.

COLORAD YARNS.—The market continues dull and few sales are effected.

CHINTZES.—The sales reported during the week are at a shade of decline in prices.

COLORAD COTTONS.—A few sales of Gingham and Turkey Red Twills have also been made at rather low prices.

WHITE COTTONS.—Sales of Long Cloths and Jaconets have been made during the week at steady prices. For the lighter descriptions of Cottons, our market is generally dull at this season of the year.

WOOLLENS.—There has been a fair enquiry for fine and coarse Woollens at steady prices.

COPPER.—We have heard of no sale this week, and prices have submitted to a fall of 4 to 6 annas per maund throughout the assortments.

IRON.—Sales to a considerable extent of parcels recently arrived, have been made at a shade of improvement on our last quotations, viz on English Flat, Bolt, Round Rod and Hoop—prices this day may be considered 1 to 2 annas per maund lower on English Flat, Square and Bolt.

STEEL AND LEAD.—Without sale, and our last quotations remain unaltered.

SPELTER.—A few sales are reported at a shade of decline in price.

TIN PLATES AND QUICKSILVER.—Remain as last quoted. BEER.—Owing to the recent large importations particularly of Bass' Ale, sales of that description have been made at reduced prices.

FREIGHTS.

Notwithstanding the several arrivals, the rates particularly for Dead Weights continue to be supported—Light Freights are scarce, and the rates are disposed to give way. The quotations of the day are as follows.—

"13. As it is our will and pleasure, that this reward shall be strictly an honorable distinction, to be conferred only upon the well-conducted soldier, the commanding officers of regiments are strictly enjoined to enter in the regimental defaulters' book, the name of every soldier who, in consequence of misconduct, shall have been subjected to any punishment beyond six days' drill, or seven days' confinement to barracks; and the commission of every offence, which shall impose upon the commanding officer the necessity of recording the soldier's name in the regimental defaulters' book, shall render him ineligible for this reward, for two years from that date; and if he be already in possession of this distinction, shall deprive him of his distinguishing mark and good conduct pay for one year; and a second recorded offence within twelve months, shall render two years of uninterrupted good conduct necessary to obtain a restoration of such reward."

"18. A soldier may, for a first offence of a serious nature, be adjudged, by the sentence of a court martial, to forfeit all or any part of the advantages he had derived from his previous good conduct, either absolutely, or for any period not less than eighteen months, according to the circumstances which shall have appeared in evidence."

The attention of officers commanding European corps is specially called to the relaxation, now authorized, of the severity of the 13th article of the warrant of the 29th May 1837, published in general orders of the 19th July 1838, and to the circumstance of their having it now in their power to inflict minor punishments, without necessarily depriving the soldier of his right to good conduct.

The records of conduct are to consist of a troop or company defaulters' book, and a regimental, brigade, or battalion defaulters' book; in the former all offences of every denomination are to be regularly and distinctly recorded, in the latter all offences are to be entered which are considered by the regimental, brigade, or battalion commanding officer to be deserving of a more severe punishment than six days' drill, or what may be deemed an equivalent, to seven days' confinement to barracks, (a punishment not applicable to India) as specified in the warrant; and the commandant of artillery will lay down such rules, as may appear to him necessary to insure uniformity of punishments being inflicted for similar offences throughout the troops, companies, brigades and battalions under his orders.

Each defaulters' book is to be carefully preserved, and is never on any account whatever to be defaced or destroyed.

The troop or company defaulters' book is to be kept by the captain, or other officer, in charge of the troop or company, by whom alone is every entry to be made therein.

Infantry—Unposted Ensign C W Russell, from 6th August to 6th November, to visit Rangoon, on private affairs.

Infantry—Unposted ensign J R Pugh, from 6th August to 6th September, to remain at the presidency on private affairs.

15th July 1840.—The commander in chief having had under his consideration, the frequent references made to the clothing board, on the subject of uniforms for bands of native regiments, his excellency is pleased to direct, that commanding officers of corps, in which bands exist, shall, on the 1st January of the year that the clothing becomes due, draw the established rate of compensation in lieu of sepoy's clothing for such men as may be employed gunners, making a corresponding deduction in the figured statements, which is to be noted in a remark at the foot.

The attention of officers commanding corps is called to pages 131 and 132 of the clothing regulations, laying down the forms of the nominal roll and bill to be prepared for compensation in lieu of clothing, much inconvenience having been experienced by the clothing board from the general want of attention to the prescribed forms.

The following orders are, with the sanction of the right honorable the governor general of India in council, confirmed.

1. The Mysore station order of the 13th ultimo, appointing assistant surgeon J A Guse to officiate as civil surgeon at that place.

2. The Cawnpore division order of the 18th ultimo directing assistant surgeon H J Boyd to perform the medical duties of the civil station at Unnespur, during the absence, on leave, of assistant surgeon H Will.

5th regiment native infantry—Ensign J H R Noble, from 27th October 1839 to 30th December 1839, to enable him to join.

17th July, 1840.—The commander in chief is exceedingly sorry that ensign L A McGon, of the 67th regiment of native infantry, should have misconstrued, so flagrantly, the intimation which he received, by his excellency's orders, from his commanding officer, on the 16th ultimo.

Ensign McLean's conduct in beating Mr Bryant, in his own shop at Benares, because he would not permit him to purchase articles at his auction, before he had liquidated a debt of 600 rupees, was most odious, and the commander in chief only regrets that it did not suit Mr Bryant's convenience to prosecute him for the assault.

The intimation made by ensign McLean for the determination of his excellency not to expose him to trial for his most improper conduct, was, that on the day following that, on which he was released from arrest, he went to the shop of Messrs Bryant and Co. the last place to which, if he had possessed an atom of self-respect, he should have gone, and there received the degrading notice that no further dealings would be had with him, and that if he did not leave the premises, he should be forcibly expelled.

As a last resource, he sends a challenge to Mr Kemp, Mr Bryant's partner, thus acknowledging an equality with the very persons whom he had previously abused and ill-treated. Mr Kemp denied that any equality existed between them, as long as ensign McLean owed him 600 rupees, and gave him no assurances of payment.

If ensign McLean hopes to rise in the service, he must change these lines of proceeding. By justifying himself in the use of articles which his situation did not require or warrant, at the expense of Messrs Bryant and Co. he has rendered himself amenable to the laws for an assault, has had two courts martial impending over him; has had very severe lessons given him in writing by Mr Bryant, whom he affects to despise, and who was prepared to make his servants turn him out on the 17th ultimo, rather than risk a second beating.

The commander in chief warns ensign McLean of the only and disreputable determination which will infallibly attend such a course as this; trusting at the same time to that officer's respect for the army, and for his family, for a return to the honorable conduct always suggested by the feelings of an officer and gentleman.

Sir,—It having been found that the details in the returns of women and children, ordered to be transmitted to this department, by my circular of the 25th November last, have (with very few exceptions) been incorrectly stated, I have to desire, that a return in the following form, may be forwarded on the 1st of every month, in place of the one previously ordered, it being clearly understood that this return relates only to the officers' wives and families actually present with the service companies, and now including the wives and children of officers.

The commanding officer of the regiment should take care that the vacancies which occur in the regulated number of women allowed to receive rations, be kept open for those who embark under the authority of the general order of the 8th December 1827, (page 400, regulations and orders for the army) and that they be not, on any account, filled up by those women who may have found their way to the service companies without due authority; and when there are no women present eligible to succeed to such vacancies, that the number of vacancies may be stated at the foot of, and apportion, the return.

(From the Bengal Hurdar Price Current, August 8, 1840.)

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

1840-1841.—The weather during the last week has been showery but rather a larger fall of rain on the whole, seem to have taken place in the Bengal district near Calcutta. The general character of the accounts from the interior is improved and there seems a pretty certain prospect of that district turning out from 20,000 to 22,000 mounds, in Bengal, however, we can notice no improvement, from Malda, Moan-bahad and the tip of the Bhagirathi the accounts are bad and Jessore does not seem to have improved. The planters here appear to have held back from making any more, and the reason is therefore to be in some degree dependent on the weather and the rise of the river, at present they are at the low, and the general aspect of the weather unfavorable.

We have nothing to add this week to the Exports.

Raw Silk.—Little has been done in this during the week owing to buyers showing no disposition to purchase at high prices and sellers being disinclined to submit to the reduced prices offered.

In private life he bore an unexceptionable christian character; he was indefatigable as a man of business, and to his enterprize as an extensive Indigo Planter, the country owes much for the immense tract of land in the vicinity of the Rotas Hills, which from being a dense jungle through his instrumentality has been a fertile country, and where his name will long be cherished in remembrance by a people who looked to him as their protector and friend.

Mr. Matthews was the son of the late Major Matthews, a distinguished officer in the Company's Artillery. This humble tribute to departed worth is given by one who has long watched his progress in life, both in its domestic and public relations with feelings of admiration and sincere regard.

REVIEW OF THE CALCUTTA MARKET.

(From the Bengal Hukaru Price Current, September 5, 1840.)

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Twine—Since our last, it appears that the rainy and unsettled weather has changed the prospects of those concerns that had not closed a good deal for the worse, and we apprehend that in the neighbourhood of Kishnagur, the out turn of several important concerns will be altogether 2,000 maunds, under the quantity expected. In the course of a very few days all manufacture in Bengal will be closed. We are, without later advice from Farboot, Benares and the Upper Provinces.

By the accounts received from Home to the 4th July by the Overland Mail, there was nothing doing, and the market was dull.

Raw Silk—Purchases have continued to be made to a fair extent at about last week's prices.

The accounts from Home state a good Bengal Silk scarce and in demand.

Silk Piece Goods—A few purchases of Curries for shipment to England are reported with the purchasers of the week at steady prices—Nothing doing in colored Goods.

Corras—Continues to be purchased for shipment to China, but prices during the week have slightly retrograded, and may at present be quoted about 2½ Annas per maund in low last week's prices.

The accounts from Home for this Staple are still disagreeing. It is stated that the Honorable the Court of Directors of the East India Company have sent out a number of practical American Cotton Farmers to India accompanied with implements of Seed, with a view to commence an experiment for raising cotton, on a scale commensurate with the vast magnitude of that material.

Safflower—Has engaged enquiry during the week for the English and American markets, and purchases, principally for England have been made to a large extent at an improvement of 2½ Annas per maund on last week's rates.

The article by the accounts from Home is stated to have been in very steady demand. At present it is at 27 or 27½—refraction 4 or 4½ at 20 or 20½—and refraction 8 or 8½ at 24 or 24½ per cwt.

Stear—A fair business has been done during the week in this article at about the prices quoted in our last.

By the last account from Home the article was in demand and prices were high, and stocks low—Blue white Bengal was sold at 10 maunds adding 7 or 8½ per cent. Another form of cotton had been priced admitting Madras Sugars from the same terms with Bengal.

Lat—We have heard of a transaction this week in either Shell Lat or Lin Dye—and prices have undergone no change since our last.

The accounts from Home report fair Orange Shell Lat to have been sold at 70 or 72—black at 5½—hard black 43 or 45—lin tree 50 or 55—fine green 38 or 50—fine brown 42 or 45—softly raw and black 30 to 40—Stock 10, 823 chests against 9,665 at the same period last.

Lat Dye, Musapore, Bazarized Is—6d—and some native markets at 5d to 7d per lb—some of PM were taken at 1½ to 1½ 8d. The Stock was 1,431 chests against 8,981 at the same date last year.

Gum—Our market remains very quiet as regards operation in Rice for England. Purchases of Moungy Rice, Wheat and Gram continue to be made for the Mauritius at a decline in prices.

The accounts from Home represent the market for Rice dull, and Indians showed no disposition to press on the market. Some sales of good white Bengal were made at 13½ to 14½ and middling 11½ to 12½ per cwt. The Stock was 1,23,663 bags against 35,842 bags last year.

Rice and House—Are in good demand, and parcels are bought up on arrival at improved prices.

Linseed—Is in good demand, and purchases have been made for shipment to England at improved prices.

By the last accounts from Home this article found ready buyers.

Safflower—Some purchases are reported with the occurrence of the week on French account—at rather low price.

The accounts from Home report the sales of some middling Bengal Safflower at 70s. to 97s. 6d per cwt.

Texan—We have heard of some transactions during the week at steady prices.

By the last accounts the article was selling in England at 2½, to 2½ per cwt.

Opium—The market has been very quiet during the week and prices have undergone no change since our last.

CHINA AND STRAITS PRODUCE.

The transactions during the week have been very limited—and comprise only sale of Eastern Beilants and Nutmegs at steady prices, and Black Pepper at an improvement on last week's quotation.

EUROPE GOODS.

Misc Twine—Sales continue to be made to a fair extent; but the quotations of the day exhibit a decline of 1 to 2½ per cent on the prices of the low numbers.

Colored Yarns—German Dye Red Yarn has been sold to a fair extent during the week but at no improvement in prices.

Chintzes—Bengal Stripes and Neutrals have been sold at about previous prices—and Gauric and Fancy Chintzes at rather discouraging prices.

Colored Cottons—Gingham, Red Twills, Red Cambric and Colored Velvets have been sold to a large extent at about previous prices.

White Cottons—Our market has evinced no improvement sales continue to be made to limited extent at rather low prices.

Woollens—Business to a large extent has been done during the week in medium and coarse descriptions of Cloths at about previous prices.

Copper—There is some enquiry for the Copper the prices of which have advanced in a small degree. The market being in other descriptions and we have no change in their prices to notice.

Iron—Sales to a large extent have been made during the week but at prices exhibiting a decline of 1 to 3 Annas per maund on English Bar, Square, Bolt Round and Nail Rod.

Steel—Without sale, and we have no change in our last quotation to notice.

Lard—A sale of 5 cased Pig has been made at our quotation.

Shells, Tin Plates and Quicksilver—Without sale, and remain as last quoted.

Rice—The sales during the week show a shade of advance on the prices of heavy and Allsops.

FREIGHTS.

As anticipated in our last,—the rates for Dead Weight have given way owing to the increase of Fumage in the River, and may at present be quoted as below.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE,
Sydney, Nov. 1, 1930.

Executive.
No. 142.

- My Lord:- In the concluding part of my despatch No 93 of the 1st April last, I stated to your lordship the course which I had then adopted with respect to the remission allowed in the purchase of land, for military and naval officers settling in the colonies; and that under the advice of the executive council it had been determined, that all officers who might have been left England on the birth of the regulations of the 15th August 1831, should be considered settlers under those regulations, and have the full benefit of them.

I have now to report to your lordship, that difficulties having arisen in deciding upon the claims of officers to be considered settlers under the old regulations, I felt the necessity of laying down a definite rule upon the subject, and that consequently it was fixed with the advice of the executive council that all officers who left the United Kingdom before the 1st January 1833, should have the full benefit of the regulations of the 15th August 1831, whilst those who might leave England on or after the same day, should be considered settlers under the regulations of the 1st August 1833.

As I have reason to believe that some officers who feel themselves grievously under this decision, have made remonstrances on the subject to the lords of the admiralty, or to the general commanding in chief, I feel it right to address your lordship not far from noon the subject, and particularly to explain the way in which officers are affected by the change in regulation.

The regulations of 1822 differ from those of 1834 solely by the omission of the 8th clause, or the clause by which officers were obliged to take the amount of their remission money in and at no other price and without competition, provided such land had been previously exposed to sale at public auction, and not bought. Under the old regulations, as under the new, the advantages fell out to officers were estimated in money and not in land, and the price at which officers were allowed by the 8th clause of the old regulations to obtain land which had been exposed to auction, was but the first of sales of 65, but the upset price which could never be less than 50 per acre though it might very much exceed it. "Whatever might be the price at which a certain piece of land had been put up, at that price an officer could obtain it; such at least was the apparent meaning of the regulations; in practice, however, all land was, with little exception, put up, until very lately at 50 per acre whatever might be its value, and as at every such good deal remained unsold, the aggregate quantity of land which had been put up at 50, but not sold, came to be very considerable, but of this land it was not difficult for an officer having good means of information, and allowing himself sufficient time for enquiry, to select portions worth considerably more than 50, and by doing regulation he was not confined to the exact quantity sufficient to absorb his remission money, but was allowed to take, at the same price of 50, the excess that there might be in the lot or lots selected by him, over what his remission money would cover. For example, a captain in the army entitled to a remission of £200 might select

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS

[illegible]

This statement will sufficiently explain to your lordship the delay in having written the new regulations, which have been received by officers recently arrived in the colony. Many of those officers have complained that they were not made aware of the change before they left England by sea, by the notice, either from the headquarters, or the Admiralty, but this regulation (allowing it to have been such) is one for which I respectfully submit that this Government can be in no way responsible.

It seems to me extremely probable that the altered position in which officers are placed by the new regulations is not very known at the Horse Guards, as certificates are still given to officers, in which the general orders issued to the army on the 25th August 1831 are quoted, although these officers come directly under the regulations of the 1st August, 1833; a copy of one of these certificates I enclose, in which the officer is stated to be about to proceed to New South Wales as a settler, under the general order of the 25th August, 1831, although he obtained his first commission in the army subsequent to the new regulations of August 1833.

I bear a sure vow for ship that I am always happy to see officers at the wharf or away in the colony, and am anxious to secure in them all the advantages intended for them by her Majesty's Government. At the same time I think it my duty to say that although they certainly are now in a less favorable position than they were, the real difference is that they themselves will get only what was intended for them, whilst hitherto they got more.

I have, &c.

MONEY MARKET.

MONEY MARKET.

[Havkara Office, 26th September, 1840.]

The Money Market, during the week, has undergone no change. Transactions have been limited, and they will be more so for the next four or five days prior to the Doorgah Poojah holidays.

In EXCHANGE we have heard of no operations. The report of the Chamber of Commerce shows, that the average rate of Private Bills remains at 8-1/2.

In GOVERNMENT PAPERS, there has been some changing of hands—5 per cent. transfer were quoted at 13 1/2 per cent. premium. The Government opening a fresh loan at 4 per cent. with the advantage of the advance being repayable at three months' notice, has in some measure affected the value of the previous 4 per cent., the discount of which has gone up to 3-7 per cent.

BANK SHARES have been quiet. We understand that Shares in the Agra Bank since the declaration of the 10 per cent. dividend, have been in great request, five shares have changed hands at 30 per cent. premium, or 650 rupees per share, and more would sell equally as well if not better, had there been sellers. We have a very good opinion of this institution, and consider no capital could be better employed than in investment in shares in this Bank; but we must be free to say that we do not approve of the new grasping business in insurance, which the present Secretary is endeavouring to secure, hitherto it has confined itself to its legitimate business and done well, we say confidently so, and we may fairly look forward to increased prosperity.

REVIEW OF THE CALCUTTA MARKET.

(From the Bengal Hurkaru Price Current, September 26, 1840.)

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

INDICO—Since our last accounts from Kishnaghar and Hooghly have been what improved, and those districts have lined with about 6,000 mounds under last season in the European fine styles alone. The accounts from Tinkou and Benares up to the 13th September, continue to make complaints of the heavy rain and bad produce. From the Doonab, we have no recent intelligence.

RAW SILK—Purchasers have been extensive during the week for shipments to England, but at prices exhibiting a shade of decline on last week's rates.

SILK PIERCE GOODS—The business done this week is confined to a few purchasers of Corahs for shipment to England at steady prices. Corahs of good qualities are sought after, but very scarce.

COTTON—Our market has been quiet since our last, and prices remain without alteration.

SALT PEE—Continue to engage enquiry, and purchasers have been made during the week at a slight improvement on our last week's prices.

SUGAR—There has been more extensive demand this week for this produce principally of the best quality, and purchasers to a considerable extent have been made at fully last week's prices.

LAC—The transactions in Shell Lac and Lac Dye reported during the week, are principally on American account at steady prices.

GRAIN—We have heard of no transaction in rice this week; the purchases reported are of Wheat and Corn for shipment to the Mauritius and the Cape.

HOPS AND HONES—Continue in demand, and maintain their former high prices.

LARD OIL—Purchases in this article continue to be made for the Home market but at a reduction of 2 or 3 annas per mound from the prices quoted in our last.

SALT PEE AND FORMENTE—Without sale, and remain as quoted in our last.

OPUM—Market quite dull, and our quotations may be considered as nominal.

CHINA, STRAITS AND COAST PRODUCE

BETENUT, (Eastern)—Some sales have been effected during the week at a reduction in price.

CASSIA, CASSIA CLOVES, CINNAB AND CATCH—Without transaction, and remain at former prices.

CHIEF—A purchase of 450 mounds Mocha by the Hon'ble Company is reported with the intimacies of the week at Company's Report 17 per hundred.

BLACK AND NUTMEATS—Without report of sale, and our last quotations remain unaltered.

PEPPER—A few sales of Rhony have been made at a shade of improvement in price. Malabar Pepper has slightly given way in price.

KATTANS—Have rather improved in price. We have, however, heard of no transaction.

VERMILION—A sale has been made this week at a considerable reduction in price.

EUROPE GOODS.

MOLE TWIST—The practicability of the Inland Navigation tends to support the demand for this article, and upwards of 600 bales have changed hands during the week at full former prices.

COLORADO YIRAS—There has been nothing doing this week and the prices of the assortments remain unaltered.

CHINTZES—Sale of single color Sets, Bengal Stripes, Nautras and Pines have been made during the week at rather low prices.

COLORADO COTTONS—Turkey Red and assorted Color Twills and Red Cambrics have been sold during the week at steady prices.

WHITE COTTONS—Sales of Long Cloths, Madapolams and Jaconets have been made to a fair extent for dispatches to the Upper Provinces by the steamer about to proceed in a day or two.

WOOLLENS—We are not aware of any transaction having taken place this week, and prices remain without alteration.

COPPER—The transactions during the week have been confined to a few sales of Sheathing and Boazers at steady prices.

Act No — of 1840.

Whereas it is expedient to specify the particular purposes to which rates assessed on houses, buildings and grounds in Calcutta shall be applied; and to confine the appropriation of such rates to some only of the various purposes to which they have hitherto been deemed applicable. And whereas it is expedient to abolish the practice which has hitherto prevailed, of levying five per cent on the annual value of all houses, buildings and grounds, without reference to the amount necessary for accomplishing the purposes of the rates; such per-centage being inadequate for the purposes to which the rates have hitherto been deemed applicable and which purposes it is proposed to limit by the present act. And whereas it is expedient to make the per-centage leviable by quarterly rates on the annual value of property to depend entirely on the expenditure necessary for accomplishing, in an efficient manner, the purposes to which the rates shall hereafter be applicable, and providing for all incidental expenses and casual deficiencies or default. And whereas it is expedient to subject the collection and administration of the funds raised for municipal purposes in the various districts of the town to the management of the rate payers themselves within such districts respectively, whenever they are desirous of undertaking the same, and are willing to enter into proper arrangements for the purpose. And whereas it is expedient to modify the provisions of the statute 33 Geo 5, cap 62 in regard to assessments for the town of Calcutta in order for the better collection of the same, reserving all the authority such statute matters not inconsistent with this act.

It is hereby enacted that the assessments which by the statute 33 Geo 5 ch 62 are authorized to be made for the town of Calcutta, shall be applicable to the following purposes only—viz. lighting, cleaning, watering, and repairing the roads and streets of the said town.

2. And it is enacted, that the assessments and rates made under the authority of the statute shall be sufficient for accomplishing in an efficient manner, the purposes mentioned in the last section, for discharging all incidental expenses, and for making up deficiencies and defaults of every kind whatsoever.

3. And it is hereby enacted, for the encouragement of the control and supervision of the assessments and collection of the rates and the managements thereof within particular districts being undertaken by the rate payers themselves, the justices at their quarter sessions shall publish quarterly the particulars of all sums laid out, and of all the expenses of collection and defor-noses during the preceding quarter within the following districts of the town, so long as the assessment collection or management of the rates for such districts shall remain under their jurisdiction viz. The districts of—respective districts shall apply to the governor of Fort William in Bengal to undertake themselves the assessment, collection and management of the rates of such district, or any or either of these trusts, it shall be lawful for the governor of Fort William in Bengal to authorise the same accordingly, at his discretion; provided always that such majority of rate payers shall present a scheme which shall obtain his full approbation for the safe and efficient execution of the trusts the transfer of which from the present authorities is sought for. Provided always that in any such arrangement, the amount to be levied in any particular districts shall not be considered as necessarily limited by the amount expended within such district, but shall be adjusted by the governor of Fort William in Bengal upon reference to all local circumstances.

5. And it is hereby enacted, that for the better assessment and collection of rates under this act it shall be lawful for the governor of Fort William in Bengal, to appoint such assessor or assessors, collector or collectors, and to make such union of the officers of assessor and collector, and to prescribe such rules and take such securities for the due execution of this act by the person or persons employed in assessments and collections and in the management of the rates collected as he shall deem expedient.

6. And it is hereby enacted that it shall not be necessary in any assessment, rate or warrant of distress under this act to specify the names of the owners or occupiers of houses, buildings and grounds; but it shall be sufficient if every property rated be indemnified, and, in the cases of houses numbered in any street, that the name of that street and number of the house rated be particularly specified.

7. And it is hereby enacted, that the goods and chattels of the owner of any property rated shall be seizable any where (except where property is concealed as herein after mentioned) for deficiency in the payment of rate. And that all property which shall be found upon any premises rated, shall be seizable for any arrears which may be due for a period of one year immediately preceding such seizure. And in the case of the seizure of the property of a tenant under such circumstances, he may deduct the amount of the levy from the next payment of his rent.

8. And it is hereby enacted, that where there is ground to suspect that property liable to distress under this act is concealed in any zenana, the officer charged with the execution of the warrant, shall make a special report to the justice granting the same, who shall thereupon follow, as closely as is practicable, the rules for the seizure of property in like cases adopted by her majesty's supreme court.

2 The same rates of pay are to be drawn for men in hospital, who will continue to be directed by the commissariat, as at present, in conformity with the medical regulations.

3. One month's pay to defray funeral charges as authorized in G O 5th October 1847, no 207, will also be drawn at the above rates from men deceased, whose bodies require sepulture.

6 In cases where detachments moving or stationary may be without a canteen establishment, and it may become necessary in consequence for the commissariat to issue rum to the men, the rate of payment is to be ten pie for each dram, to be recovered by bills drawn by the department on paymasters of regiments, or officers drawing the pay of the men thus supplied with liquor.

8. It is left to the discretion of the commissariat department to issue either tea or coffee (or a proportion of both) as an article of the daily rations, as may be most convenient, or as circumstances may demand, but it is to be understood, that where both articles are procurable with equal facility, the wishes of commanding officers should be attended to.

9. In consequence of the difficulty of making the necessary arrangements for the introduction of the new scale of rations, in some of the more distant stations of the Bengal European troops, is hereby directed

The governments of Madras and Bombay will adopt such measure of postponement, as may be considered expedient.

10. The extra daily allowance of half a pound of meat at present issued to the European troops serving beyond the India line be continued to them, should the general officer commanding the troops in Afghanistan consider the allowance necessary as a special indulgence, after the introduction of the new scale of rations, and until further orders.

MONEY MARKET.

[Market Office, 24th October, 1840.]

The Money Market cannot be said to have undergone any change since the departure of our October Mail. Every thing remains inactive and we have heard of nothing doing, saving some endeavour to procure Bills to go by the express which we believe was fruitless, on which a rate being demanded. The quotations of the Bill market is as before, Private Bills varying from 2 1/2 to 3d, according to arrangement. Treasury Bills, at 1 1/2 to 1 1/4.

GOVERNMENT PAPERS.—During the week we have had no intelligence, prices, notwithstanding hold firm at previous quotations.

BANK SHARES.—Bank of Bengal shares remain quiet at 2,250 to 2,300 rupees premium, but Union Shares have fluctuated much, a large sale was held at the Bank premises where shares realized an average of 261 rupees premium chiefly purchased by speculation, and by whom re sales have been made at a trifling advance. The Bazar folks, however, maintain prices, and if an intending purchaser was to go into the market he would not be able to effect this investment under 250 to 255 rupees premium.

The Siamu Tea Association has declared another dividend of 20 rupees per share or 10 per cent per annum.

REVIEW OF THE CALCUTTA MARKET.

(From the Bengal Hurkaru Price Current, October 24, 1840)

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Indian.—The advices from the Factories during the week are the same as we last reported on this article.

The accounts from England by the September Mail represent the Market dull. The quarterly sales were fixed for the 5th October and 9,507 chests were declared. The delivery was large, and the Stock on the 31st August was, 1,081 chests more than in the same period the previous year.

RAW SILK.—Purchases have continued small, owing to the reduced stock in the Bazar, and prices keep firm. By the last accounts from Home the article was in demand.

SILK PRICE CURRENT.—Purchases in Calcutta continue also small, and prices remain without change since our last report.

COTTON.—There is a good deal doing on speculation both here and in the interior at prices rather a shade lower. To China there is not much going on just now.

SALTPETRE.—The purchases reported are for the English, French and American markets. The transactions, however, have not been extensive, and prices may be quoted at a shade of improvement on Chiprah and Firoh. The article at home by the last account, was firm and the stock consisted of 4,134 tons against 4,242 at the same period last year.

SUGAR.—Is still in good enquiry, and purchases to a considerable extent have been made during the week at improved prices. The accounts from Home report the article in good demand and prices had taken a further rise. The Stock of West India was 18,600 casks, and of East India 109,100 bags less than at the same period last year.

LAC.—The market has been quiet during the whole of this week, and the prices of both Shell Lac and Lac Dye have undergone no change since our last report. By the last accounts from Home Shell Lac was selling rather freely at previous prices, and Lac Dye was dull of sale.

GRAIN.—We have heard of no transaction in Rice for shipment Homeward. A few purchases of Moonghy Rice, Wheat and Gram have been made for the Mauritius at steady prices. The last accounts by the Mail report a good show of White Bengal Rice, and supported former prices, and inferior qualities 6d lower.

HIDES AND HORNES.—Continue to be enquired after, and purchases to a large extent have been made at improved prices.

Fort William, Secret Department, the 25th November, 1840—The right hon'ble the governor general of India in council is pleased to order the publication, for general information, of the following extract from a despatch this-day received by express from the envoy and minister at the court of his majesty Shah Soojahool Moolk, announcing the unconditional surrender of the ex-chief of Cabool, Doost Mahomed Khan, to Sir W. The official report of the action at Purwur alluded to by the envoy and minister, has not yet reached the government.

By order of the right honorable the governor general of India in council.

T. H. MADDOCK,

Sery. to the Govt. of India.

Extract from a letter from Sir W M Macnaghten Bart. dated 4th November, 1840.

I have the honor to acquaint you for the information of the right hon'ble the governor general in council that Doost Mahomed Khan, the ex-chief of Cabool surrendered himself to me yesterday evening.

GENERAL REGISTER.

I was returning from my evening ride, and within a few yards of my own residence in the citadel, when a single horseman galloped up to me, and having satisfied himself that I was the envoy and minister, told me that Dost Mahomed Khan was arrived and sought my protection.

Dost Mahomed Khan rode up to me and alighted from his horse. After the usual salutations, I begged him to mount again, and we proceeded together to my residence, in the compound of which I have pitched a tent for the ex-chief, and have provided him with every thing necessary to his comfort. He assured me that he had not been off his horse for twenty-four hours, yet, he shewed but little symptom of fatigue, and his self-possession was very remarkable. He put his sword into my hand as a token of submission, but I at once returned it to him, and he seemed gratified for this mark of confidence. He asked me about his family, and, at his own suggestion and in my presence, he wrote letters to his son Mahomed Afzal and to his two other sons, whose escape from Ghuznee was recently reported, desiring them to come in immediately, as he himself had confided in my protection and been honorably received.

On the day before yesterday the detachment under the command of major general Sir Robert Sale, &c. &c. fell in with Dost Mahomed Khan's army at Purwur and dispersed it: the particulars of which occurrences will be reported to his lordship in council by major general Sir W Cotton, &c. &c. Dost Mahomed Khan must have come into Cabool direct from the field of battle without the knowledge of any of his adherents Fidd.

I have to lament the loss of my assistant Mr. P. B. Lord, who was unfortunately killed in this affair. His lordship in council is too well acquainted with the zeal and abilities of the deceased officer to require any eulogium from me.

An act for facilitating the collection of the revenue of government and depositing the interest intended to be employed by public funds for the redemption of arrears of the public revenue in Palisades county.

1 The regulation in force authorizing the Preamble. application of distress for enforcing the payment of arrears of the public revenue, only seizes the person and property of the contracting inhabitant leaving him to proceed against the puttee-dars by suit or distraint. But with reference to the peculiar nature of this coparcenary, the existing instruments appear to be insufficient on the one hand for the protection of the rights of the puttedars and on the other hand for the punctual realization of the dues of government. The regulation was also deficient in not authorizing with sufficient distinctness the sale or transfer of the puttees of defaulting puttedars in puttedars' ex sales, and in not defining the interests intended to be conveyed by public sales of such estates

II A putteegee estate in this state held to be an estate which consists of two or more separate portions or parcels, one of which there may be proprietors, possessed of a separate properties and holding direct of the government, but not parties in their own names to the contract with the government for payment of the public revenue. The proprietor who is a party in his own name is called a lumberbar, and the proprietor who is not a party in his own name is called a Putteebar.

XVI And it is hereby enacted that any officer employed in the Alaska Department who shall be convicted of conspiracy in the manufacture or sale of fermented or spirituous liquors without license or by any licensed manufacturer or vendor contrary to the terms of such license shall be liable to the same penalties that would be incurred by the offender at whose act in contravention of the law he so conspires.

XVII And it is hereby enacted that whenever any person shall be convicted of an infraction of the laws for protection of the Akkure revenue after having been previously convicted of a like offence, he shall be liable, in addition to the penalty attached to such offence, to confinement in the Dewanny Jail for a period of six months and a like punishment of six months imprisonment shall be incurred, in addition to the punishment which may be inflicted for a first offence, upon every subsequent conviction after the second, and the persons or officers adjudging any case under the provisions of this section shall be authority for the judge or other officer in charge of the Dewanny Jail to hold the person described therein in confinement in such jail and for such time as may be specified and required in the said warrant.

31 Transfer of the defaulting puttee in perpetuity to the members of any other puttee which may not be in arrears.

Ordered, that the said draft be re-considered at the next meeting of the legislative council of India after the 15th day of December next.

The following act passed by the right honorable the governor general of India in Council on the 15th October 1840, is hereby promulgated for general information.

An act for declaring the law touching the liability of auction purchasers of permanently assessed estates under Section XXI Regulation XI of 1842, of the Bengal code.

1. Whereas doubts have arisen whether the liability of auction-purchasers, under the provisions of Section XXI Regulation XI of 1822, Bengal code to make good the difference between the sums bid at first and second sale of lands, sold for the satisfaction of arrears of revenue has been affected by the provisions of Section VII Regulation VI of 1830 of the same code —

It is hereby declared and enacted, that the said liability provided for and imposed by Section XXV Regulation XI of 1872 aforesaid, and in no wise been altered or affected by Section VII Regulation VII, of 1870 aforesaid, and that such liability shall be considered in full force and virtue, as if such last mentioned regulation had not been passed.

The following not passed by the right hon'ble the governor general of India in council on the 19th October 1840, is hereby promulgated for general information

An act concerning suits instituted under the provisions of Regulation XLIX of 1793, prior to and pending at, the date of the enactment of Act IV of 1840.

MONEY MARKET.

[Harkness Office, 24th November, 1840.]

The closing week has not been very active in operations, and business appears in abeyance for the month, it being yet doubtful whether there is any obstruction in its transit through Egypt.
 The most important change that has occurred during the week is the advance of the Government rate of Exchange from 2s 1d to 2s 2d. This unexpected rise, at least thus soon, has disordered many plans, though some are still operating at the increased rate, there are many who have stopped for the present.
 Altho' this movement on the part of the Government, the rate on P. M. Bills may be considered as fixed at 2s 2d for the season.
 We have heard of no negotiations as yet at that figure. How far this change may affect Public Bills we are not in a position at present to state.

GOVERNMENT PAPERS.—The market with respect to these securities remains unchanged.

BANK SHARES remain quiet, we have heard of nothing doing in them.

The Agra Bank, through the channel of the Agra Udhkar has, communicated what we reported a few weeks back, that we understood the Secretary of that institution had relinquished the idea of establishing a Life Insurance Office. We learnt so and were much relieved, even as a reason that the difference between the Secretary and the Directors of the Oriental Office was adjusted by the latter party according to the views of the Secretary by increasing the Bank's interests either by granting it additional shares or a return of a greater percentage upon the business given. At the late meeting of the Oriental, we have the following resolution.

"5th Proposed by Mr. Dearn seconded by Mr. Colquhoun and Resolved That the Secretaries in connection with the committee report to a special General Meeting of the Proprietors to be convened on as early a day as possible on the expediency of an additional percentage on the profits arising from the business undertaken by the Agra Bank, being returned in that institution in addition to the interest they at present possess, which must be allowed, tends rather to strengthen than diminish our first impression.

A meeting was held this day at the Office of Messrs. Farquar son, Brothers and Co. for the establishment of an Annuity Office.
 The MIFAM PRARY BANK COMPANY have increased the number of shares from 2,000 to 3,000 at the original subscription, it will be sometime yet before operations can commence.

CARLE BOAT ASSOCIATION.—This Association though formed and continued almost exclusively among the larger houses of business, has been in existence several months we mention it as it appears not to be generally known. Mr. William Pinson is the Secretary, there are several decked boats in preparation and shares are at 300 rupees.

Fort William, Secret Department, the 4th December 1840.—I the Right Hon^{ble} the Governor General in Council is pleased to order that the following copy of a despatch from Major General Sir R Sale, K C B to the address of Major General Sir W Cotton, G C B and K C H, commanding the troops in Afghanistan, reporting his operations against the enemy on the 21 ultimo, and the subsequent abstract from a despatch from Major General Nott, to the address of Sir W Cotton, dated from Khetat the 3d ultimo, be published for general information.

By order of the Right Hon^{ble} the Governor General of India in Council,

TO MAJOR GENERAL SIR WOLLOUGHBY COTTON,
G C B & K C H., &C. &C. &C., Cabul.

SIR,—Having received in elegance that Dost Mahomed Khan, with a number of armed followers, had taken possession of some forts in this direction, from which he proposed moving to-day towards the Ghorehund pass, with the view of effecting a junction with his son Mahomed Atzul Khan, I determined on endeavouring to frustrate the attempt.

Accordingly at 6 A.M. I broke up my Camp at Baman the fort of Meer Musjedee, and moved on this position.

An advanced column, consisting of four companies of H M 13th light infantry, the two flank companies of the 37th N I, one company of the 27th N I, the two 6-pounders of the Shah's, two squadrons of the 2d light cavalry, and 200 of Anderson's horse, the whole under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Salter, preceded the main body which was commanded by myself.

On approaching Purwan the forts and villages were rapidly evacuated by the enemy who were seen flying to the hills in great numbers; I cannot compute them at fewer than 500 horse and 3000 foot; the two reports received swell their numbers to a much higher amount.

Dr Lord, who accompanied Col Salter to procure information, sent word that he believed if the cavalry proceeded in advance they would be able to cut off some of the fugitives, and in compliance with his request the 2d cavalry were ordered to skirt the hill to the right, while the Shah's horse under captain Anderson took post on the left of the Pass, to prevent any of the enemy attempting to escape in the direction of Ghorehund. The infantry followed, but their movements were greatly retarded by the guns, the progress of which was much impeded by the numerous water-courses that intersected the road.

The 2d cavalry had preceded the column about a mile when a body of the enemy's horse, about 200 in number, supposed to be headed by Dost Mahomed in person came down the hill to attack them. The cavalry was formed into a line and led on to the charge by captains Fraser and Ponsonby, commanding the two squadrons. It is my painful duty to record that the gallant bearing of these officers was but ill seconded by their men, they both found themselves in the midst of the enemy unsupported by their troops, and after being most severely wounded, extricated themselves with difficulty and found their men flying before the enemy. I deeply regret to state that Lieutenant Crispin, the adjutant of the regiment, was cut down and killed leading his men into action; Dr Lord was also most unfortunately killed in this affair, and Lieutenant Bromfoot, of the engineers, who was also in advance, is missing.

Of the gallantry of captain Fraser and the other officers of the 2d cavalry, who led the squadrons of the regiment on the occasion, I cannot speak too highly, and I regret that their noble example and the opportunity offered to the 2d cavalry of adding to its laurels, have been thus neglected by them.

The two flank companies of the 37th regiment and one company of the 27th regiment, supported by two guns from Captain Abbott's Battery, and followed by some of the Jeun Bazees, now ascended the hill overlooking the Pass and Valley of Purwan, which was crowded by the enemy's infantry and cleared it in brilliant style, the enemy deserting their positions one after the other and flying in the direction of the Punjshere Valley, where they still cover the hill side in great numbers.

The enemy however, are at too great a distance to admit of my following up the advantage I have obtained this evening the whole of the troops having been under arms for 9 hours. I have therefore encamped on the ground, taking every precaution to guard against a night attack.

I beg to enclose the accompanying casualty return from which you will perceive that excepting the serious disaster sustained in the affair of the 2d cavalry, but little loss has resulted from the day's operations.

I have, &c.

Extract from a Despatch from Major Genl. Nott, dated Camp Kalat, November 3d, 1840.

I have the honor to acquaint you for the information of Major General Sir Willoughby Cotton, G C B, and K C H, commending in Afghanistan, that the troops under my command this morning entered and took possession of the town and citadel of Khelat—the rebel chiefs having evacuated this strong fortress on the approach of the British force.

After making the usual and necessary arrangements, I shall deliver the place over to the political authorities, leaving a complete regiment to garrison that important fortress until the pleasure of Government shall be known.

Although the Bengal sepoys have not had on the present occasion an opportunity of distinguishing themselves in action with the enemy, yet I beg to assure you that nothing could be finer than their conduct the zealous and cheerful manner in which they conveyed the battering train during a march of near 300 miles of the most difficult country in the world, dragging these heavy guns over the Kayak mountains, through beds of rivers and deep ravines, excels all praise, and has called forth the admiration of their European officers and of the European Artillery-men attached to the battery, their patience under fatigue and privation, and their soldier-like and orderly conduct deserve my warmest thanks, and their anxious and active zeal to hasten the march and to encounter the enemy, has confirmed me in the conviction, that they are, when they perceive that confidence is placed in them, fully equal to any troop in the world.

I cannot close this letter without bringing to your notice the great assistance I have received from Colonel Stacy, commanding the 43d regiment, Major Clarkson, commanding the 42d regiment, Captain Macan, commanding the troops of His Majesty Shah Sojahool Moolk, and my best thanks are due to that excellent Officer Captain William Anderson, in command of the artillery, and to Captain T. Walker, commanding the cavalry.

My best thanks are also due to Captain Polwhell, brigade Major, and to Lieutenant Tytler, deputy assistant quarter master General, for their constant exertions in the public service.

I have, &c,

An act for executing within the local limits of the jurisdiction of her Majesty's Courts Legal Process issued by authorities in the Mofussil.

I. Whereas great inconvenience has been experienced, in consequence of the difficulty of procuring the attendance of witnesses before the Mofussil authorities of persons residents within the local limits of her Majesty's Supreme Courts, and, in consequence of justice being often frustrated by reason of persons and property within such limits being exempted from process issued by such authorities which has also occasioned inconvenience to the inhabitants within such limits in suits in the Mofussil courts to which they are parties —

It is hereby enacted, that any writ, warrant, or other process issued by any court, judge, or magistrate in the territories beyond the local limits of the Supreme Courts of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay respectively, may be executed within those limits and in manner following—A copy of such writ, warrant, or other process authenticated as such by the attestation of the

II. And it is hereby provided, that upon the delivery of every such writ, warrant or process so endorsed as aforesaid to any such sheriff, as aforesaid, every such sheriff shall make a memorandum, of the date of such delivery, and shall execute such writ, warrant or process in like manner as if the same had originally issued from any of her majesty's courts and had been delivered at the date as appearing by the memorandum, and such sheriff shall make no distinction as to priority or otherwise between the execution of any writ, warrant or other process originally issued from any of her majesty's courts, and the execution of any writ, warrant or other process, under this act. But every writ, warrant and other process whether criminal, or otherwise as aforesaid, shall, among each other, be subject to the same rules touching the mode and order of execution as are now established in respect of writs, warrants and other process originally issued from her majesty's courts of justice.

III. And it is hereby enacted, that every such sheriff shall be liable to be proceeded against in her majesty's courts of justice for all matters touching the execution of any writ, warrant or other process executed under this act, in like manner as if the same had originally issued from any of her majesty's courts of justice. And all persons and property seized or detained under any writ, warrant or process executed by virtue of this act shall be dealt with in like manner as if such persons or property had been seized or detained under the like writ, warrant or other process issued from any of her majesty's courts of justice.

IV. And it is hereby enacted, that all persons disobeying or obstructing the execution of any writ, warrant or other process endorsed under this act, shall be punishable in her majesty's courts of justice, in like manner as if the same had issued from such courts, provided always that, in the case of process of attendance of witnesses, her majesty's courts shall be governed by the like rules touching expenses and other matters as are established in regard to subpoenas issued from such courts.

V. And it is hereby enacted, in the case of persons seized or detained by virtue of any writ, warrant or other process executed under the authority of this act by any justice of the peace or by any sheriff, it shall be the duty of every such sheriff or justice of the peace if so required by the endorsement of the judge, to deliver the party in custody to such authority or person as shall be particularly specified in such endorsement, and who shall have been charged with the execution of the writ, warrant or other process by the authority originally issuing the same, and for that purpose to cause the party in custody to be conveyed to any place within the company's territories beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of her majesty's courts.

VI. And it is hereby provided, that in the case of any writ, warrant or other process required to be endorsed under the authority of this act, it shall be lawful for the judge who shall be required to endorse the same, to emit the same for amendment to the authority issuing the same if the same shall appear to be defective in any matter of form.

VII. And it is hereby provided, that in the case of any writ, warrant or other process required to be indorsed under the authority of this act, for the seizure or detention of any person, it shall be lawful for the judge who shall be required to endorse the same to direct by endorsement that bail (the amount and number of sureties to be specified in such endorsement) may be taken, and for this purpose to call for such documents and to make such enquiry as he shall think proper.

VIII. And whereas it is expedient, that offenders sentenced by the Mofussil authorities to imprisonment with or without hard labour, should be subjected to the most improved rules of prison-discipline, which cannot, in all cases, be conveniently done except in the prisons locally situate within the jurisdiction of her majesty's Supreme Courts, it is hereby enacted that all civil and criminal gaols and houses of correction within the jurisdiction of any of her majesty's Supreme Courts, shall, according to the nature of the case, be liable to be used by the sheriff for the purposes of this act, and the parties imprisoned therein under the authority of this act shall be liable to the prison discipline thereof, and all sentences of imprisonment passed by any judge, court or magistrate in the territories of the East India Company beyond the local limits of her majesty's Supreme Courts, may be executed in whole or in part within any of the gaols or houses of correction aforesaid, provided that a copy of the warrant of commitment or other process authorizing the imprisonment be so endorsed as aforesaid, and such endorsement contain the necessary directions.

7th December, 1840.—The following Act passed by the right hon'ble the governor general of India in council on the 7th of December 1840, is hereby promulgated for general information.

Act No XXIV of 1840.

For amending the Law with respect to rates for Municipal purposes within the Town of Calcutta.

I Whereas it is expedient to specify the particular purposes to which rates assessed on houses, buildings and grounds in Calcutta shall be applied, and abolish the practice which has hitherto prevailed, of levying five per cent on the annual value of all houses, buildings and grounds, without reference to the amount necessary for accomplishing the purposes of the rates, such per centage being inadequate for the purposes to which the rates have hitherto been deemed applicable. And whereas it is expedient to make the per centage leviable by quarterly rates on the annual value of property to depend entirely on the expenditure necessary for accomplishing, in an efficient manner, the purposes to which the rates shall henceforth be applicable, and providing for all incidental expenses and casual deficiencies or defaults. And whereas it is expedient to subject the collection and administration of the funds raised for Municipal purposes in the various districts of the town to the management of the rate-payers themselves within such districts respectively, whenever they are desirous of undertaking the same, and are willing to enter into proper arrangements for the purpose. And whereas it is expedient to modify the provisions of the Statute 33 Geo 3, Chap 32, in regard to assessments for the town of Calcutta in order for the better collection of the same, reserving all the authority of such Statute in matters not inconsistent with this Act.

It is hereby enacted, that the assessment which by the Statute 33 Geo 3 Chap 32 are authorized to be made for the town of Calcutta, shall be applicable to the following purposes only—viz. lighting and watering the roads and streets, and cleansing and repairing the same and the drains of the said town.

II And it is hereby enacted, that the assessments and rates made under the authority of the said statute shall be sufficient for accomplishing, in an efficient manner, the purposes mentioned in the last section, for discharging all incidental expenses, and for making up deficiencies and defaults of every kind whatsoever, provided always that no rate shall be made exceeding the amount of five per cent on the assessed value of property without the sanction of the governor of Fort William in Bengal.

III. And it is hereby enacted, for the encouragement of the control and supervision of the assessment and collection of the rates and management thereof within particular divisions being undertaken by the rate-payers themselves—the justices at their quarter sessions shall publish quarterly the particulars of all amounts laid out, and all the expenses of collection and deficiencies during the preceding quarter within the following divisions of the town, or such other divisions as the governor of Fort William in Bengal may, from time to time direct, as long as the assessment collection or management of the rates for such divisions shall remain under their jurisdiction viz. the 1st or Upper North Division, bounded as follows:

IV. And it is hereby enacted whenever two-thirds in number and value of the rate payers of any of such respective divisions shall apply to the governor of Fort William in Bengal to undertake themselves the assessment, collection and management of the rates of such division, or any or either of these trusts, it shall be lawful for the governor of Fort William in Bengal to authorize the same accordingly, at his discretion, provided always that such majority of rate payers shall present a petition which shall obtain his full approbation for the safe and efficient execution of the trusts, the transfer of which from the present authorities is sought for. Provided always that in any such arrangement, the amount to be levied in any particular division, shall not be considered as necessarily limited by the amount expended within such division, but shall be adjusted by the governor of Fort William in Bengal, upon reference to all local circumstances.

V. And it is hereby enacted that for the better assessment and collection of rates under this Act it shall be lawful for the governor of Fort William in Bengal, to appoint such assessor or assessors, collector or collectors, and to make such union of the offices of assessor and collector, and to prescribe such rules and take such securities for the due execution of this Act by the person or persons employed in assessments and collections and in the management of the rates collected as he shall deem expedient.

VI. And it is hereby enacted, that it shall not be necessary in any assessment rate or warrant of distress under this Act to specify the names of the owners or occupiers of the houses, buildings and grounds; but it shall be sufficient if every property rated be identified, and in the case of houses numbered in any street, and in the name of the street and number of the house rated be particularly specified.

VII. And it is hereby enacted, that the goods and chattels of the owner of any property rated shall be seizable any where (excepted where property is concealed as hereinbefore mentioned) for deficiencies in the payment of rates. And that all property which shall be found upon any premises rated shall be seizable for any arrears which may be due for a period of one year immediately preceding such seizure. And in the case of the seizure of the property of a tenant under such circumstances, he may deduct the amount of the levy from the next payment of his rent.

VIII. And it is hereby enacted, that where there is ground to suspect that property liable to distress under this Act is concealed in any zenana, the officer charged with the execution of the warrant shall make a special report to the justice granting the same, who shall thereupon follow, as closely as is practicable, the rules for the seizure of property in like cases adopted by her majesty's supreme court.
